Blocking underpass up to U.S.: lawyer

Appealing to the Federal Highway Administration probably is the only way downtown Arlington Heights merchants can hope to block construction of the proposed Arlington Heights underpass, an attorney has told the merchants.

Atty. James Hendricks told about 20 downtown business owners and executives who gathered at Eddie's Lounge, 10 E. Northwest Hwy., that pleading with the village board would be useless because its members already have made up their minds to approve the underpass at Arlington Heights Road and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

"This appears to be (Village Pres.) Jim Ryan's pet project; it appears to be his goal in office," said Hendricks, who spoke to the group Saturday at the request of Eddie's Lounge owner Eleanor Jensen.

"IT WAS VERY apparent they made no plans for the people on this block," Hendricks said of the underpass plan recommended by the engineering firm Metcalf & Eddy Inc. of Des Plaines. "There is no parking available for any of your customers. They have not given any thought to problems it would cause for existing businesses. They have failed to look into the impact on your businesses."

Besides reducing customer parking, central business district merchants oppose the underpass because it will force the closing of the Evergreen Avenue railroad crossing and eliminate several businesses' frontage on Northwest Highway.

Nine stores will be displaced if the underpass is built.

HENDRICKS SAID it would be futile for underpass opponents to hire an attorney and try to delay approval of the project with a court injunction because "the village has the right to do what they're doing."

Robert W. Mills, president of the First Arlington National Bank, agreed with Hendricks that approval of the underpass plan is imminent at the Oct. 17 village board meeting.

He recommended that merchants seek "a maximum amount of input into the final design of the project."

Mills said merchants should work with the village on the layout of stops signs, traffic detours, new streets — "anything we can do to try to minimize the effect."

During the session Saturday, Hendricks and the merchants briefly discussed the possibility of calling for a referendum on the underpass issue.

New bank charges catch Bert Lance by surprise

More than $1 million in federal savings deposits — an unusually large amount — was placed in Bert Lance's National Bank of Georgia earlier this year, Newsday, the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper reported Sunday.

In Calhoun, Ga., former Budget Director Lance questioned the accuracy of the story, while a Treasury Dept. spokesman in Washington said the funds it referred to did not belong to the government but were put on deposit at the bank by federal court-appointed bankruptcy referees.

Lance expressed surprise when reporters met him as he walked up the steps of the First United Methodist Church in Calhoun Sunday morning.

"I KNOW NOTHING in the world about it," he said. "I didn't have anything to do with the placement of any federal funds whatsoever. That was not within my purview."

Later in the day, after reading the Newsday story, he added: "I had a hard time comprehending the article.

"I haven't the slightest idea of what they're talking about . . . I have no knowledge of it at all. And I'd make sure those facts are correct, if I were you."

Lance, who resigned as President Carter's budget director after public debate about the state of his financial affairs and past banking practices, holds a major share in the bank.

Deposits at the Georgia bank, the state's fifth largest, were made during the first quarter of 1977 — the period when Lance became budget director after serving as president of the Atlanta bank, Newsday said. They provided a financial boost for the bank at a time when it had been forced to write off $1.25 million in bad loans and to cut its stock dividend to zero, it said.

IT SAID large federal savings deposits are rare, and on March 31, Georgia's 63 other national banks had a combined total of $39,000 in federal savings deposits compared to $1.37 million at the National Bank of Georgia.

Joe Laitin, the Treasury's assistant secretary of public affairs, said records of the comptroller of the currency's office show the funds were deposited by bankruptcy referees appointed by federal District Court judges sitting in the Atlanta area.

Poor administration lets welfare fraud flourish

by TONI GINNETTI

Fraud in the state unemployment and public aid systems is a multi-million dollar problem that has swelled through inattention and ineffective law enforcement efforts, according to the head of a special commission investigating welfare cheating in Illinois.

Samuel K. Skinner, former U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, said the lack of closer administrative scrutiny of the Dept. of Public Aid and the Bureau of Employment Securities has contributed to the welfare fraud draining millions in illegal benefits.

"Not enough attention has been given in either system to the problem of fraud and abuse in the past," Skinner said in an interview. "Past administrations have been worried about getting the benefits out rather than being worried about whether the benefits are being legitimately obtained.

"THE REAL PROBLEM I think is the administrations in the past have not paid enough attention to either one of these areas," he said. "They have hoped they would go away and they're not going to go away. They're billion dollar programs in Illinois and you have to make them work effectively rather than just ignoring them."

Skinner is heading a special task force appointed by Gov. James R. Thompson in August to investigate fraud in the multi-billion dollar state welfare system. The former U.S. attorney was named to the task force after heading an eight-month federal investigation into welfare fraud by public employes.

The task force is investigating fraud in the state's two assistance agencies, the bureau of employment securities and the public aid department.

The agencies are among the largest in the state, with the unemployment bureau having paid out more than $421 million for the first six months of this year and the public aid department paying out some $150 million each month.

SKINNER, NOW a private attorney, said the task force has found past administrations' lack of concern about welfare fraud, a lack of qualified per-

A HARBINGER OF WINTER, the fall harvest is beginning in the few farms that remain in the Northwest suburbs and in Fargo, N.D., where the last of the nation's record wheat crop is being harvested. Locally, the harvest has been delayed by rain, but the farmers expect high yields of soybeans. This year's corn crop is forecast to be fair to good by the experts.

Harvest soon, but farmer won't reap huge profits

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Lynn Landmeier is expecting a good harvest.

The corn, he figures, should yield a good 120 bushels an acre. Soybeans should be up to about 40 bushels.

But these numbers do not make Landmeier a happy man. He's been in farming too long. There are other things involved. Like prices he can get. And production costs.

"Let's put it this way, we aren't going to have to pay any income tax next year," he says. "It looks like a great yield, but it's a terrible economic situation.

"There're going to be a lot of guys lucky to get their money back. Even with a big yield."

LANDMEIER IS 39, and he has been farming for more than 20 years in an area that has become almost barren of farmers: the Northwest suburbs.

It is a good life. There is an unequaled freedom in it, no one to tell you what to do. And there is an unparalleled satisfaction in it too, your success a result of your own initiative. It takes a special breed.

But, Landmeier says, it is also a misunderstood breed.

"THE CONSUMER is getting to be, in the metropolitan areas, three to four generations, even five generations, away from the farm," he says. "They've got misconceptions."

He is glad to point them out.

Area schools cope with student turnover

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

If you look around your child's classroom today, chances are that a third to a fourth of the students you see will be gone by June and replaced by as many or more new faces.

Officials say 21,000 students transfer in and out of Northwest suburban schools every year, with turnover rates ranging from a low of 3 per cent at Kensington School in Mount Prospect to as much as 50 per cent at Muir and Armstrong schools in Schaumburg.

The statistics represent a heavy burden for local schools which spend thousands of dollars a year on counseling and testing to help transfer students adjust to new schools as well as on filing, storing and mailing records that must follow children wherever they go.

IN SCHOOLS with the highest turnovers, teachers say it's all they can do to determine new students' academic levels and tailor programs to their needs before the youngsters move on again.

Unlike highly publicized education problems like declining enrollment, the transiency dilemma virtually has been overlooked, leaving schools in highly mobile areas with little guidance on how to cope.

How quickly a child is placed in his correct reading level or the kind and quantity of counseling he gets if the move is accompanied by emotional problems may depend on the school district or on the individual school he attends.

MORE IMPORTANT than any monetary cost is the effect the high student turnover has on the continuity of education in any given school or classroom, school officials say.

"Numbers like these can be devastating to a school if you're not set up to handle it and accept it," Bernard Osterberger, principal at Armstrong School in Schaumburg, said.

His words ring true for Patty Ballard who said she has had as many as Cheri Loop has moved 17 times in her 19 years, attending 10 elementary schools in 6 states before settling in Novelty, Ohio, for her junior high and high school years.

Often she was not in one place long enough to make friends, but that was no more painful than having to leave the friends she did make along her family's journey through the south and east, said Miss Loop, 1057 Alden Ln., Buffalo Grove.

Given a choice, her mother Verna said she would never have made all the moves they did, but the choice wasn't hers.

"My husband's in sales and he was transferred a lot," she said. "He said it was an advantage to move and have Cheri see the country, but I knew it wasn't."

IT BOTHERED HER that she never knew which schools were bad and which were good when they moved to a new area. She was concerned that academic records were slow in arriving sometimes, and Cheri had to be moved from one reading and math group to another until they found where she belonged.

2 cosmonauts off on space station link

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union blasted two rookie cosmonauts into space Sunday to link up with a new space station in a mission marking the first Sputnik 20 years ago and the 60th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

Soyuz 25, carrying rookie cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalenok and Valery Ryumin, lifted off from the same launch pad at Baikonur in Soviet Kazakhstan where Sputnik 1, the world's first artificial satellite, was fired into orbit 20 years ago Oct. 4.

Soviet television showed film of the gray rocket's takeoff through morning fog. Kovalenok, the mission commander, gave a clenched-fist salute to the camera as he walked aboard in his spacesuit.

The official Soviet News agency Tass said Soyuz 25, circling the earth every 90.2 minutes, was moving toward a linkup with the new Salyut 6 space station placed in orbit Sept. 29.

AFTER FIVE orbits, the Soviet agency said the Soyuz crew had carried out "a flight path correction" that put them on an orbital inclination of 51.6 degrees at distances ranging from 197.5 miles to 173.9 miles above the earth.

Kovalenok, the mission commander, "reported that the crew is implementing the planned program of flight and that the cosmonauts feel well," Tass said before the crewmen began a nine-hour rest period.

Western observers said the Soyuz 25 mission was clearly connected with the Sputnik 1 anniversary and the Nov. 7 celebration of the 60th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

TASS SAID the Kovalenok and Ryumin carried into space with them a copy of the new Soviet national constitution that was adopted by parliament last Friday.

Air Force Gen. Vladimir Shatalov, a veteran of three space missions himself, told Tass Soyuz 25 had been placed into "a near-earth orbit" for linkup with Salyut 6, which is orbiting the earth at distances ranging between 136.08 miles and 170.8 miles.

Shatalov told television viewers in a commentary accompanying the launch film shown later: "They are reporting everything normal but the truth is that everyone is always nervous at a time like this. There is always something new on every mission."

SOYUZ 25 was the first staffed Soviet spacecraft since last February's mission that put veteran cosmonauts Col. Viktor Gorbatko and Lt. Col. Yuri Glazkov up for an 18-day tour on Salyut 5.

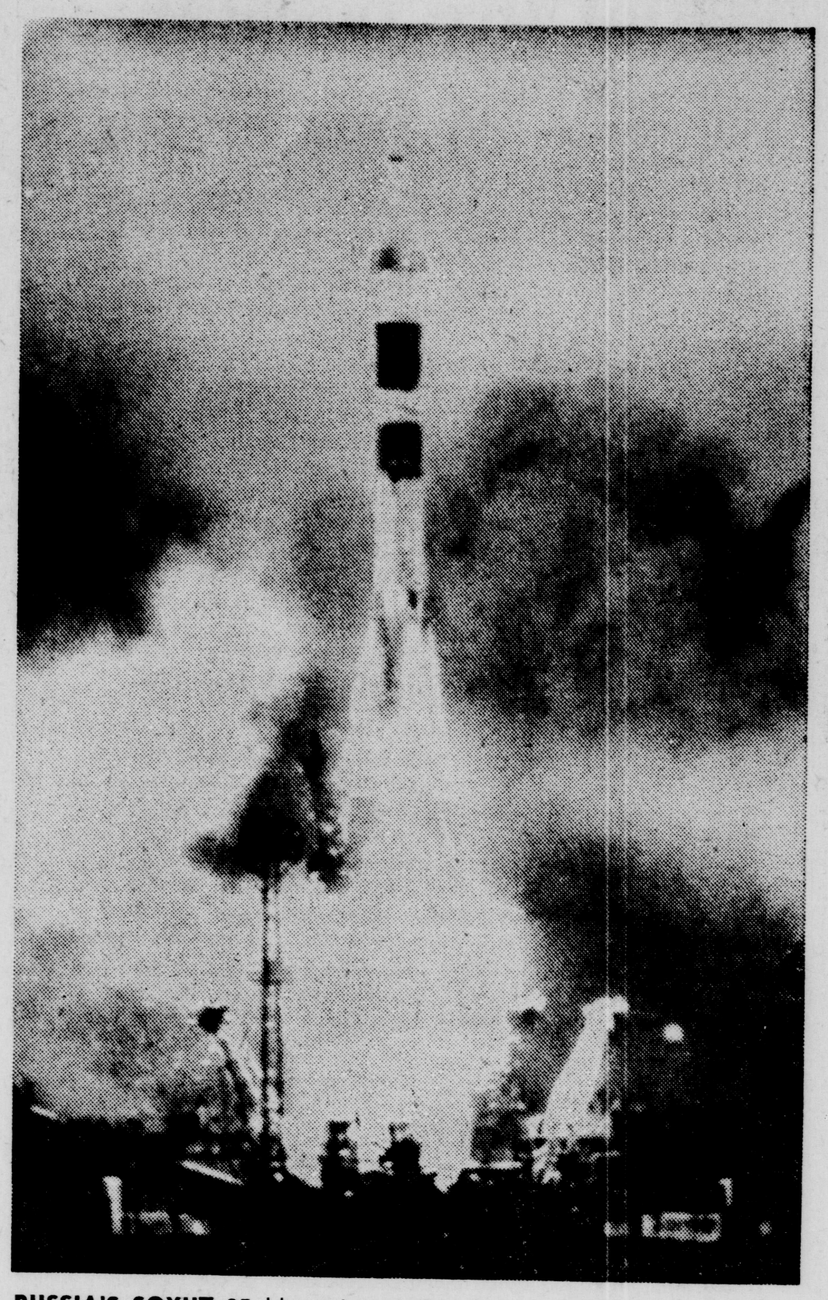
Western observers said the Soviets could be preparing a space spectacular to mark their Sputnik and Bolshevik anniversaries — either by programing Soyuz 25 for a new spaceflight endurance record of more than 63 days or by launching yet another Salyut space station to link up with Salyut 6 and form a huge orbital laboratory.

Tass said Kovalenok, 35, is a veteran air force pilot and paratrooper. His flight engineer Ryumin, 38, has worked on developing and testing new space equipment.

WESTERN SPACE experts will be monitoring the Soyuz 25 mission's duration closely for evidence that the Soviet space program has overcome difficulties that have drastically shortened the length of recent spaceflights.

The February mission of Soyuz 24 lasted only 18 days. Last October's Soyuz 23 mission was aborted only 48 hours after launch, apparently because of a failure in linkup mechanism and controls. A month before that, in September 1976, Soyuz 22 spent only eight days in orbit.

VLADIMIR KOVALENOK and VALERY RYUMIN



RUSSIA'S SOYUZ 25 blasts into space from a Baikonur Cosmodrome launch site Sunday, carrying rookie cosmonauts, Vladimir Kovalenok and Valery Ryumin. Oct. 4 was the 20th anniversary of the launching of the Sputnik 1, and Western observers have been anticipating a possible Soviet space spectacular.

Frisco pyramid harder to climb 2nd time 'round

It was the second time around for building-climber Edwin Drummond, and the San Francisco police gave him grudging respect. Drummond, an experienced mountaineer, scaled the outside of the 48-story Transamerica pyramid building with his wife and a friend in January, reaching the seventh floor. On Saturday, Drummond, 32, a steeplejack, made it to the 21st floor before police and firemen forced him to give up. A cohort, Robert Zipperer, was pulled into a window on the 11th floor. The two men were booked for investigation of trespassing and released. Said police Sgt. Howard Kyle of Drummond's second try: "We shook hands when he left. I wish he would have made it."

Former President Gerald Ford, once a football star at the University of Michigan, will serve as grand marshal of the nationally televised 1978 Rose Parade that precedes the Rose Bowl football game. Ford and his wife, Betty, will lead the 5½-mile parade Jan. 2 and then attend the Tournament of Roses game. He will be the third former President after Herbert Hoover and Richard Nixon to serve as grand marshal.

Comedienne Totie Fields has been named Entertainer of the Year by the Conference of Personal Managers West and will receive an award Oct. 20 at the group's annual dinner. Dinah Shore, the only other woman to receive the award, was last year's recipient. Others have been Jimmy Durante, Andy Griffith, Liberace, Burt Reynolds, Don Rickles, Frank Sinatra and Danny Thomas.

Kristen Nelson Friday sued for a divorce from singer Rick Nelson, 37, to end 14 years of marraige. Mrs. Nelson, 32, an artist and daughter of former football star Tom Harmon, asked custody of their four children, Tracy, 14; twin 10-year-old boys, Matthew and Gunner, and Sam, 3. The Nelsons were married in 1963 when the long-running "Ozzie and Harriet Show," starring the Nelson family, still was on televiwion.

The Writer's Guild has granted permission to detective-turned-author Joseph Wambaugh to remove his name from the movie version of his novel "The Choirboys," an unusual action by the writer's union. Wambaugh has complained — in paid notices, magazine articles and in a $1 million lawsuit against the producers — that the final script is so unlike his novel or his script that it is an insult to him and to the police it portrays, the Guild said.

Officers to testify to canal pact security

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supporters of President Carter's Panama Canal treaties have found their own retired high ranking military officers who are expected to tell the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Monday the agreements will not damage U.S. security.

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, chief of naval operations from 1970 to 1974, and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff between 1962 and 1964 are expected to support the idea, committee officials said.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a determined opponent of the treaties, has questioned the sincerity of active duty military officers like Gen. George Brown, current chairman of the joint chiefs, who have supported the treaties.

THURMOND AND other opponents hinted the active officers are not free to speak their minds because of administration pressure to support the pacts.

Last week, Thurmond introduced a letter against the treaties from four retired naval officers including Adm. Thomas Moorer, another former chairman of the joint chiefs, and three former chiefs of naval operations, Arleigh Burke, Robert Carney and George Anderson.

Since studying the treaties, Carne has modified his position and told Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., he could support the accords if amended as Dole suggests.

Committee sources report that Gen. Matthew Ridgway, U.S. commander in Korea, and Gen. William Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam also are in favor of the treaties.

Moorer is scheduled to cross swords with his old comrades, Zumwalt and Taylor, by renewing his opposition before the committee today.

In testimony before a House committee Sept. 28, Moorer said:

"ANY COMMANDER acting in that capacity (of chairman of the JCS) will immediately perceive that it is vital to U.S. interests to retain complete ownership and control of the Panama Canal.

"I was convinced as chairman of the JCS — and I remain convinced today — that if the Soviet Union ever gained even proxy sovereignty and control over the U.S. Canal Zone and canal through Cuba, U.S. security as well as U.S. prosperity would be placed in serious jeopardy."

Zumwalt, though, has written Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., stating he remains concerned about Russia's growing military power.

But he added: "It may, therefore, be of interest to you to know that even in that light, in my judgment, the ratification of the Panama Canal Treaty by the Senate would enhance, and nonratification by the State would harm, U.S. security interests."

Church proposes visit to Panama

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, suggested Sunday the entire Foreign Relations Committee visit Panama to clear up some concerns about the recently negotiated canal treaties.

Church proposed the trip during an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" in which he was asked whether it would be a good idea for the chief Panamanian negotiator to testify before the Senate about differing interpretations of some treaty previsions.

"I'd much prefer to see the whole Foreign Relations Committee, after we have completed our initial hearings and during the recess, to go to Panama," replied Church, who is acting chairman of the 16-member Senate panel.

THAT WOULD give the lawmakers a "firsthand view" of canal zone defenses, he said. And they could try to get "some feel of the political climate in Panama and also the attitude of other countries in the Caribbean — Columbia, Venezuela, Costa Rica and possibly some of the island governments in the Carribean itself.

"We're discussing now a treaty not limited to Panama but one in which the whole hemisphere takes a great interest," Church said.

He also said the administration must act strongly to shift public opinion about the treaties if it hopes to win Senate ratification.

"I think the treaties are in deep trouble now," he said.

Area farmer set to reap crops, not profits

he says: there are about four or five cents of potatoes in it, the rest is shipping and marketing and additives.

Take a loaf of bread, he says: nowadays, it'll cost anywhere from 45 to 60 cents, the farmer gets 7 or 8 cents for the wheat that goes into it.

Take the government statistics, he says: the price of farm products has dropped by about a third while the government is hoping to keep inflation in grocery prices to 6 per cent.

LANDMEIER GOES on and on.

"There's not enough food in food to affect the price, and that's right," he says. "Yet, every time something happens, the farmer gets blamed.

"And as soon as farm prices go up a little, the media says, 'Due to an increase in farm prices'."

It is hard to make a profit, he says. He and his dad had to replace a combine this year that they had bought five years ago: the price had gone from $20,000 to $40,000.

So he and his dad do little things to improve their prospects. They have a little stand where they sell hay and straw. Near Halloween they sell pumpkins too, and it helps ends meet.

THEY WORK 50 acres that include the roadside stand near Irving Park and Sutton roads in Streamwood and another 600 acres on the other side of Elgin.

They are strictly grain farmers, and Landmeier has no inclination to raise livestock.

"The guys who are in it," he says, "are always saying, 'Well, next year, it will probably be better.'"

Primarily, they make their living off corn and soybeans. He used to raise wheat too. It is a good crop.

YOU HARVEST it early and then you can plant next year's corn over it, but the price has dropped out on it and "there's just no money in wheat; you can't make anything."

So you be careful. Things are not as simple as they used to be when his grandfather farmed near Elk Grove Village. Farmers have to be a little more cautious now; they have to be a little smarter.

But, Landmeier says, even being smarter may not be good enough for many of them.

"There's going to be a lot of people in disastrous situations in farming," he says. "Sooner or later, farmers are going to have to quit."

But that is tomorrow. There is no time to worry about that now.

The harvest is coming.

Union insurance scheme probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of dollars in premiums from Laborers' and Teamsters' union members were siphoned from insurance companies and used by a convicted insurance promoter "for his own purposes," Senate investigators said Sunday.

An elaborate scheme built upon a chain of new union insurance premiums paying off existing claims with nothing in reserve was described by members of the Senate investigations subcommittee, which begins hearings today.

The same panel had hearings last July on how the Teamsters Central States Pension Fund made questionable business investments. This series will focus on the Central States Health and Welfare Fund's purchase of insurance through companies controlled by Joseph Hauser, of Beverly Hills, Calif.

CHAIRMAN Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said it appears Hauser, "having run afoul of insurance authorities in one state, was able, nonetheless, to move into other parts of the country, take control of an insurance company, and then obtain millions of dollars of union trust fund insurance business by cultivating relationships with important union officials."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said investigators documented more than $39 million in premiums paid to Hauser's companies, more than $11 million of which was in "diversions and questionable expenditures" between 1973 and 1976.

After generating a hugh cash flow, Nunn said, "Hauser then used insurance agency agreements with other Hauser-controlled firms, conversions to cash, and a variety of devices to draw millions of these premium dollars out of the insurance companies for his own purposes."

Hauser was convicted earlier this year on federal charges of bribing union officials to gain their business.

UPI LEARNED that Hauser was subpoenaed, but he will not be asked to appear until later this month. He is expected to invoke the Fifth Amendment because an appeal is pending.

Investigators said more than 20,000 policyholders face loss of premiums and coverage. The Teamsters' fund canceled its $2.6 billion worth of coverage after three months and losses of almost $7 million in premiums, they said.

The union trust funds involved included Central States Southeast and Southwest Areas Health and Welfare Fund (Illinois and the Indiana State District Council of Laborers and Rod Carriers Health & Welfare Fund.

..."THIS MONEY does not belong to the federal government. It belongs to creditors," Laitin said.

"They're not government funds," he repeated later. "They're not even government trust accounts."

But Newsday quoted Benjamin H. Carter, clerk for the federal District Court of Northern Georgia and keeper ministered through the court, as say- of records on all bankruptcy funds adding only $43,610 in bankruptcy funds were deposited in savings at the National Bank of Georgia as of June 30. On the same date, the bank reported to the U.S. Comptroller that it held $1,062,000 in federal savings deposit, the newspaper said.

"I don't know where the problem is," Laitin said in response to this apparent discrepancy. "All I know is the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency reported that figure ($1.37 million). It was done through official channels."

Bank officials declined to discuss the newspaper report.

Area farmer set to reap crops, not profits

he says: there are about four or five cents of potatoes in it, the rest is shipping and marketing and additives.

Take a loaf of bread, he says: nowadays, it'll cost anywhere from 45 to 60 cents, the farmer gets 7 or 8 cents for the wheat that goes into it.

Take the government statistics, he says: the price of farm products has dropped by about a third while the government is hoping to keep inflation in grocery prices to 6 per cent.

LANDMEIER GOES on and on.

"There's not enough food in food to affect the price, and that's right," he says. "Yet, every time something happens, the farmer gets blamed.

"And as soon as farm prices go up a little, the media says, 'Due to an increase in farm prices'."

It is hard to make a profit, he says. He and his dad had to replace a combine this year that they had bought five years ago: the price had gone from $20,000 to $40,000.

So he and his dad do little things to improve their prospects. They have a little stand where they sell hay and straw. Near Halloween they sell pumpkins too, and it helps ends meet.

THEY WORK 50 acres that include the roadside stand near Irving Park and Sutton roads in Streamwood and another 600 acres on the other side of Elgin.

They are strictly grain farmers, and Landmeier has no inclination to raise livestock.

"The guys who are in it," he says, "are always saying, 'Well, next year, it will probably be better.'"

Primarily, they make their living off corn and soybeans. He used to raise wheat too. It is a good crop.

YOU HARVEST it early and then you can plant next year's corn over it, but the price has dropped out on it and "there's just no money in wheat; you can't make anything."

So you be careful. Things are not as simple as they used to be when his grandfather farmed near Elk Grove Village. Farmers have to be a little more cautious now; they have to be a little smarter.

But, Landmeier says, even being smarter may not be good enough for many of them.

"There's going to be a lot of people in disastrous situations in farming," he says. "Sooner or later, farmers are going to have to quit."

But that is tomorrow. There is no time to worry about that now.

The harvest is coming.

Union insurance scheme probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of dollars in premiums from Laborers' and Teamsters' union members were siphoned from insurance companies and used by a convicted insurance promoter "for his own purposes," Senate investigators said Sunday.

An elaborate scheme built upon a chain of new union insurance premiums paying off existing claims with nothing in reserve was described by members of the Senate investigations subcommittee, which begins hearings today.

The same panel had hearings last July on how the Teamsters Central States Pension Fund made questionable business investments. This series will focus on the Central States Health and Welfare Fund's purchase of insurance through companies controlled by Joseph Hauser, of Beverly Hills, Calif.

CHAIRMAN Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said it appears Hauser, "having run afoul of insurance authorities in one state, was able, nonetheless, to move into other parts of the country, take control of an insurance company, and then obtain millions of dollars of union trust fund insurance business by cultivating relationships with important union officials."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said investigators documented more than $39 million in premiums paid to Hauser's companies, more than $11 million of which was in "diversions and questionable expenditures" between 1973 and 1976.

After generating a hugh cash flow, Nunn said, "Hauser then used insurance agency agreements with other Hauser-controlled firms, conversions to cash, and a variety of devices to draw millions of these premium dollars out of the insurance companies for his own purposes."

Hauser was convicted earlier this year on federal charges of bribing union officials to gain their business.

UPI LEARNED that Hauser was subpoenaed, but he will not be asked to appear until later this month. He is expected to invoke the Fifth Amendment because an appeal is pending.

Investigators said more than 20,000 policyholders face loss of premiums and coverage. The Teamsters' fund canceled its $2.6 billion worth of coverage after three months and losses of almost $7 million in premiums, they said.

The union trust funds involved included Central States Southeast and Southwest Areas Health and Welfare Fund (Illinois and the Indiana State District Council of Laborers and Rod Carriers Health & Welfare Fund.

tangle financial affairs when a company goes into bankruptcy. While the sorting-out process is under way, the referee may place its assets in a bank account.

..."THIS MONEY does not belong to the federal government. It belongs to creditors," Laitin said.

"They're not government funds," he repeated later. "They're not even government trust accounts."

But Newsday quoted Benjamin H. Carter, clerk for the federal District Court of Northern Georgia and keeper ministered through the court, as saying only $43,610 in bankruptcy funds were deposited in savings at the National Bank of Georgia as of June 30. On the same date, the bank reported to the U.S. Comptroller that it held $1,062,000 in federal savings deposit, the newspaper said.

"I don't know where the problem is," Laitin said in response to this apparent discrepancy. "All I know is the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency reported that figure ($1.37 million). It was done through official channels."

Bank officials declined to discuss the newspaper report.

Flat tire possible cause of bus crash

The driver of a Chicago-to-Detroit Greyhound bus that flipped on an interstate and killed two passengers says a flat tire may have led to the fatal skid. Melvin Plummer, 26, of Chicago said from his Oakwood Hospital bed that he was trying to change lanes on I-94 in Allen Park, a Detroit suburb, early Saturday when the huge vehicle went out of control.

The bus carrying five passengers lurched onto the shoulder and then cartwheeled into the median, landing on its wheels. Passengers Terry W. Leggs, 23, of Detroit and Husain Shaheeduodin, 40, of London, England, were thrown out and killed. Plummer and passenger Ethel Hicks, 44, of Chicago were seriously injured and were hospitalized. Two other passengers were treated for minor injuries and released. "It was a miracle anyone survived," witness Claud Sheperd said. "The bus looked like it had gone through a compacter." Police said they were continuing their investigation of the wreck.

Mondale arrives, praises mayor

Vice President Walter Mondale arrived Sunday night to lead Monday's Columbus Day parade and quickly praised his host. Mondale called Mayor Michael Bilandic "the best new mayor in the country today." At a brief news conference at O'Hare International Airport, Mondale said the Carter administration is moving boldly toward helping aging urban areas with federal funds. "We need to revitalize our older cities," he said, and listed several urban programs. The affirmative action method of admission to schools and other institutions is "still the best method" toward ending segregation,Mondale said. On busing to desegregate schools, he said, "Our position is that the Constitution prohibits discrimination, and the courts must uphold that."

ERA not priority: Smigelskis

Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment is not top priority for Marianne Smigelskis, Gov. James R. Thompson's newly appointed women's advocate. "I will not be using the role of women's advocate to campaign for the ERA," said Ms. Smigelskis, an ERA supporter, whose appointment was announced Saturday. "I think there are much more important issues right now." The 34-year-old lawyer from Chicago, who will be paid $25,000 per year as the governor's special assistant on women, said she plans to review state hiring practice and meet with women's organizations. Thompson had been criticized for his delays in naming the women's advocate. A spokeswoman for the Illinois Women's Agenda said her group will take a wait-and-see attitude on Ms. Smigelskis' effectiveness.

Scott denies use of political funds

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said it would take him "20 years" to reconstruct records to prove he did not use a cash campaign fund of nearly $50,000 for personal use.

"It would take me 20 years to go back and itemize all the money spent before the 1974 campaign laws were passed," Scott said Saturday.

Scott confirmed reports that he kept the cash political contributions from both Democrats and Republicans in his own safe deposit boses. In existence from 1967 to 1972, the fund at one point contained $48,900.

Scott said he never has used the cash for personal use, but added he had no records to prove it.

The fund was referred to in a court contest last July involving the attorney general and his estranged wife, Mrs. Dorothy Humphrey, who were divorced in 1970. Mrs. Humphrey is seeking additional child support, and her attorney, Ward Fisher, raised the question in court of whether the funds were personal assets.

Scott indicated the Internal Revenue Service has not questioned him about the funds. He said the IRS only would have an interest "if they could prove the funds were converted for personal use. And I never did that."

He said the money was kept in safe deposit boxes instead of bank accounts for reasons of accessibility. "For instance, when I needed to run out and buy $1,000 worth of stamps to mail Christmas cards to precinct captains, which is certainly a political function, I would use that fund," he said.

The fund was initiated in 1967, just before the first of Scott's three successful campaigns for attorney general.

In Rockford Saturday, Gov. James R. Thompson, a fellow Republican, said Scott basically did nothing wrong.

There is no proof Scott used the funds for anything other than political purposes and Scott did not violate Illinois law at the time, Thompson said.

A state campaign spending act was passed in 1974, requiring a strict account of all campaign funds.

Hayter pushes for public on regional plans

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission should increase the role of the general public in regional planing, says Virginia M. Hayter, Hoffman Estates village president and newly elected member of the agency.

"Those of us elected Saturday are most conscious of the need to get back to our constituents," Mrs. Hayter said Sunday. "That is the general climate of all those elected."

Virginia Hayter

An assembly of 96 officials elected Mrs. Hayter and four other officials to the agency during a meeting at the Sheraton-O'Hare Motor Hotel in Rosemont. Also elected were Aurora Mayor Jack Hill, McHenry Shores Village Pres. Rose Lillegard, Naperville Mayor Chester Rybicki and Tower Lakes Village Pres. Cyril Wagner. All terms run to the spring of 1979.

THE OUTSPOKEM Mrs. Hayter said some current commission members are doing their job with the people in mind.

"Not all the commissioners are working as hard as they might," she said. "Not all see their jobs as getting out to the people."

Partial reason for this could be the source of their appointments, she said. While some, like herself, are answerable to local communities, others answer to agencies or offices that appoint them to the commission. The 25-member regional planning agency for Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kane, McHenry, and Will counties, is an advisory body only, but wields a "power of persuasion" over municipal development and the acquisition by municipalities of federal grants. In addition, it acts as liaison among local, regional, state and federal agencies, and furnishes planning assistance to municipalities.

NOT ONLY SHOULD the public become more involved, Mrs. Hayter also said the commission ought to become more visible, because of the "persuasive power" it wields.

The commission is perhaps less known and understood in the Northwest suburbs than elsewhere, she said, speculating that the strength of the Northwest Municipal Conference overshadows that of the commission.

Asked how the commission could help the Northwest suburbs more, Mrs Hayter said the commission already has a "full agenda" with upcoming major region wide decisions regarding housing, land use, water allocation and water pollution. She said she hasn't thought specifically about potential aid to the Northwest suburbs.

Her role as Hoffman Estates village president will complement her role as commissioner, and vice versa, she said.

FROM HER EXPERIENCE as a municipal leader, she understands the difficulties of generating community involvement, she said, and from her role as commissioner, she hopes to find new ways of bringing public opinion to bear upon decision making.

One possible means might be to hold meetings to which citizens would be invited. Other public groups, agencies or municipalities might help plan and carry out the meetings, thus easing the burden of any one of them and increasing the value of opinions voiced at the meetings, she said.

Such meetings would be "informational and consensus meetings," she said. "We would say to the people, 'Here is the problem, here are some of the alternatives, what do you think?' "

"I can't emphasize enough the need for people to come to such meetings and make their opinions known," she said.

Underpasses—one loved, one shunned

by BILL HILL

As opposition to plans for an underpass in Arlington Heights grows, the December opening of a $5.5 million underpass 15 miles away is eagerly awaited by the businessmen and residents of Elmhurst.

In Elmhurst, the underpass, begun in August 1976, is visualized as a much-needed by-pass for emergency vehicles and through traffic attempting to avoid the congested downtown area. It also is expected to boost downtown business.

In Arlington Heights, the chamber of commerce is leading the opposition to plans for running Arlington Heights Road under the Chicago and North-Western Ry. tracks with Northwest Highway depressed to the same level as Arlington Heights Road.

The village board is scheduled to vote on the underpass proposal Oct. 17 and indications are trustees will proceed with final engineering plans and attempts to get the federal government to finance 70 per cent of the cost.
to finance 70 per cent of the cost.

The plan recommended by the engineering firm of Metcalf & Eddy, Inc., of Des Plaines, was estimated at $5.7 million in 1975.

The general residential community of Arlington Heights has been relatively quiet on the underpass issue, despite the fact that as taxpayers they may have to pay for about 15 per cent of the project, which may end up costing as much as $10 million.

ELMHURST HAD THE community's support; without it, the project would not have been started. Part of the Illinois Commerce Commission's order in 1974 insisted that construction of an underpass there be subject to voter approval before $837,000 in state funds could be committed to the project.

In July 1974, 40 per cent of Elmhurst's registered voters went to the polls and 60 per cent of the 8,300 voters approved the city's issuance of $3.5 million worth of bonds to finance an underpass.

Since then, federal financing has been obtained and the city's share is expected to drop to about $1.2 million.

THE BUSINESS community of Elmhurst also encouraged the passage on the bond issue, Rollin C. Smith, director of the chamber of commerce, said.

"The businessmen wanted it," Smith said. "For too long their customers complained about the long waits at the railroad crossings."

The Elmhurst underpass at Kenilworth Avenue not only improves access to the business district by allowing shoppers to avoid blocked railroad crossings but also serves as a quick by-pass for nonshoppers who now use York Street to get through the city. The Kenilworth Avenue underpass is just one block east of York Street.

York and Addison streets, which constitute the heart of downtown Elmhurst, are very congested by the combination of large traffic volumes, stoplights parallel parkers and blocked railroad crossings.

Ridding the two main streets of through traffic is bound to improve business, most downtown merchants agree.

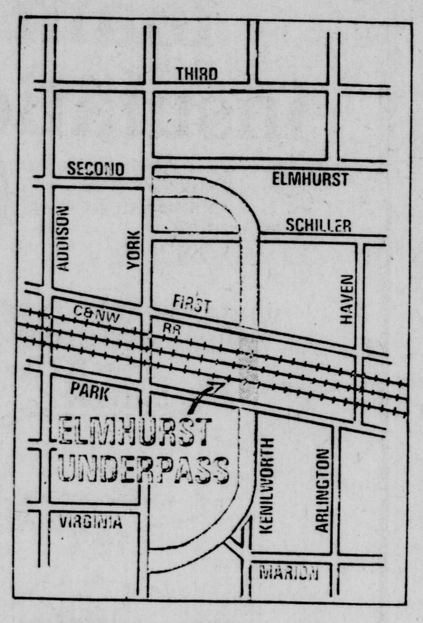
"I've lost some business the past year because people are aggravated by all the construction, but I think it's going to help us in the long run," said Harry Karales, owner of Chipain's sporting goods store at 126 N. York St.

BLOCKED RAILROAD crossings are much more of a problem in Elmhurst than in Arlington Heights where on weekdays 69 commuter and eight freight trains pass through the downtown area. In Elmhurst, the situation is aggravated by long, slow-moving freight trains pulling in and out of the nearby Proviso rail yards. About 30 commuter trains also stop in downtown Elmhurst on weekdays.

Ambulances must gamble on taking the shortest route to Memorial Hospital of DuPage County through the downtown area or the longer routes via the Eisenhower Expressway or Ill. Rte. 83 and North Avenue to avoid trains.

"Right now those freight trains start hitting their brakes at Villa Park and they slow to a crawl as they go through here," Karales said. "You can easily wait 15-20 minutes for a freight to clear York Street and then as that one clears off, you've got another one coming out of the Proviso yards at 2 miles per hour."

Construction of the underpass since August 1976 has caused the greatest inconvenience for businesses on First Avenue, which hugs the north side of the railroad tracks and has been closed for slightly more than a year.



UNDERPASS TAKES traffic one block east of the main business street.

AT THE ACE HARDWARE Store, which now sits at the top of the high-banked underpass, business has been down about 30 per cent, owner Emory Haultgren said.

"It's been hard on us, but that's progress I guess. I think the advantages will be tremendous once it's finished," Haultgren said.

His neighbors are less enthusiastic about the future. The owner of a light fixtures store refused to discuss it and Herbert Brook, the owner of Miracle Cleaners, advised Arlington Heights to "take a good hard look and try not to hurt the businessmen."

"My business has been down about 25 per cent. I'm surprised it wasn't downmore," Brook said. "And the guys over on York (Street) are dying. They were all for it, but not since they closed the streets (during construction)," Brook said.

HOWEVER, A half-dozen businessmen on York street said sales only have been affected slightly and they expect business to swell once the underpass is completed.

"We're all very optimistic it will be better when the underpass is done," said Dino Munger, owner of the Paradise Restaurant.

But unlike the Arlington Heights underpass proposal, no streets in downtown Elmhurst will be closed after the project is completed. Most of the opposition in Arlington Heights stems from the related need to close the Evergreen Avenue railroad crossing and prohibit the access of Wing and Davis streets to Arlington Heights Road.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS businessmen insist the road closures will severely damage the central business district, but their requests that village officials delay plans for an underpass until new economic impact studies can be conducted have been rejected.

The Elmhurst underpass was built with the "least possible impact on the business community," Assistant City Mgr. Neil Fulton said. Eight businesses, three houses and three apartments were uprooted by the project, he said.

"We also put as much pressure as possible on the engineers and contractors so the underpass will be open in December, although the asphalt will not be laid until spring," Fulton said.

City officials also responsed to the concerns of Immanuel Lutheran Church and connected the Kenilworth Avenue by-pass with York Street and Second Avenue, rather than Third Avenue near the church.

Lebanese hermit made saint in Papal ceremony

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI declared a 19th-century Lebanese hermit monk a saint Sunday, choosing the occasion to note recent events in the Middle East are throwing a serious shadow over chances for peace.

The canonization of St. Charbel Mahhlouf was the first ever performed in the Vatican for member of an Eastern Rite church since the Vatican proclaimed new sainthood procedures four centuries ago.

Assisting the Pope in the two-hour and 15-minute canonization Mass was Antoine Pierre Khreish, patriarch of the Maronites. It was the first such joint service in an Eastern Rite Primate in a Latin Rite Mass.

AS A concession to the Eastern Churches that recognize papal authority, the service included several phrases in ancient Syrian.

In Lebanon, thousands of Maronite Christians traveled to St. Charbel's monastery in the town of Anaya Sunday, and many of the pilgrims said they witnessed miracles.

One Lebanese woman reported a 2-year-old child paralyzed from birth began to move his legs after they were touched to a statue of the saint. Other pilgrims, many of whom walked barefoot up a 15-mile slope to the site, repeated the story.

A 13-year-old boy reportedly paralyzed by polio "threw down his crutches and walked" after being held up to the statue, the witnesses said.

About 15,000 persons crowded into St. Peter's Basilica, the world's largest church, for the canonization ceremony. Among them were about 12,000 Maronite Christians from Lebanon.

LEADING the official Lebanese delegation was former Lebanese President Charles Helov. In a separate delegation also received by the Pope was Christian militant leader Pierre Gemayel, leader of the fight against Moslems and Palestinians in Lebanon.

The Pope referred to the Lebanese fighting in a French language discourse during the canonization Mass.

"The fermnt of recent events brings deep lines to the face and throws a serious shadow on the road toward peace," the Pope said. "But you know our sympathy and affection are constantly with you and you hold a firm faith in the renewed cooperation among all the children of Lebanon."

Nakhlouf, a monk of the Maronite order, was born in 1828 at Bega' Kafra and spent the last 23 years of his life living as a hermit. He died on Christmas Eve 1898.

During his period as a hermit he never appeared in public with his face exposed.

He was made a "blessed" of the church in Vatican ceremonies in 1965 because of his renowed humility and numerous miracles attributed to his intercession following his death.

Uganda marks 15th year of freedom

President Idi Amin of Uganda observed the 15th anniversary of Ugandan independence Sunday with an appeal to black African nations to form a liberation army to fight against Rhodesia and South Africa. Amin also threatened to renege on debts resulting from the collapse of the East African community that had joined Uganda with neighboring Kenya and Tanzania. Amin's speech was broadcast by Radio Kampala, as in previous years, but the Ugandan dictator did not read the address himself.

Bomb blast at U.S. club in Greece

A bomb exploded outside a U.S. noncommissioned officers' club near Athens, Greece, airport during a rock concert early Sunday, but the only damage was broken glass, police said. An American spokesman said there were about 100 persons in the club for a rock concert by a group called "Two Percy Sledge," but no one was hurt. The club serves NCOs attached to the American facility at Athens airport.

Nigerian ruler to arrive today

The visit this week of Nigerian ruler Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo expected to result in a joint denunciation of oppression of blacks in South Africa as well as Rhodesia, and increased U.S. aid to Nigeria. Obasanjo, scheduled to arrive this evening, has both aid and condemnation of South Africa and Rhodesia high on his agenda for his talks with President Carter Tuesday, according to Nigerian Ambassador Olujimi Jolroso. Asked if a new initiative concerning blacks in South Africa itself is planned, Joloso told reporters Nigeria expects "as a result of this meeting, something positive will arise." Nigeria is the only African country President Carter will visit during his four continent trip in November.

Nazi Calif. rallies result in brawls

Helmeted members of the American Nazi Party chanting "white power" battled opponents in two violent weekend incidents in California. Ten party members marched into a rally in an Oakland park where 3,000 persons were demonstrating Saturday against white engineer Allan Bakke's court move to enter a University of California medical school on grounds he was barred because of a minority admissions program. In San Jose, meanwhile, Nazis who had gained a rally permit in an uproarious city council session clashed with foes in an egg, rock and fist-throwing brawl Saturday in which eight persons were arrested. There were bloody noses and other injuries in the Oakland incident, which began when the group of Nazis, wearing brown shifts and boots, marched into the anti-Bakke rally in San Antonio Park in drill formation, shouting "White Power Now" and carrying signs saying "Bakke Equals White Power."

Cubans aided Weathermen: FBI

An FBI report says Cuban espionage agents operating in the United States and Canada gave limited help to the Weather Underground in the late 1960s and early 1970s, it was reported Sunday. The militant antiwar organization also received some technical aid from North Vietnam, according to the 400-page report, but the FBI found no evidence that the Soviet Union or China ever tried to stir up U.S. dissidents, the New York Times reported. A Justice Dept. spokesman confirmed a report was prepared about a year ago by the FBI's Chicago office "linking the Cubans and Castro with the Weathermen." An FBI spokesman said it had been "alluded to in the media several months ago," but he declined to comment further.

ERA deadline extension studied

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell said Sunday the Justice Dept. is preparing an opinion on whether the Constitution permits a deadline exension for ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. Bell said the opinion on ERA was requested by the White House — which supports the amendment — and he expects department attorneys to complete it within a week to 10 days. "They've been working on it for almost two weeks," Bell said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" program. The proposed 27th amendment to the Constitution has been ratified by 35 of the required 38 states, but backers have little hope of finding three more states before the seven-year period allowed for ratification expires in March, 1979.

U.S. LSD tests Russian incited

Reports that Russia had bought 50 million doses of LSD from a Swiss laboratory triggered a series of U.S. Army tests with the drug, it was disclosed Sunday. Documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act by attorneys for an ex-soldier interrogated with LSD mentioned that the Soviet Union was experimenting with 50 million units it had bought from the Swiss lab. The documents, however, did not detail Soviet interest in the hallucinatory drug. But they said Russian interest in LSD prompted the Army Intelligence Board and the Chemical Laboratory to begin experiments in 1955. On Friday, James Thornwell, 40, of Oakland, Calif., said that while he was a soldier in 1961 he was surreptitiously given LSD as part of an army interrogation in Europe that left him psychologically disabled.

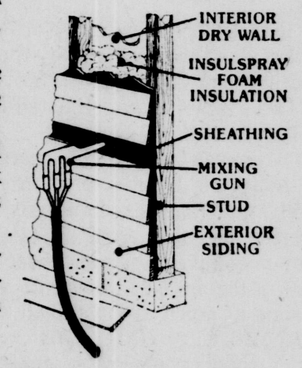
In hot weather it works just as well to keep cool air in. Insulspray makes your home more comfortable to live in and much more economical to live with.

What is Insulspray?
Insulspray is a non-toxic, two-part insulation system made of liquid urea-formaldehyde resin plus a hardener containing a foaming agent.
The urea-formaldehyde and hardener are fed, under pressure, into a specifically designed mixing gun. The two components are ejected from the gun as a liquid foam consisting of millions of tiny air cells, highly effective in reducing heat loss in winter and heat intake in summer.

How is Insulspray installed?
Insulspray is installed from the outside, without mess, and usually in one day.
It is applied directly into the hollow stud space within the outer walls of your home. It flows up and down, around obstacles and fills every crack and crevice. Insulspray leaves no uninsulated pockets.
In a few days, the foam completely sets and forms a permanent insulating layer within the wall cavity.



What are the advantages?
First and foremost, Insulspray reduces costly heat loss through the walls of your home where it occurs most. It sets up a barrier to block the natural tendency of heat to flow from warm to cold surfaces of building materials. Consequently, your home stays warmer in winter, cooler in summer. And your fuel costs drop considerably.

Lebanese hermit made saint in Papal ceremony

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI declared a 19th-century Lebanese hermit monk a saint Sunday, choosing the occasion to note recent events in the Middle East are throwing a serious shadow over chances for peace.

The canonization of St. Charbel Mahhlouf was the first ever performed in the Vatican for member of an Eastern Rite church since the Vatican proclaimed new sainthood procedures four centuries ago.

Assisting the Pope in the two-hour and 15-minute canonization Mass was Antoine Pierre Khreish, patriarch of the Maronites. It was the first such joint service in an Eastern Rite Primate in a Latin Rite Mass.

AS A concession to the Eastern Churches that recognize papal authority, the service included several phrases in ancient Syrian.

In Lebanon, thousands of Maronite Christians traveled to St. Charbel's monastery in the town of Anaya Sunday, and many of the pilgrims said they witnessed miracles.

One Lebanese woman reported a 2-year-old child paralyzed from birth began to move his legs after they were touched to a statue of the saint. Other pilgrims, many of whom walked barefoot up a 15-mile slope to the site, repeated the story.

A 13-year-old boy reportedly paralyzed by polio "threw down his crutches and walked" after being held up to the statue, the witnesses said.

About 15,000 persons crowded into St. Peter's Basilica, the world's largest church, for the canonization ceremony. Among them were about 12,000 Maronite Christians from Lebanon.

LEADING the official Lebanese delegation was former Lebanese President Charles Helov. In a separate delegation also received by the Pope was Christian militant leader Pierre Gemayel, leader of the fight against Moslems and Palestinians in Lebanon.

The Pope referred to the Lebanese fighting in a French language discourse during the canonization Mass.

"The fermnt of recent events brings deep lines to the face and throws a serious shadow on the road toward peace," the Pope said. "But you know our sympathy and affection are constantly with you and you hold a firm faith in the renewed cooperation among all the children of Lebanon."

Nakhlouf, a monk of the Maronite order, was born in 1828 at Bega' Kafra and spent the last 23 years of his life living as a hermit. He died on Christmas Eve 1898.

During his period as a hermit he never appeared in public with his face exposed.

He was made a "blessed" of the church in Vatican ceremonies in 1965 because of his renowed humility and numerous miracles attributed to his intercession following his death.

Uganda marks 15th year of freedom

President Idi Amin of Uganda observed the 15th anniversary of Ugandan independence Sunday with an appeal to black African nations to form a liberation army to fight against Rhodesia and South Africa. Amin also threatened to renege on debts resulting from the collapse of the East African community that had joined Uganda with neighboring Kenya and Tanzania. Amin's speech was broadcast by Radio Kampala, as in previous years, but the Ugandan dictator did not read the address himself.

Bomb blast at U.S. club in Greece

A bomb exploded outside a U.S. noncommissioned officers' club near Athens, Greece, airport during a rock concert early Sunday, but the only damage was broken glass, police said. An American spokesman said there were about 100 persons in the club for a rock concert by a group called "Two Percy Sledge," but no one was hurt. The club serves NCOs attached to the American facility at Athens airport.

Nigerian ruler to arrive today

The visit this week of Nigerian ruler Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo expected to result in a joint denunciation of oppression of blacks in South Africa as well as Rhodesia, and increased U.S. aid to Nigeria. Obasanjo, scheduled to arrive this evening, has both aid and condemnation of South Africa and Rhodesia high on his agenda for his talks with President Carter Tuesday, according to Nigerian Ambassador Olujimi Jolroso. Asked if a new initiative concerning blacks in South Africa itself is planned, Joloso told reporters Nigeria expects "as a result of this meeting, something positive will arise." Nigeria is the only African country President Carter will visit during his four continent trip in November.

Nazi Calif. rallies result in brawls

Helmeted members of the American Nazi Party chanting "white power" battled opponents in two violent weekend incidents in California. Ten party members marched into a rally in an Oakland park where 3,000 persons were demonstrating Saturday against white engineer Allan Bakke's court move to enter a University of California medical school on grounds he was barred because of a minority admissions program. In San Jose, meanwhile, Nazis who had gained a rally permit in an uproarious city council session clashed with foes in an egg, rock and fist-throwing brawl Saturday in which eight persons were arrested. There were bloody noses and other injuries in the Oakland incident, which began when the group of Nazis, wearing brown shifts and boots, marched into the anti-Bakke rally in San Antonio Park in drill formation, shouting "White Power Now" and carrying signs saying "Bakke Equals White Power."

Cubans aided Weathermen: FBI

An FBI report says Cuban espionage agents operating in the United States and Canada gave limited help to the Weather Underground in the late 1960s and early 1970s, it was reported Sunday. The militant antiwar organization also received some technical aid from North Vietnam, according to the 400-page report, but the FBI found no evidence that the Soviet Union or China ever tried to stir up U.S. dissidents, the New York Times reported. A Justice Dept. spokesman confirmed a report was prepared about a year ago by the FBI's Chicago office "linking the Cubans and Castro with the Weathermen." An FBI spokesman said it had been "alluded to in the media several months ago," but he declined to comment further.

ERA deadline extension studied

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell said Sunday the Justice Dept. is preparing an opinion on whether the Constitution permits a deadline exension for ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. Bell said the opinion on ERA was requested by the White House — which supports the amendment — and he expects department attorneys to complete it within a week to 10 days. "They've been working on it for almost two weeks," Bell said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" program. The proposed 27th amendment to the Constitution has been ratified by 35 of the required 38 states, but backers have little hope of finding three more states before the seven-year period allowed for ratification expires in March, 1979.

U.S. LSD tests Russian incited

Reports that Russia had bought 50 million doses of LSD from a Swiss laboratory triggered a series of U.S. Army tests with the drug, it was disclosed Sunday. Documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act by attorneys for an ex-soldier interrogated with LSD mentioned that the Soviet Union was experimenting with 50 million units it had bought from the Swiss lab. The documents, however, did not detail Soviet interest in the hallucinatory drug. But they said Russian interest in LSD prompted the Army Intelligence Board and the Chemical Laboratory to begin experiments in 1955. On Friday, James Thornwell, 40, of Oakland, Calif., said that while he was a soldier in 1961 he was surreptitiously given LSD as part of an army interrogation in Europe that left him psychologically disabled.

M. STUART LOOP has moved his Buffalo Grove family 17 times in the past 19 years. As a result of the moves, his daughter Cheri, right, attended 10 different elementary schools.

Family mobility prevails

The dream of children that their families will settle down and live in one place forever is an unlikely one for the average American.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census estimates that the average American moves 14 times during his lifetime.

A fifth of all Americans are reported to move one or more times a year, and the pattern appears to be followed in the Northwest suburbs.

Residential mobility is mirrored in the schools, with Northwest suburban school districts reporting student turnover rates as high as 41.5 per cent.

While the turnover is highest in Keeneyville Dist. 20, Palatine Township Dist. 15 and Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96, almost every district has at least one school with an outstandingly high turnover. Usually these are schools receiving students almost exclusively from apartments and townhouses.

Stevenson School, which serves students from the apartment complexes near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling, "turns over like the ocean every day," Wheeling Township Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said.

Last year was a relatively stable year for the school because the turnover was down to 24 per cent, Stevenson Principal Virginia Sonntag said. Ninety six students transferred in and 105 withdrew.

Job transfers, unemployment, divorce and the desire for larger quarters all contribute to local mobility.

Unsettling school days recalled

books and cover material in different sequences and at different paces, Cheri often was ahead of or behind new classmates through no fault of her own, Mrs. Loop said.

When she transferred to a Pennsylvania school midway through third grade, Cheri's new classmates were still priting though she had learned to still printing though she had learned to write script earlier in the year in

"I kept getting those little notes home saying we do not do cursive writing until the fourth grade," she recalled. "I had to tell Cheri to print and then sent a note to her teacher telling her I had done so."

Cheri simply resigned herself to printing and to this day still prints when she has a letter to write, she said.

SHE ALSO RESIGNED herself to rereading history and readings texts as the family moved from district to district, Cheri said. When she told her teachers she had read the books before they told her to read them again because they were all they had, she said.

"I was bored, but there wasn't much I could do about it," Cheri said.

Nor was there much she or her parents could do when she was delayed a year starting her foreign language study in junior high school.

THE OHIO SCHOOL she entered in eighth grade offered beginning foreign language instruction for seventh graders, but would not allow her to enter the class as an eighth grader because they said it would "mess up the records," Cheri said. Instead, she was placed in an accelerated reading class and had to wait until she started high school to take a foreign language.

Still, some of Cheri's biggest problems were social rather than academic. Mrs. Loop said she still wonders what impact this had on her daughter.

In moving from the South to the North Cheri found herself ridiculed because of her accent and her clothing, and she remembers being alone a lot.

"In the South we wore anklets because knee socks were uncomfortable in the heat, but I found out quickly that anklets didn't go over big in Ohio," Cheri said.

She was in ninth grade before she finally developed close friendships and her dream when she was younger was that her family would "stay put," she said.

The chart shows the number of students who transferred in and out of Northwest suburban school districts between September 1975 and June 1976, the last year the Illinois Office of Education required school districts to report such movement. The conservative figures do not reflect movement which occurs during the summer. In the case of Palatine Township Dist. 15 where student movement is recorded from June to June, officials report 1,550 students transferred out of the district in 1975-76. The IOE figures show 60 students less transferring out.

25 students transfer in and out of her fourth grade Muir School class in a single year. From a class that started with 18 students last September, she said she lost seven children and gained 12 before the year was out.

The attitude of school and staff is essential to coping with the turnover.

"We take the attitude that we're happy to see them come and sorry to see them go" Osterberger said. "We try to be very aware and accepting and don't look upon the turnover as a burden."

THE IDEA IS TO make the children feel immediately welcome in their new school and indivudualize programs to meet their academic needs as quickly as possible.

The latter is not always easy because it can take anywhere from two days to six weeks to forever to obtain a new student's academic records. When they finally arrive, they may or may not tell school officials what they need to know to place the youngster.

In one instance, a sixth grade boy transferred into Prospect Heights Dist. 23 reading at a first grade level. Recent achievement test scores were the only information forwarded on him, Assistant Supt. Gerald McGovern said.

After two months of calling and writing letters asking Chicago school personnel for more information on the boy, Dist. 23 obtained the results of psychological tests the boy took while in kindergarten, McGovern said. By now it was May and too late to update the test.

"If that were a patient with health problems he would die before we could prescribe services," he said.

BECAUSE OF experiences like this one, teachers at Muir School in Schaumburg generally assume academic records are not coming and immediately do whatever testing is necessary to determine where to place new children in reading and math, Mrs. Ballard said.

"You waste too much time if you don't place the child quickly and accurately because some of them are with us only two or three months," she said. "We never assume we're going to have a child long enough to help him next year or even next week."

To discover gaps students may have in hteir basic skills because of switching schools, teachers at Muir rely on short, homemade tests.

"We have kids in the fourth grade who are in their sixth or seventh school," she said. "There's no way we can assume they know anything."

She recalled one third grade student she got who was reading at a fifth grade level but could not recite the alphabet.

"Sometimes I'm frightened to see how far children have come in school and how little they have mastered," Mrs. Ballard said.

WITH so many students moving from school to school, teachers must learn to take a child coming in at any skill level, pick him up where he is and exit him at another skill level down the line, Ronald Warwick, professor at National College of Education in Evanston, said.

"When he leaves we must be able to send out accurate records of his performance so future teachers know exactly what skills he has mastered and where he needs help" the former assistant superintendent in Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96 said. "Skill level and not grade level is what's important when you're getting so many different students in and out all the time."

A survey taken at Schaumburg's Armstrong School in June showed that only 25 of the 100 kindergartners who started there six years ago were still at the school, Principal Osterberger said.

AND IN Elgin Area Unit Dist. 46, about half of the 1,820 eighth graders graduating in 1973 had been in the district since kindergarten, Robert Boyd, pupil personnel director, said.

"The turnover in the district is higher than these numbers indicate," he said. "Maybe people come in two types — movers and stayers."

Some students who move regularly tend to show up on school social workers' caseloads, officials say. In these cases, however, the move isn't the child's only problem. Most likely, the move follows a divorce or separation or is the result of family financial difficulties.

"If the children feel th family unit isn't stable, it shakes their self confidence," Marty Lacey, social worker at Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows, said. "The child who doesn't have a good self concept to begin with runs into big problems when he's placed in unfamiliar surroundings."

WHERE FAMILIES have no real feeling of permanence or belonging, children often are affected to the point where they won't try to make friends, she said.

"They don't want to be hurt so they adopt the attitude that making friends isn't worth the effort," Mrs. Lacey said."They take an almost aggressive stand of 'I don't care if people like me or not' when in truth they do care very much."

To help them understand and work with the child whose emotional problems ofen prevent him from succeeding academically, teachers at Steven son School in Wheeling this year will attend in-service workships sponsored by Omni House, a social service agency operating in Wheeling Township.

The majority of children who transfer into a new school district, however, adjust fairly quickly without the aid of social workers of psychologists, officials say.

THE REASON FOR the move, parents' attitudes toward it, a child's own personality and the attitude of the new school and staff the child encounters determines how well he adjusts, social workers say.

At Schaumburg's Armstrong School where 400 students annually transfer in and out, the student council has made an orientation film to acquaint new children with the school and its faces. Groups of new students view the film every two weeks.

Teachers use a variety of measures to make children feel at home in their new surroundings. Some keep new students after class to talk to them and get to know them better. Others try to display new students' work as soon as possible to show their talent and build their ego. Still others try to impress upon a transfer student that they are not the only new child in the class. Almost all teachers pair new children up with a buddy who shows them around and helps them make friends.

"Because they're so used to change themselves, the children are unbelievably accepting of new students," Mrs. Ballard said.

THE REAL STRUGGLE is in communicating with and involving parents of the more mobile students.

To combat this problem, Willow Bend School's PTA this year is going to take a Welcome Wagon type approach and call to invite new parents to meetings. Other schools provide a parent handbook and send home weekly newsletters.

"You never dare think that just because you told them something last year they'll remember it," Lorita Langley, assistant superintendent for special services in Palatine Township Dist. 15 said. "It's a whole different group of parents you're facing."

books and cover material in different sequences and at different paces, Cheri often was ahead of or behind new classmates through no fault of her own, Mrs. Loop said.

When she transferred to a Pennsylvania school midway through third grade, Cheri's new classmates were still priting though she had learned to still printing though she had learned to write script earlier in the year in

"I kept getting those little notes home saying we do not do cursive writing until the fourth grade," she recalled. "I had to tell Cheri to print and then sent a note to her teacher telling her I had done so."

Cheri simply resigned herself to printing and to this day still prints when she has a letter to write, she said.

SHE ALSO RESIGNED herself to rereading history and readings texts as the family moved from district to district, Cheri said. When she told her teachers she had read the books before they told her to read them again because they were all they had, she said.

"I was bored, but there wasn't much I could do about it," Cheri said.

Nor was there much she or her parents could do when she was delayed a year starting her foreign language study in junior high school.

THE OHIO SCHOOL she entered in eighth grade offered beginning foreign language instruction for seventh graders, but would not allow her to enter the class as an eighth grader because they said it would "mess up the records," Cheri said. Instead, she was placed in an accelerated reading class and had to wait until she started high school to take a foreign language.

Still, some of Cheri's biggest problems were social rather than academic. Mrs. Loop said she still wonders what impact this had on her daughter.

In moving from the South to the North Cheri found herself ridiculed because of her accent and her clothing, and she remembers being alone a lot.

"In the South we wore anklets because knee socks were uncomfortable in the heat, but I found out quickly that anklets didn't go over big in Ohio," Cheri said.

She was in ninth grade before she finally developed close friendships and her dream when she was younger was that her family would "stay put," she said.

The chart shows the number of students who transferred in and out of Northwest suburban school districts between September 1975 and June 1976, the last year the Illinois Office of Education required school districts to report such movement. The conservative figures do not reflect movement which occurs during the summer. In the case of Palatine Township Dist. 15 where student movement is recorded from June to June, officials report 1,550 students transferred out of the district in 1975-76. The IOE figures show 60 students less transferring out.

25 students transfer in and out of her fourth grade Muir School class in a single year. From a class that started with 18 students last September, she said she lost seven children and gained 12 before the year was out.

The attitude of school and staff is essential to coping with the turnover.

"We take the attitude that we're happy to see them come and sorry to see them go" Osterberger said. "We try to be very aware and accepting and don't look upon the turnover as a burden."

THE IDEA IS TO make the children feel immediately welcome in their new school and indivudualize programs to meet their academic needs as quickly as possible.

The latter is not always easy because it can take anywhere from two days to six weeks to forever to obtain a new student's academic records. When they finally arrive, they may or may not tell school officials what they need to know to place the youngster.

In one instance, a sixth grade boy transferred into Prospect Heights Dist. 23 reading at a first grade level. Recent achievement test scores were the only information forwarded on him, Assistant Supt. Gerald McGovern said.

After two months of calling and writing letters asking Chicago school personnel for more information on the boy, Dist. 23 obtained the results of psychological tests the boy took while in kindergarten, McGovern said. By now it was May and too late to update the test.

"If that were a patient with health problems he would die before we could prescribe services," he said.

BECAUSE OF experiences like this one, teachers at Muir School in Schaumburg generally assume academic records are not coming and immediately do whatever testing is necessary to determine where to place new children in reading and math, Mrs. Ballard said.

"You waste too much time if you don't place the child quickly and accurately because some of them are with us only two or three months," she said. "We never assume we're going to have a child long enough to help him next year or even next week."

To discover gaps students may have in hteir basic skills because of switching schools, teachers at Muir rely on short, homemade tests.

"We have kids in the fourth grade who are in their sixth or seventh school," she said. "There's no way we can assume they know anything."

She recalled one third grade student she got who was reading at a fifth grade level but could not recite the alphabet.

"Sometimes I'm frightened to see how far children have come in school and how little they have mastered," Mrs. Ballard said.

WITH so many students moving from school to school, teachers must learn to take a child coming in at any skill level, pick him up where he is and exit him at another skill level down the line, Ronald Warwick, professor at National College of Education in Evanston, said.

"When he leaves we must be able to send out accurate records of his performance so future teachers know exactly what skills he has mastered and where he needs help" the former assistant superintendent in Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96 said. "Skill level and not grade level is what's important when you're getting so many different students in and out all the time."

A survey taken at Schaumburg's Armstrong School in June showed that only 25 of the 100 kindergartners who started there six years ago were still at the school, Principal Osterberger said.

AND IN Elgin Area Unit Dist. 46, about half of the 1,820 eighth graders graduating in 1973 had been in the district since kindergarten, Robert Boyd, pupil personnel director, said.

"The turnover in the district is higher than these numbers indicate," he said. "Maybe people come in two types — movers and stayers."

Some students who move regularly tend to show up on school social workers' caseloads, officials say. In these cases, however, the move isn't the child's only problem. Most likely, the move follows a divorce or separation or is the result of family financial difficulties.

"If the children feel th family unit isn't stable, it shakes their self confidence," Marty Lacey, social worker at Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows, said. "The child who doesn't have a good self concept to begin with runs into big problems when he's placed in unfamiliar surroundings."

WHERE FAMILIES have no real feeling of permanence or belonging, children often are affected to the point where they won't try to make friends, she said.

"They don't want to be hurt so they adopt the attitude that making friends isn't worth the effort," Mrs. Lacey said. "They take an almost aggressive stand of 'I don't care if people like me or not' when in truth they do care very much."

To help them understand and work with the child whose emotional problems ofen prevent him from succeeding academically, teachers at Steven son School in Wheeling this year will attend in-service workships sponsored by Omni House, a social service agency operating in Wheeling Township.

The majority of children who transfer into a new school district, however, adjust fairly quickly without the aid of social workers of psychologists, officials say.

THE REASON FOR the move, parents' attitudes toward it, a child's own personality and the attitude of the new school and staff the child encounters determines how well he adjusts, social workers say.

At Schaumburg's Armstrong School where 400 students annually transfer in and out, the student council has made an orientation film to acquaint new children with the school and its faces. Groups of new students view the film every two weeks.

Teachers use a variety of measures to make children feel at home in their new surroundings. Some keep new students after class to talk to them and get to know them better. Others try to display new students' work as soon as possible to show their talent and build their ego. Still others try to impress upon a transfer student that they are not the only new child in the class. Almost all teachers pair new children up with a buddy who shows them around and helps them make friends.

"Because they're so used to change themselves, the children are unbelievably accepting of new students," Mrs. Ballard said.

THE REAL STRUGGLE is in communicating with and involving parents of the more mobile students.

To combat this problem, Willow Bend School's PTA this year is going to take a Welcome Wagon type approach and call to invite new parents to meetings. Other schools provide a parent handbook and send home weekly newsletters.

"You never dare think that just because you told them something last year they'll remember it," Lorita Langley, assistant superintendent for special services in Palatine Township Dist. 15 said. "It's a whole different group of parents you're facing."

Director likes 'busy bodies'

BGA: stalking corruption

by KURT BAER

J. Terrence Brunner never knows who or what will be at the other end of the telephone line.

A tip on a big political payoff. Evidence of patronage workers who work at loafing on the job. Or maybe the makins of next year's Pulitzer Prize.

Brunner is the hell-raising executive director of the Better Government Assn. and because he gets mad, things happen. Politicians get investigated. Newspaper headlines get made. And, sometimes, the system even gets better.

"I DO IT BECAUSE somebody in this town with just a little bit of influence ought to be saying, 'Let's stop and think what life is going to be like here 20 or 25 years from now,' " Brunner says.

"I just turned 40 and what amazes me is my naive belief in the system of government we have. I have a lot of genuine respect for what the Founding Fathers did. The system is supposed to work in a certain way. Government ought to respond and make life a little better. We need enlightened people to make that happen."

Brunner and his team of BGA investigators and attorneys have waged their moral wars in Chicago city precincts and suburban forest preserves. From the governor's office to storefront Medicaid mills, the BGA has exposed government, waste, corruption and conflict of interest.

BGA makes big headlines by catching big politicians in big swindles. But Brunner is just as worried about the suburban zoning board member or village president.

"I THINK THE people who lived in the suburbs were sold out terribly by their public officials over the years," he says, referring to suburban sprawl. "One of the most important lessons I've learned in seven years at this job is the importance of having honest, intelligent, hard working people in key positions in the suburbs.

"The obscure man on a zoning board is one that's terribly important because he confronts the threshold issues. When you decide to put high-rise buildings in a suburban area planned for single-family homes you are saddling an area with problems of sewers, schools and urban blight that people will be living with for 30 years."

The BGA, like the U.S. attorney or investigative reporters can blow the whistle from time to time, Brunner says. "But the BGA cannot clean up suburb after suburb. The only way is to have an interested citizenry; they're the ones who have to watch what gets into office.

"My hat goes off to all the 'busybody' ladies who the politicians always complain about. They're the ones who are always there."

BRUNNER'S wide-eyed, good-government idealism goes back at least to his high school days at Loyola Academy in Wilmette, where he said his Jesuit instructors impressed upon him that right is always better than wrong. A graduate in political science from the University of Wisconsin and then Loyola University Law School, almost all of Brunner's professional life has been a quixotic chase after wrongdoers.

of the Pittsburgh strike. Executive Director of the BGA. Brunner has routed a fair amount of crime and corruption in 13 years.

Along the way he has developed a sensitivity to the problems of the middle class, people he says are forgotten and exploited by government.

"If you live in the suburbs, what do you get for your tax money? There doesn't seem to be any concern from public officials about these people. I think government ought to be encouraging people to buy houses, keep them up and educate their kids," he says.

"SUBURBAN VOTERS are terribly concerned about the squeeze of inflation and taxes. If their salaries are inflated, all it's done is put them in a higher tax bracket."

As a result, suburban voters are issue conscious and not concerned with old party labels or antique ways of slating candidates.

"The 'Big Game' has always been Chicago. But the people in the suburbs don't care all that much about what's going on in Chicago. They care about what affects them where they live.

"Politics are now dominated by the suburbs and the ring counties and they in turn are dominated by television. That's where they get their news.

"The old concept of slating candidates is completely out of date. Suburban voters are less identified with ethnic groups or with the church. Politicians don't understand this at all."

BRUNNER'S LATEST crusade is directed against Gov. Jim Thompson, whose 1976 campaign was financed in part by contributions from companies doing business with and regulated by the state.

Such contributions are not illegal, but the BGA has a history of chastising politicians, including former Gov. Dan Walker, who accept the money and take on the appearance of impropriety.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," Brunner says. "When the same people who give to Jim Thompson gave to Dan Walker the only reason they give is because they are going to get something from the state.

"It's like the state is a big McDonald's stand. You go there with your money and take something back."

BRUNNER CITES big contributions from road builders and Thompson's decision to approve the Crosstown Expressway in Chicago as a prime example of the conflict of interest problem.

"These kinds of decision like the Crosstown, new subways or the MSD Deep Tunnel projects, are so tough I just don't think a governor ought to be bringing along any excess baggage, he says.

"Thompson's response has been to say, 'Trust me guys, I'm different. I can take money from all kinds of guys and not be influenced.' But that's what Dan Walker said. That's what they all say. Ours is a government of laws, not men. And we've got to build in some safeguards," Brunner says.

Thompson is in a position to recommend changes in the state campaign financing laws, or at least announce that he will not accept contributions from state contract holders in his current campaign, he says.

"I WOULD LIKE to see some guys who are statesmen in the governor's office."

But overall, Brunner gives Thompson high marks for opening up state government. "We went from a position of open welfare with Dan Walker to a position where Jim Thompson has done a lot of the things we always wanted done. I think he's really trying, trying to be a good government governor."

Government and politics, the lifeblood of BGA, is changing, and Brunner knows it. The Thompson administration lacks what he calls Walker's "circle the wagon mentality." Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic is, by all appearances, a more tolerant man than the late Mayor Daley.

"There is a swing of political power to the suburbs, which Brunner says, "mystifies me in a way, they are so big."

But corruption, like sin, is as old as man and there will always be political Goliaths to be felled.

"We're sitting here just like everybody else, trying to figure out what the new rules are and how to play the game," he says.

'Brain death' should be the law: doctors' panel

CHICAGO (UPI) — A man is dead when his brain stops functioning and laws should reflect that definition, six New York doctors said in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The article argues strongly for acceptance of brain death as the legal definition of human death. Some states still define death in other ways or fail to provide uniform definition, leading to complex legal questions about medical treatment.

"We are convinced that society now has sufficient philosophical certainty . . . to use destruction of the brain as an indicator that the person has died," the team said.

"THE PURPOSES of this communication are to contribute to a resolution of the controversy and thereby to facilitate passage of statutes recognizing brain death . . ."

The doctors who contributed to the article include representatives of the Montefiore Hospital and Albert Einstein College of Medicine; the Departments of Biology and Talmudic Law at Yeshiva University: the Institute of Society, Ethics and Life Sciences, and the New York City Health and Hospitals Corp.

"The prinicipal reason for deciding that a person is dead should be based on a fundamental understanding of the nature of man," the doctors said.

"Without a brain, the body becomes the convenient medium in which the energy, requiring states of organs run down and the organs decay. These residual activities do not confer an iota of humanity or personality."

The doctors further reasoned:

THE CONCEPT of death when the brain stops functioning is at odds with neither Orthodox Jewish nor Roman Catholic dogma.

The Orthodox Jewish position allows a distinction between cell life and the total life of an individual. By that definition, "there is no religious imperative to continue to use a respirator . . in an otherwise dead patient."

In Roman Catholic thought, the primary concept of death is separation of the soul from the body. Since that event cannot be observed, theologians have accepted outward signs such as the end of heartbeats and breathing as marking death. But recent teaching holds that if such outward signs are admitted to show death, the underlying cause of brain death is an even more certain symptom of death.

While there is no consistent Protestant position, many Protestant theologians have accepted the end of brain function as the indicator of death, the doctors argued.

The accepted definition of brain death was worked out at Harvard Medical School in 1968. It includes: "Unreceptivity, unresponsiveness, absense of spontaneous movements and breathing, absent reflexes, fixed dilated pupils, and persistence of these findings over a 24-hour period in the absence of intoxicants or hypothermia."

THOUGHTS on a MATTRESS

For almost five years our little mattress factory has been doing an ever increasing business by attracting the astute, intelligent customer with the experience to recognize the difference between some so-called "discount" or "sale" price and a top quality product at a low price.

And we would like to emphasize one point - this is a FACTORY - not a "Factory Outlet" or "Factory Closeout Mart" or some other rip-off of just another retail store. We actually make our mattresses and box springs right here before your very eyes.

Out mattresses and box springs are made with top quality materials and specifications that have been proven over many years. Our prices are based on the cost of the materials that go into each product that we make. And we know that when you compare quality for quality, our prices are very, very low.

I guess that is why so many customers who have shopped all the so-called "sale" priced mattresses in the area come back and buy ours.

Incidentally, our service is excellent, too.

BRUNNER'S LATEST crusade is directed against Gov. Jim Thompson, whose 1976 campaign was financed in part by contributions from companies doing business with and regulated by the state.

Such contributions are not illegal, but the BGA has a history of chastising politicians, including former Gov. Dan Walker, who accept the money and take on the appearance of impropriety.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," Brunner says. "When the same people who give to Jim Thompson gave to Dan Walker the only reason they give is because they are going to get something from the state.

"It's like the state is a big McDonald's stand. You go there with your money and take something back."

BRUNNER CITES big contributions from road builders and Thompson's decision to approve the Crosstown Expressway in Chicago as a prime example of the conflict of interest problem.

"These kinds of decision like the Crosstown, new subways or the MSD Deep Tunnel projects, are so tough I just don't think a governor ought to be bringing along any excess baggage, he says.

"Thompson's response has been to say, 'Trust me guys, I'm different. I can take money from all kinds of guys and not be influenced.' But that's what Dan Walker said. That's what they all say. Ours is a government of laws, not men. And we've got to build in some safeguards," Brunner says.

Thompson is in a position to recommend changes in the state campaign financing laws, or at least announce that he will not accept contributions from state contract holders in his current campaign, he says.

"I WOULD LIKE to see some guys who are statesmen in the governor's office."

But overall, Brunner gives Thompson high marks for opening up state government. "We went from a position of open welfare with Dan Walker to a position where Jim Thompson has done a lot of the things we always wanted done. I think he's really trying, trying to be a good government governor."

Government and politics, the lifeblood of BGA, is changing, and Brunner knows it. The Thompson administration lacks what he calls Walker's "circle the wagon mentality." Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic is, by all appearances, a more tolerant man than the late Mayor Daley.

"There is a swing of political power to the suburbs, which Brunner says, "mystifies me in a way, they are so big."

But corruption, like sin, is as old as man and there will always be political Goliaths to be felled.

"We're sitting here just like everybody else, trying to figure out what the new rules are and how to play the game," he says.

'Brain death' should be the law: doctors' panel

CHICAGO (UPI) — A man is dead when his brain stops functioning and laws should reflect that definition, six New York doctors said in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The article argues strongly for acceptance of brain death as the legal definition of human death. Some states still define death in other ways or fail to provide uniform definition, leading to complex legal questions about medical treatment.

"We are convinced that society now has sufficient philosophical certainty . . . to use destruction of the brain as an indicator that the person has died," the team said.

"THE PURPOSES of this communication are to contribute to a resolution of the controversy and thereby to facilitate passage of statutes recognizing brain death . . ."

The doctors who contributed to the article include representatives of the Montefiore Hospital and Albert Einstein College of Medicine; the Departments of Biology and Talmudic Law at Yeshiva University: the Institute of Society, Ethics and Life Sciences, and the New York City Health and Hospitals Corp.

"The prinicipal reason for deciding that a person is dead should be based on a fundamental understanding of the nature of man," the doctors said.

"Without a brain, the body becomes the convenient medium in which the energy, requiring states of organs run down and the organs decay. These residual activities do not confer an iota of humanity or personality."

The doctors further reasoned:

THE CONCEPT of death when the brain stops functioning is at odds with neither Orthodox Jewish nor Roman Catholic dogma.

The Orthodox Jewish position allows a distinction between cell life and the total life of an individual. By that definition, "there is no religious imperative to continue to use a respirator . . . in an otherwise dead patient."

In Roman Catholic thought, the primary concept of death is separation of the soul from the body. Since that event cannot be observed, theologians have accepted outward signs such as the end of heartbeats and breathing as marking death. But recent teaching holds that if such outward signs are admitted to show death, the underlying cause of brain death is an even more certain symptom of death.

While there is no consistent Protestant position, many Protestant theologians have accepted the end of brain function as the indicator of death, the doctors argued.

The accepted definition of brain death was worked out at Harvard Medical School in 1968. It includes: "Unreceptivity, unresponsiveness, absense of spontaneous movements and breathing, absent reflexes, fixed dilated pupils, and persistence of these findings over a 24-hour period in the absence of intoxicants or hypothermia."

THOUGHTS on a MATTRESS

For almost five years our little mattress factory has been doing an ever increasing business by attracting the astute, intelligent customer with the experience to recognize the difference between some so-called "discount" or "sale" price and a top quality product at a low price.

And we would like to emphasize one point - this is a FACTORY - not a "Factory Outlet" or "Factory Closeout Mart" or some other rip-off of just another retail store. We actually make our mattresses and box springs right here before your very eyes.

Out mattresses and box springs are made with top quality materials and specifications that have been proven over many years. Our prices are based on the cost of the materials that go into each product that we make. And we know that when you compare quality for quality, our prices are very, very low.

I guess that is why so many customers who have shopped all the so-called "sale" priced mattresses in the area come back and buy ours.

Incidentally, our service is excellent, too.

sonnel at the caseworker level and ineffective law enforcement surround the problem.

"It appears to me that one of the major things that can be done to stop fraud and abuse is to get qualified people working at the caseworker level both in the unemployment system and the public aid system," Skinner said.

He said a new state personnel rule also has contributed to the problem because it encourages promotion on the basis of seniority rather than merit.

"I THINK WE have to address that. The job of caseworker is a very professional job and I think the thing we will be looking at is if there are ways to retain qualified people who have demonstrated ability," he said.

Lack of effective enforcement and punishment of welfare cheaters "is very critical," he said.

"THERE IS ALSO, we think, a very serious problem in the area if private industry and government's cooperation with the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid, and I think we're going to have to have legislation in that area to make it mandatory that employers cooperate," he said.

Skinner said stiffer penalties also are needed in the area of provider fraud since current laws now provide for only misdemeanor punishment and are not specific on whether a person can be disqualified from welfare upon conviction.

A bill sponsored by State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, is pending that would provide for a jail sentence of up to 20 years for persons convicted of fraudulently obtaining public aid money.

The task force's first findings are part of an "emergency phase" aimed at identifying "things that have to be done now," Skinner said.

But the panel's longrange goal is to prepare a study that will suggest improvements "that have to be made if the system is going to deliver good care."

The task force's preliminary findings will be sent to Thompson later this month, Skinner said. The panel also has scheduled a meeting with State Sen. Don A. Moore, R-Midlothian, and his Legislative Advisory Commission on Public Aid to discuss welfare reform legislation.

Prison 'lawyer' counsels inmates

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — G. Daniel Walker's prison cell is equipped with a color television set, law books, FBI reports about his life of crime and a $900 electric typewriter with which he knocks out scripts for cops and robbers TV shows.

Walker is a jailhouse lawyer, and from his 6-by-11-foot cell at Vacaville State Prison he uses his legal talent to help other prisoners — and even guards — out of problems ranging from divorce to medical malpractice.

"I make time work for me," said Walker, who was convicted four years ago for a murder he says he did not commit.

"Lawyers on the outside are too busy to handle the cases I do.

Despite his legal expertise, Walker is no lawyer. He has a law degree but never took a bar exam. He does say, however, that his life of crime began in Ohio when, on his way to pick up his date for a country club party one night, he decided to stick up a liquor store for thrills.

"After that, there were many robberies in many, many states," he says. "I came from a well-to-do family, and my whole life was done up on thrills."

Drunks not sweet on sober solution

Medical researchers have found a quick way to sober up a drunk. But taking the cure is no simple solution.

By drinking a quart of fructose, a very sweet sugar found in fruit juice and honey, a drunk can increase the rate of disappearance of alcohol from his body by 120 to 150 per cent, reports Dr. Frank L. Iber, a Baltimore physician writing in the Archives of Internal Medicine.

But the problem is convincing a drunk to choke down a quart of fructose solution.

"Is the benefit commensurate with the bother and cost of infusing a liter of 10 per cent fructose, or encouraging a lethargic patient to take a comparable amount orally?" Dr. Iber asks.

"No," is his answer, with the result that the only sure way for a drunk to sober up is to sleep it off.

HOW THE CAR FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK PROTECTS YOU FROM PEOPLE WHO DON'T.

As you may have observed, the roads of America are filled with people who make dumb mistakes.

Volvo was designed so you don't have to be the one to pay for them.

You get fade-resistant power disc brakes on all four wheels. To help you stop short of trouble before you run into it.

You get rack and pinion steering to help you steer clear of difficulties presented by others. And a spring-strut front suspension designed to hold the car steady and level even during a drastic evasive maneuver.

To avoid trouble, you have to see it. Which is why Volvo gives you 3,830 square inches of tinted glass, allowing you over 90% of your total horizontal field of view.

We've even tackled the problem of the guy who installs himself behind you at night with his brights on. We've installed a glare reducing outside rearview mirror.

And if you should ever run into trouble, Volvo can help you walk away.

Crumple zones front and rear absorb the impact of a collision before it reaches the passenger compartment. And the passenger compartment itself is surrounded by six steel pillars which have supported seven tons without buckling.

As long as you drive a car, you're going to be surrounded by people who do thoughtless things.

So protect yourself.

Surround yourself with a Volvo.

H C. PADDOCK. 1852 - 1935

Downtown firm a good choice

After nearly 20 years of talking and countless plans, downtown Arlington Heights appears headed for a major revitalization.

The village board has selected a development team headed by Crane Construction Co. of Chicago to conduct a six-month study on the feasibility of constructing a combination shopping mall, office center and parking garage in the downtown area.

It's an exciting proposal and the fact Arlington Heights could attract such a nationally known development team speaks highly for the village.

The village board is to be commended for selecting the Crane team for the revitalization project over the administration's recommendation that a team headed by J. R. Gotlieb Co. be selected because their project would be quicker to construct and less controversial, even though it would also be less desirable.

This is a project Arlington Heights is going to have to live with for years and it should be the best the village can get with every attempt made to save businesses that are now thriving.

Crane has put together a development team with the expertise to make the project a real boon for the downtown area and entire village.

The other members of the team, Welton-Becket and Associates, the architects, and Development Control Corp., the planners, have worked together on downtown revitalization projects in Green Bay, Wis., and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and have been involved in several other shopping mall and downtown projects.

Crane itself, has been involved in the planning and construction of 20 shopping malls. The company's work is highly visible in Chicago with their projects including Lakepoint Tower, Outer Drive East, Continental Plaza and other downtown office and apartment buildings.

Fortune and Engineering News magazines have called Crane the nation's leading general contractor.

With these credentials, it's hard to see how Arlington Heights could lose. It will be exciting to see what kind of proposal the development team presents to the village.

Towing rule goes too far

The Illinois Appellate Court ruling against firms which tow improperly parked autos from private property goes much too far in trying to eliminate admitted abuses.

The court has ruled that it is illegal for a towing firm to demand payment of towing fees before returning a car that has been towed from a private lot. The decision is likely either to put towing firms out of business or force owners of private lots to pay towing fees to rid their lots of lawless parkers.

There is no question that private towing firms have in the past abused persons whose cars they towed. The cases involving the infamous Lincoln Towing Service in Chicago are legend.

The abuses — which include charging outrageous fees and threatening those who don't pay — do not mean, however, that there is no place for private towing firms.

What, after all, is the owner of an apartment complex or business to do if the parking spaces provided for his tenants or employes are taken up by outsiders? Without recourse to private towing companies, parking lot owners are helpless.

What is needed are rules regulating private towing companies by requiring insurance and limiting the amount they are permitted to charge for the return of a car. In addition, rules should make clear that parking lots must be marked if they are patrolled by towing firms so drivers will have fair warning of their possible fate.

It makes sense to eliminate abuses by towing firms, but in modern urban society it makes no sense to eliminate towing firms entirely.

Rhonda Belle discovered a sure way to sympathy

Jim Bishop

There was a bird-like nervousness about Rhonda Belle. She removed her glasses and long earrings and placed them on a table. Her short dark hair was coiffed. She looked like any middle-aged housewife as she walked between two men, sat demurely in Alabama's electric chair, and died without a sigh.

Women poisoners are a breed. They use rat poison to settle family differences. Rhonda Belle liked to nurse the sick. She poisoned them, brought them back to health, and poisoned them again.

She was always plain looking. She had a figure like a housecoat on a hanger. Her mouth fell inward, the lips turned down in perpetual dismay. She tried to have a wart on her chin removed, but it flourished.

HER PEOPLE were poor. Rhonda Belle saw herself as a Southern lady. She was married at age 15, and asexual girl of limited knowledge. Most of her husbands — she had five — drank to unconsciousness.

The second marriage produced five daughters. Adelaide died aged three. For the first time, Rhonda Belle felt an aura of sympathy radiating towards her from relatives and friends. It was lovely and warm.

She wanted more. Emogene was 31 months old when her mother stirred rat poison in the milk. The baby died overnight. Rhonda — poor Rhonda — was overwhelmed with pity and affection. She bathed herself in sympathy.

There was another little girl. She died of jaundice before she was one. Her current husband, George Garrett, drank a lot of cheap booze. His wife poured the drinks. In three days, George was dead. "Pneumonia," Rhonda Belle said.

SHE WAS NOT A bright girl, but she learned how to use the medical profession. In each case of high fever, vomiting and paralysis, she called a different doctor each day. The last one signed a "natural causes" death certificate.

She had two pretty little girls, Carolyn and Ellyn Elizabeth. Momma made pretty frocks on an old treadle sewing machine and sent them to school with pink bows in their hair. It was dull.

Carolyn died in three days. "She ate too much candy at a birthday party," Rhonda Belle said. "It gave her complications." She began to bury her loved ones in adjoining plots. The woman's goal altered. She wanted to make people sick, then nurse them back to health.

She poisoned Ellyn, 11, a bit at a time. The child required one year to die. Rhonda Belle nursed her diligently. "She needed me," she said. Then the child "went to heaven." Five other daughters — Rhonda enjoyed repetitive pregnancies — expired of what mother called "natural causes."

SHE RAN OUT OF kids. So she moved in with her mother, Mary Gibbons, and poisoned the old lady's coffee. Grandma was buried next to the kiddies. Rhonda decided that there must be something to all this drinking and carousing, so she became a drunken prostitute.

The date on grandma's tombstone says: "Feb. 1944." There was a big war on. Also a small one inside a woman's head. She seduced a middle-aged male nurse and sweet-talked him into marriage. Ronda Belle became depressed. The male nurse asked why she had so much "hard luck."

She charged him with a kitchen knife. Talmade Gebson ran for cover and got a divorce. Rhonda Belle married a shop foreman from Selma. He had a giggling son named Ronald, who was serving a hitch in the Navy.

When the kid came home on leave Rhonda Belle seduced him. Daddy became so sick he was placed in a hospital. His wife brought him special coffee every day. The doctors said he died of an "obscure nervous disorder."

SHE MARRIED the son. Life was booze and sex. Ronald was too vigorous for Rhonda Belle, so he got special coffee. This slowed him. At the veterans hospital in Biloxi, no one could diagnose his illness. Every day, his dutiful wife drove two hours to visit and bring coffee.

One day a resident noticed white ringlets on Ronald's fingernails. He suspected arsenic poisoning. His wife was told "no visitors allowed." Police chemists examined his hair and found arsenic.

Rhonda Belle was arrested. She was 52. Her trial lasted one day. She confessed to poisoning two husbands, three daughters and her mother. That was enough for Alabama.

She sat serenely in the electric chair. Someone placed a black hood over her head. Rhonda Belle braced herself. A switch was thrown. Nothing happened. Poor Rhonda Belle. She had to wait 10 minutes for an electrician to locate a short circuit . . .

Iceberg sail might start a new fad

by DICK WEST
(The lighter side)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year's international award for creative thinking surely must go to Prince Mohammed Al Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

His plan for outfitting icebergs with paddlewheels, a la Mississippi riverboat, and sailing them from Antarctica to the Arabian Peninsula is truly a brilliant concept, even if Faisal isn't being feasible.

As he explained in a paper presented this week at a conference on iceberg utilization, the idea is to use the runoff from melting icebergs to augment the water supply in his arid homeland.

BUT IF THE iceberg fleet ever becomes operational, it also should produce a number of fringe benefits. And maybe a few that are beyond the fringe.

Some of those Antarctic icebergs are whoppers, twice the size of Connecticut. Obviously, they could transport a great many passengers if suitable accommodations were provided.

Obviously, too, the world is full of intrepid, well-heeled travelers who would pay handsomely for the privilege of taking an interoceanic cruise aboard a luxury iceberg.

One of the big selling points would be that they would never have to worry about keeping the beer cold.

FAISAL, I'M SURE, would want to hire professional ice skaters, possibly including the stars of "Ice Capades," to put on nightly shows.

Or, if Dorothy Hamill is already booked up, maybe he could train a troupe of penguins to entertain on deck.

He likewise might want to hire a top composer, some latter day Jerome Kern, to compose an original score for the occasion songs like "Here Comes the Show Berg" and "There's No Business Like Floe Business."

The big problem probably would be crooked gamblers. Show bergs undoubtedly would attract their share of fancy dressed card sharks bent on fleecing the passengers.

IT WOULD ADD to the fun if the show berg made stops at various ports along the way. The natives, having never before seen a self-propelled iceberg, would rush down to the waterfront just in time to hear a baritone reminiscent of the later Paul Robeson render a stirring chorus of "Waiting for the Robert E. Titanic."

It's important that Faisal pick an appropriate name for the world's first show berg. That's why I suggest calling it the Robert E. Titanic.

That name is meaningful in the contexts both of sidewheelers and icebergs.

Vivid images form in the brain as we visualize the maiden voyage.

A GALA CROWD slipping and sliding from bar to bar. Ski jumping on the upper deck. The band playing "Nearer, My Ice, To Thee."

Everyone on board is gripped by a carefree mood. For this is the world's newest type of conveyance and there's a feeling nothing could possibly go wrong.

Then, the third night out, the iceberg runs into an ocean liner and sinks.

As I reported when telephoned, last fiscal year total circulation of materials from the Arlington Heights Library was 780,889 and of that figure total reciprocal borrowing represented 89,747, or a little over 11 per cent. That's not an insignificant figure, but hardly the immense "abuse" that the Daily Herald story suggests. Or, to put it another way, out of every 100 books checked out, 89 were loaned to Arlington Heights citizens.

There is another element, which I also mentioned to the reporter but which does not appear in the article. The Arlington Heights Memorial Library does not accept reserves from reciprocal borrowers, so the chance that an Arlington Heights patron is being denied a best seller (the most asked-for titles) because a reciprocal borrower has the book out, is further diminished.

In 1976 the Arlington Heights Memorial Library received $42,853.50 from the North Suburban Library Sysem for its reciprocal borrowing activity, money which was put right back into the library fund.

Our membership in the system is a very real benefit to Arlington Heights citizens. In 1976 our citizens borrowed 1,719 16mm films, received 514 magazine articles, and obtained 1,097 books through Inter-Library Loan, all made possible by our membership in the system. Our patrons also borrowed 11,352 books from other libraries.

All the above paragrphs are not to suggest that the reciprocal borrowig matter is not a serious concern, but in fairness it should be noted that it is definitely not a one way street and The Daily Herald article unfortunately presented a decidedly lop-sided viewpoint.

Is regional library needed?

A recent Daily Herald story documented how the Arlington Heights Memorial Library loaned more than 90,000 books to non-residents of Arlington Heights last year under the reciprocal borrowing arrangement. The Arlington library receives such heavy out of town use because it is a larger, better stocked facility than many of its neighbors. Library taxes in Arlington Heights are also higher than in other communities.

One possible solution to this problem would be to form a regional library district covering all the Northwest suburbs, with present local libraries serving as branches. Library taxes could be equalized throughout the area. Is this a good idea? Or would local libraries lose too much local identity? Should residents of communities which pay less library tax than Arlington Heights be charged if they use the Arlington library? Or are there other solutions to this problem?

After nearly 20 years of talking and countless plans, downtown Arlington Heights appears headed for a major revitalization.

The village board has selected a development team headed by Crane Construction Co. of Chicago to conduct a six-month study on the feasibility of constructing a combination shopping mall, office center and parking garage in the downtown area.

It's an exciting proposal and the fact Arlington Heights could attract such a nationally known development team speaks highly for the village.

The village board is to be commended for selecting the Crane team for the revitalization project over the administration's recommendation that a team headed by J. R. Gotlieb Co. be selected because their project would be quicker to construct and less controversial, even though it would also be less desirable.

This is a project Arlington Heights is going to have to live with for years and it should be the best the village can get with every attempt made to save businesses that are now thriving.

Crane has put together a development team with the expertise to make the project a real boon for the downtown area and entire village.

The other members of the team, Welton-Becket and Associates, the architects, and Development Control Corp., the planners, have worked together on downtown revitalization projects in Green Bay, Wis., and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and have been involved in several other shopping mall and downtown projects.

Crane itself, has been involved in the planning and construction of 20 shopping malls. The company's work is highly visible in Chicago with their projects including Lakepoint Tower, Outer Drive East, Continental Plaza and other downtown office and apartment buildings.

Fortune and Engineering News magazines have called Crane the nation's leading general contractor.

With these credentials, it's hard to see how Arlington Heights could lose. It will be exciting to see what kind of proposal the development team presents to the village.

Towing rule goes too far

The Illinois Appellate Court ruling against firms which tow improperly parked autos from private property goes much too far in trying to eliminate admitted abuses.

The court has ruled that it is illegal for a towing firm to demand payment of towing fees before returning a car that has been towed from a private lot. The decision is likely either to put towing firms out of business or force owners of private lots to pay towing fees to rid their lots of lawless parkers.

There is no question that private towing firms have in the past abused persons whose cars they towed. The cases involving the infamous Lincoln Towing Service in Chicago are legend.

The abuses — which include charging outrageous fees and threatening those who don't pay — do not mean, however, that there is no place for private towing firms.

"Forget the baggage! Check for PLO members!"

30-year-old perspective of press: foresight cloudy

Charles B. Seib

Thirty years ago, 13 deep thinkers took a look at the state of the American press and its prospects for remaining free. Their verdict on both points: not great.

Headed by Robert M. Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, this Commission on Freedom of the Press was star-studded. Zechariah Chafee Jr., and Harold D. Lasswell, professors of law at Harvard and Yale; Archibald MacLeish, poet and public servant; Reinhold Niebuhr, philosopher; and Arthur M. Schlesinger, historian, were members. And not a journalist in the lot.

In its report, "A Free and Responsible Press," the commission asked: "Is the freedom of the press in danger?" Yes, it said, and it gave three reasons.

FIRST, THE DEVELOPMENT of mass communications has increased vastly the importance of the press in American life. Second, that same development had diminished the opportunity to express diverse opinions and ideas through the press. And third, those who ran the press "have engaged from time to time in practices which society condems and which, if continued, it inevitably will undertake to regulate and control."

That was thirty years ago. Many of the commission's findings are of only historical interest. The crystal ball was, as always, clouded.

In discussing communications technology, for example, the commission was fascinated by the facsimile newspaper — a paper that "would drop, automatically folded, from the home radio receiver" — which is about as distant today as it was then. At the same time, while recognizing that television had a bright future, they clearly did not anticipate what a force it would become in the news business.

Nevertheless, the commission often was on target. Its main concern was the concentration of power in the press and the restrictive effect this had on the free flow of opinion and ideas.

IT NOTED THAT WHEN the First Amendment guarantee of a free press was written, it was fairly easy for the man with something to say to get it published. And if he couldn't find someone who would publish his ideas, he didn't need much capital to start a newspaper of his own.

But as the country grew and mass circulation papers came into being the situation changed. The volume of each media voice rose to a shout, but the number of voices in proportion to the literate population dwindled.

That trend was operating when the commmsssion studied the press, and it continues today. The commission was concerned that only 117 cities had competing daily newspapers. The number is much lower now. Chain ownership, which also worried the commission, still is increasing.

Since the commission's report, television has come into its own as a news medium. But that would not diminish the commission's concern over concentration, since there is dual ownership of the press and television in many communities, and the nation's diet of televised national and international news comes almost entirely from just three sources: the networks.

WHAT THE COMMISSION stressed throughout its report was that the growing concentration of power carried with it increasing responsibility. It was the duty of the communications lords, it said, to keep their houses in order and to see to it that there was a free traffic in ideas, including ideas with which they didn't agree.

Some of the commission's comments on the performance of the press could have been written yesterday. Try this: "To attract the maximum audience, the press emphasizes the exceptional rather than the representative, the sensational rather than the significant." The result, the commission said, is that citizens do not get the information and discussion they need.

The press has improved in the past 30 years — in quality, in sophistication and responsibility. Nevertheless, there are many who will nod approvingly at this sharp warning: "The press . . . must know that its faults and errors have ceased to be private vagaries and have become public dangers."

In its recommendations, the commission suggested that antitrust laws be used sparingly to break up large communications units. That might be said to predict present efforts to end joint ownership of newspapers and television stations.

Expert sees conservative health plan from Carter

by CHRIS KENRICK

A member of the President's Advisory Committee on National Health Insurance predicts the national health plan President Carter sends to Congress this winter "will be the plan of a fiscal conservative."

Charles A. Sanders, general director of Masachusetts General Hospital and a member of the 33-member national advisory panel formed last April, said the plan advanced by the Carter administration is likely initially to address only a limited area of health care — such as maternal and child health — before extending to the population at large.

Such a play "meshes both in terms of needs and politics," Dr. Sanders said, predicting it would be "a number of years," perhaps 10 or 12, before tha nation had a very comprehensive program.

SANDERS' REMARKS came as the Carter administration began trying to elicit the public's suggestions on the possible format of a national health insurance program. Public hearings will be conducted in the next four weeks by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carter campaigned in 1976 on a Democratic platform which advocated a universal, mandatory program of national health insurance with comprehensive benefits. He said his proposed program, to be financed through employer and payroll taxes as well as general tax revenues, would include preset physician fees. At one point in the campaign he said the plan would be phased in over a four-year period, with initial coverage going to those "most in need."

Today, the Carter administration is saying a plan should "be phased in as rapidly as revenues permit." The administration also appears to be backing away from campaign rhetoric in its definition of crucial issues surrounding national health.

IN A "STATEMENT OF of issues" from HEW Sec. Joseph Califano, the following questions are thrown open for public debate during the coming hearings:

- What benefits should be provided? To what extent should dental care, mental health care, drugs, and long-term care be national health insurance benefits?
- Should patients bear part of the cost of the program?
- Should there be special exemptions, coverage, or benefits for the poor?
- How should the plan be financed — publicly, privately, or what mix?
- Should the program be publicly or privately operated? What should be the role of private insurance companies? Where should state governments fit in?
- How should hospitals, doctors and other service providers be paid? Should fee schedules be established, or should professional providers be allowed to charge "usual and customary" fees?

THE PRESIDENTS Advisory Committee on National Health Insurance will begin "working sessions" in Washington. Sanders said several plans, differing in substance, would emerge from the committee. Members of the group represent a broad range of views on national health insurance.

Stressing cost concerns, Sanders said starting with a maternal and child program would limit initial financial liability.

"If we start with just a segment," he said, "We have a finite group, easy to define, clearly in need, and politically very acceptable. Beginning that way we can limit our financial exposure and learn the system."

30-year-old perspective of press: foresight cloudy

Thirty years ago, 13 deep thinkers took a look at the state of the American press and its prospects for remaining free. Their verdict on both points: not great.

Headed by Robert M. Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, this Commission on Freedom of the Press was star-studded. Zechariah Chafee Jr., and Harold D. Lasswell, professors of law at Harvard and Yale; Archibald MacLeish, poet and public servant; Reinhold Niebuhr, philosopher; and Arthur M. Schlesinger, historian, were members. And not a journalist in the lot.

In its report, "A Free and Responsible Press," the commission asked: "Is the freedom of the press in danger?" Yes, it said, and it gave three reasons.

FIRST, THE DEVELOPMENT of mass communications has increased vastly the importance of the press in American life. Second, that same development had diminished the opportunity to express diverse opinions and ideas through the press. And third, those who ran the press "have engaged from time to time in practices which society condems and which, if continued, it inevitably will undertake to regulate and control."

That was thirty years ago. Many of the commission's findings are of only historical interest. The crystal ball was, as always, clouded.

In discussing communications technology, for example, the commission was fascinated by the facsimile newspaper — a paper that "would drop, automatically folded, from the home radio receiver" — which is about as distant today as it was then. At the same time, while recognizing that television had a bright future, they clearly did not anticipate what a force it would become in the news business.

Nevertheless, the commission often was on target. Its main concern was the concentration of power in the press and the restrictive effect this had on the free flow of opinion and ideas.

IT NOTED THAT WHEN the First Amendment guarantee of a free press was written, it was fairly easy for the man with something to say to get it published. And if he couldn't find someone who would publish his ideas, he didn't need much capital to start a newspaper of his own.

But as the country grew and mass circulation papers came into being the situation changed. The volume of each media voice rose to a shout, but the number of voices in proportion to the literate population dwindled.

That trend was operating when the commmsssion studied the press, and it continues today. The commission was concerned that only 117 cities had competing daily newspapers. The number is much lower now. Chain ownership, which also worried the commission, still is increasing.

Since the commission's report, television has come into its own as a news medium. But that would not diminish the commission's concern over concentration, since there is dual ownership of the press and television in many communities, and the nation's diet of televised national and international news comes almost entirely from just three sources: the networks.

WHAT THE COMMISSION stressed throughout its report was that the growing concentration of power carried with it increasing responsibility. It was the duty of the communications lords, it said, to keep their houses in order and to see to it that there was a free traffic in ideas, including ideas with which they didn't agree.

Some of the commission's comments on the performance of the press could have been written yesterday. Try this: "To attract the maximum audience, the press emphasizes the exceptional rather than the representative, the sensational rather than the significant." The result, the commission said, is that citizens do not get the information and discussion they need.

The press has improved in the past 30 years — in quality, in sophistication and responsibility. Nevertheless, there are many who will nod approvingly at this sharp warning: "The press . . . must know that its faults and errors have ceased to be private vagaries and have become public dangers."

In its recommendations, the commission suggested that antitrust laws be used sparingly to break up large communications units. That might be said to predict present efforts to end joint ownership of newspapers and television stations.

Expert sees conservative health plan from Carter

by CHRIS KENRICK

A member of the President's Advisory Committee on National Health Insurance predicts the national health plan President Carter sends to Congress this winter "will be the plan of a fiscal conservative."

Charles A. Sanders, general director of Masachusetts General Hospital and a member of the 33-member national advisory panel formed last April, said the plan advanced by the Carter administration is likely initially to address only a limited area of health care — such as maternal and child health — before extending to the population at large.

Such a play "meshes both in terms of needs and politics," Dr. Sanders said, predicting it would be "a number of years," perhaps 10 or 12, before tha nation had a very comprehensive program.

SANDERS' REMARKS came as the Carter administration began trying to elicit the public's suggestions on the possible format of a national health insurance program. Public hearings will be conducted in the next four weeks by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carter campaigned in 1976 on a Democratic platform which advocated a universal, mandatory program of national health insurance with comprehensive benefits. He said his proposed program, to be financed through employer and payroll taxes as well as general tax revenues, would include preset physician fees. At one point in the campaign he said the plan would be phased in over a four-year period, with initial coverage going to those "most in need."

Today, the Carter administration is saying a plan should "be phased in as rapidly as revenues permit." The administration also appears to be backing away from campaign rhetoric in its definition of crucial issues surrounding national health.

IN A "STATEMENT OF of issues" from HEW Sec. Joseph Califano, the following questions are thrown open for public debate during the coming hearings:

- What benefits should be provided? To what extent should dental care, mental health care, drugs, and long-term care be national health insurance benefits?
- Should patients bear part of the cost of the program?
- Should there be special exemptions, coverage, or benefits for the poor?
- How should the plan be financed — publicly, privately, or what mix?
- Should the program be publicly or privately operated? What should be the role of private insurance companies? Where should state governments fit in?
- How should hospitals, doctors and other service providers be paid? Should fee schedules be established, or should professional providers be allowed to charge "usual and customary" fees?

THE PRESIDENTS Advisory Committee on National Health Insurance will begin "working sessions" in Washington. Sanders said several plans, differing in substance, would emerge from the committee. Members of the group represent a broad range of views on national health insurance.

Stressing cost concerns, Sanders said starting with a maternal and child program would limit initial financial liability.

"If we start with just a segment," he said, "We have a finite group, easy to define, clearly in need, and politically very acceptable. Beginning that way we can limit our financial exposure and learn the system."

"He fell apart under the pressure."

Outer space manufacturing no pipedream, experts say

by JAMES J. DOYLE

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Manufacturing in outer space will be a reality by the end of the century, according to two scientists from IRW, Inc.

Robert L. Hammell and Donald M. Waltz have written a "roadmap" for presentation before the 23rd annual meeting of the American Astronautical Society in San Francisco.

The paper details the range of commercial products which could be manufactured to some advantage in zero gravity. They include electronic components, medicines, crystals and better turbine blades.

"Assuming the United States and the international materials processing in space programs proceed as present planning indicates, we should witness in the last decade of this century, the start of commercial manufacturing conducted aboard earth-orbiting space stations," they said.

THEY NOTED, advantages, in addition to weightlessness, of readily available solar energy and an unlimited vacuum source.

They envision space manufacturing in three phases. The first is the flight research phase, from 1965 to 1984, now under way.

The product and process development phase is from 1982 to 1990 and is to be directed toward starting some experiments in space. The industrial use phase, from 1990 to 2000, is to result in commercial manufacturing.

"The technology appears feasible, the economics look promising, but many complex issues remain to be resolved," the scientists said.

Hammell and Waltz said the low-gravity environment will benefit processing of some materials in two ways. One is that very small forces would be required to maintain position control of the materials.

Thus, they said, containers would be unnecessary and that would eliminate impurities from highly reactive materials of high melting points, and would eliminate also surface irregularities that result from containers or crucibles.

IT WOULD HAVE THE greatest benefit, they said, in working with crystal growth and glass production, particularly for laser system optics.

The second major advantage of low gravity processing would be to eliminate the differences in densities when several materials are mixed, particularly when working with liquids and gases.

They proposed five basic types of processes for space manufacturing.

They include crystal growth, used in semi-conductors and the production of super-pure materials through extremely high temperatures and ultra high vacuum as well as low-temperature separations of biological materials such as living cells, serums and vaccines.

Also, they said, mixing of materials that have a tendency to separate would be easier along with super cooling and preparation of glasses, and fluid processing.

"The total program will probably require several decades to fully realize commercial production," they said.

"IT'S ALL POSSIBLE because of the space shuttle, scheduled to be operational in the early 1980s, and on the space-lab concept. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has already received 117 proposed experiments from space-related industries for its early space shuttle missions.

The second phase, beginning in 1982, must deal with limiting the work that can eventually be done in space, Hammell and Waltz said, so that the last phase can get down to specifics.

Among the specifics, they said, will be the facilities to be used in space. Space-labs, or space-factories, must be designed to handle individual products. they note also that dominance of space by governments will have to give way to "an expanded industrialization era."

"Space processing will ultimately be justified if it can become a source of materials not obtainable at competitive costs on earth," they said. One such product would be the enzyme urokinase.

Urokinase is used in the treatment of blood clots and the scientists said it has the potential of preventing 50,000 deaths per year in the United States alone.

It is in very limited supply and costs about $1,000 per dose.

An experiment aboard the Apollo-Soyez flight was encouraging, showing that one fraction of the cells separated in the experiment produced six times more of the valuable enzyme than had been possible in ground-based cultures.

SIMILAR EXPERIMENTS in ribbon silicon used in integrated circuits and in ultra pure optics also show exceptional cost-effectiveness, they said.

A production development laboratory will be the first step in space hardware to manufacture products, the two scientists said.

It would be transported to orbit by the shuttle and would be limited by the shuttle's cargo capability. they envision a 2.6 meter compartment for controls added to a spacelab length of 5.4 meters. The diameter would be 4.26 meters.

It would be semi-automatic in that it would have its own power distribution, heat controls and command controls system, but would hook up the shuttle-orbiter for other services including additional power, computers and level control.

They said a crew of three would have to work in the lab for periods of 30 to 90 days.

OVERALL, Hammell and Waltz said, the highest objective of the concept of manufacturing in space would be to develop capability to dellver useful products to the marketplace to satisfy critical demands.

Industry on earth has accumulated about 300 years of experience, they said, and since there will be close similarities between ground-based and orbital manufacturing, planners must seek the advice and know-how of ground-based industry.

But the major question is whether manufacturing in space can be profitable. The research itself "will not be exorbitantly expensive," they said. Current NASA funding for such research is between $4-million and $5-million per year with industry adding about $2 million more.

But government funding of between $30-million and $50-million will be needed through the next decade in addition to shuttle flights, operations and mission control costs, they said.

Business briefs

Steel recession hurting suppliers

The recession in the steel industry is having a domino effect on industries that deal with the industry, Iron Age magazine says. The company says the lack of spending on the part of the industry is hurting its suppliers. As an example, the price of industrial scrap now has dipped at least $10 a ton because of lack of demand from mills.

Environmental considerations are taking a good part of the indusry's capital spending, according to Iron Age. It notes that 20 per cent of the exhibits at the recent convention of the Assn. of Iron and Steel Engineers in Cleveland dealt with pollution control.

Wickes dividends increase

The Board of Directors of The Wickes Corp., with a center in Wheeling, has announced an increase in the quarterly dividend rate to 20 cents per share. This represents an indicated annual rate of 80 cents per share compared with a prior annual rate of 72 cents per share. The dividend is payable Dec. 10 to shareholders of record Nov. 10, 1977.

Searle to transfer 150

Donald Rumsfeld, president of G. D. Searle & Co., Skokie, announced a reorganization of Searle's corporate staff, transfers of approximately 150 persons from the corporate staff to product line groups and staff reductions of roughly 150 persons located in the Chicago area. These reductions involve essentially staff personnel and do not significantly affect Searle research and development personnel. Approximately 2,100 persons are employed by Searle in the Skokie area.

UAL net earnings increase

UAI, Inc.'s subsidiary, United Airlines net earnings from airline operations in August rose to $39,420,000 from $18,842,000 in the year-earlier period. For the first eight months this year, net earnings from airline operations totaled $65,623,000, compared with $14,323,000 in the year-earlier period. Included in eight-month net earnings were $36,000,000 of investment tax credit benefits, compared with none a year ago.

Dual name listings OKd by Bell

Illinois Bell customers now may order dual name listings in telephone directories. Such directory listings will cover: two individuals with the same last name living at the same address, a second informal first name by which a person is known, and widows who wish to list their husband's name and their own. Dual name listings ordered now will appear in the 1978 directories. A $6 service order change will be charged. To order a change in listings customers should call their local business office.

Could help retired home owners

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — If you've never heard the term "reverse mortgage" it's time you did, because you're going to hear more of it. This is a new loan plan directed at older people, retired or soon to retire. If the initial experiments succeed, reverse mortgages will be widespread by the time most of you start thinking about how to live when the paychecks stop.

The reverse mortgage was developed to help retired people keep their homes, despite the fact that their income had dropped. Here's how the plan works:

Assume you're retired, own your own home, but are short on income. Your home is worth $60,000. In order to get at that money, however, you'd have to sell the house and move into a smaller house or apartment, which you don't want. Is there some other way of tapping that cash?

ENTER THE reverse mortgage. The lender gives you a mortgage on your home. But instead of giving you all the cash at once, he sends it in monthly amounts over a certain period of time. You use those loan proceeds as if they were extra income.

Once the entire sum is paid out, the monthly checks stop and you begin repaying the loan. If you can't afford the payments you sell your house (which has probably increased in value) and repay the entire mortgage all at once. Your gamble is that you'll then have enough money left over to pay for housing the rest of your life.

Reverse mortgages are being pioneered in the Cleveland, Ohio, area by the Broadview Savings and Loan. Arlo M. Smith, Broadview's vice president, gives this example of how the money flows:

On a $60,000 home you could get a reverse mortgage of up to 80 per cent, or $48,000, at 9 per cent true interest. You can receive that $48,000 in monthly payments over five, seven, or ten years. The five-year payout gives the highest monthly check. But if your aim is to put off the day when you'll have to sell the house, you might prefer a 10-year payout.

EVERY MONTH, you get both a check and a bill. The check is for your monthly portion of the mortgage loan. The bill is for interest on the loan proceeds you've already received, plus property taxes and insurance. The interest payment rises every month, but so does the check you receive. On a five-year payout, the amount of spendable extra money you gain from the loan every month averages around $555; on a seven-year payout, it's $365, on a 10-year payout, $211.

Broadview's brochures call these monthly checks "tax free income," which is misleading. "Technically, it's not income," Smith agrees. It's important to realize that you're getting those checks by taking a 30-year loan, which has to be repaid.

If you borrow $48,000 over five years, you'll owe the S&L a monthly payment of $470 starting in the sixth year. After a 10-year payout, the monthly payment would be $498. Depending on how much your home has gone up in value, the savings and loan might renew the loan for a little longer, but it's not guaranteed.

Here's the question you have to ask yourself: When you retire, do you really want to assume a large mortgage debt, in order to pay expenses or finance travel? Especially if the only way you can pay the debt off is to sell your house? The proceeds from the loan will keep you in your home for a few years more. But when you finally sell, repay the mortgage and pay a capital gains tax, you may well net less cash than you would if you sold today — possibly quite a bit less. Will it be enough to pay for substitute housing?

You're gambling on the future trend in house prices. If values continue to rise rapidly, your cash position might be adequate after the sale. You'd be older, so a smaller lump sum could see you through. But if the value of your house doesn't increase enough, there could be trouble.

If you can't afford your home after retirement, you might do better by scaling down immediately, rather than overspending your income and taking a loan to make up the deficit. But if staying in that house is more important than anything, and you're willing to take the financial risks, a reverse mortgage is something to look at.

City still hub of economic activity

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Larger cities once knew their size alone would attract new business and industry, but recent promotional campaigns for suburban areas have forced the cities to think about selling themselves.

Pittsburgh City Development Director Ed De Luca has been charged with convincing company heads that cities remain the best location for development, despite their well-publicized problems.

"Years ago, because a business located in New York City it could attract anyone. Today that is seen as detrimental," De Luca explained.

"But the city is still the place where the action is, the hub of economic activity."

HE SEES THE TENDENCY of businesses to move to suburban locations as understandable in some cases, but fears too many are overlooking the other side of the question.

He cites the obvious disadvantages stemming from out-of-the-way locations, but also offers a convincing theory: "In the suburbs, executives lose touch with other executives, they become inbred."

De Luca was recruited to Pittsburgh a little over six months ago from a similar job in Baltimore and is filling a position he said has been "needed for a long time."

In attracting business and industry, which means attracting more jobs and tax revenue, De Luca fights the image cities have developed as centers of crime, contestion and pollution.

IN ADDITION, he also battles "executive whimsy" — the tendency of some industry heads to locate in a certain suburb because it's close to their homes, or their country clubs.

To sell urban expansion, he reminds executives of features like large labor pools, good routeways (highways and railroads), and in the case of Pittsburgh, a friendly city administration.

As "enticements," over and above normal urban advantages, he and others in his field offer financial incentives in the form of tax breaks, training program subsidies or land discounts.

HIS JOB INCLUDES keeping an eye on the state and city lawmakers, promoting incentives for industry and business and lobbying against laws that will scare them away.

"The big qquestion is whether locating heer in Pittsburgh will help to increase bottom line profits," he said. "Pennsylvania has a bad name for squeezing the businessman."

He is convinced that for many firms, cities remain the most profitable location; but not only industry comes out ahead.

"People have to remember that if the cities die, the suburbs die, too," he said. "So the cities have to remain strong."

"The total program will probably require several decades to fully realize commercial production," they said.

"IT'S ALL POSSIBLE because of the space shuttle, scheduled to be operational in the early 1980s, and on the space-lab concept. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has already received 117 proposed experiments from space-related industries for its early space shuttle missions.

The second phase, beginning in 1982, must deal with limiting the work that can eventually be done in space, Hammell and Waltz said, so that the last phase can get down to specifics.

Among the specifics, they said, will be the facilities to be used in space. Space-labs, or space-factories, must be designed to handle individual products. they note also that dominance of space by governments will have to give way to "an expanded industrialization era."

"Space processing will ultimately be justified if it can become a source of materials not obtainable at competitive costs on earth," they said. One such product would be the enzyme urokinase.

Urokinase is used in the treatment of blood clots and the scientists said it has the potential of preventing 50,000 deaths per year in the United States alone.

It is in very limited supply and costs about $1,000 per dose.

An experiment aboard the Apollo-Soyez flight was encouraging, showing that one fraction of the cells separated in the experiment produced six times more of the valuable enzyme than had been possible in ground-based cultures.

SIMILAR EXPERIMENTS in ribbon silicon used in integrated circuits and in ultra pure optics also show exceptional cost-effectiveness, they said.

A production development laboratory will be the first step in space hardware to manufacture products, the two scientists said.

It would be transported to orbit by the shuttle and would be limited by the shuttle's cargo capability. they envision a 2.6 meter compartment for controls added to a spacelab length of 5.4 meters. The diameter would be 4.26 meters.

It would be semi-automatic in that it would have its own power distribution, heat controls and command controls system, but would hook up the shuttle-orbiter for other services including additional power, computers and level control.

They said a crew of three would have to work in the lab for periods of 30 to 90 days.

OVERALL, Hammell and Waltz said, the highest objective of the concept of manufacturing in space would be to develop capability to deliver useful products to the marketplace to satisfy critical demands.

Industry on earth has accumulated about 300 years of experience, they said, and since there will be close similarities between ground-based and orbital manufacturing, planners must seek the advice and know-how of ground-based industry.

But the major question is whether manufacturing in space can be profitable. The research itself "will not be exorbitantly expensive," they said. Current NASA funding for such research is between $4-million and $5-million per year with industry adding about $2 million more.

But government funding of between $30-million and $50-million will be needed through the next decade in addition to shuttle flights, operations and mission control costs, they said.

Steel recession hurting suppliers

The recession in the steel industry is having a domino effect on industries that deal with the industry, Iron Age magazine says. The company says the lack of spending on the part of the industry is hurting its suppliers. As an example, the price of industrial scrap now has dipped at least $10 a ton because of lack of demand from mills.

Environmental considerations are taking a good part of the indusry's capital spending, according to Iron Age. It notes that 20 per cent of the exhibits at the recent convention of the Assn. of Iron and Steel Engineers in Cleveland dealt with pollution control.

Wickes dividends increase

The Board of Directors of The Wickes Corp., with a center in Wheeling, has announced an increase in the quarterly dividend rate to 20 cents per share. This represents an indicated annual rate of 80 cents per share compared with a prior annual rate of 72 cents per share. The dividend is payable Dec. 10 to shareholders of record Nov. 10, 1977.

Searle to transfer 150

Donald Rumsfeld, president of G. D. Searle & Co., Skokie, announced a reorganization of Searle's corporate staff, transfers of approximately 150 persons from the corporate staff to product line groups and staff reductions of roughly 150 persons located in the Chicago area. These reductions involve essentially staff personnel and do not significantly affect Searle research and development personnel. Approximately 2,100 persons are employed by Searle in the Skokie area.

UAL net earnings increase

UAI, Inc.'s subsidiary, United Airlines net earnings from airline operations in August rose to $39,420,000 from $18,842,000 in the year-earlier period. For the first eight months this year, net earnings from airline operations totaled $65,623,000, compared with $14,323,000 in the year-earlier period. Included in eight-month net earnings were $36,000,000 of investment tax credit benefits, compared with none a year ago.

Dual name listings OKd by Bell

Illinois Bell customers now may order dual name listings in telephone directories. Such directory listings will cover: two individuals with the same last name living at the same address, a second informal first name by which a person is known, and widows who wish to list their husband's name and their own. Dual name listings ordered now will appear in the 1978 directories. A $6 service order change will be charged. To order a change in listings customers should call their local business office.

Could help retired home owners

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — If you've never heard the term "reverse mortgage" it's time you did, because you're going to hear more of it. This is a new loan plan directed at older people, retired or soon to retire. If the initial experiments succeed, reverse mortgages will be widespread by the time most of you start thinking about how to live when the paychecks stop.

The reverse mortgage was developed to help retired people keep their homes, despite the fact that their income had dropped. Here's how the plan works:

Assume you're retired, own your own home, but are short on income. Your home is worth $60,000. In order to get at that money, however, you'd have to sell the house and move into a smaller house or apartment, which you don't want. Is there some other way of tapping that cash?

ENTER THE reverse mortgage. The lender gives you a mortgage on your home. But instead of giving you all the cash at once, he sends it in monthly amounts over a certain period of time. You use those loan proceeds as if they were extra income.

Once the entire sum is paid out, the monthly checks stop and you begin repaying the loan. If you can't afford the payments you sell your house (which has probably increased in value) and repay the entire mortgage all at once. Your gamble is that you'll then have enough money left over to pay for housing the rest of your life.

Reverse mortgages are being pioneered in the Cleveland, Ohio, area by the Broadview Savings and Loan. Arlo M. Smith, Broadview's vice president, gives this example of how the money flows:

On a $60,000 home you could get a reverse mortgage of up to 80 per cent, or $48,000, at 9 per cent true interest. You can receive that $48,000 in monthly payments over five, seven, or ten years. The five-year payout gives the highest monthly check. But if your aim is to put off the day when you'll have to sell the house, you might prefer a 10-year payout.

EVERY MONTH, you get both a check and a bill. The check is for your monthly portion of the mortgage loan. The bill is for interest on the loan proceeds you've already received, plus property taxes and insurance. The interest payment rises every month, but so does the check you receive. On a five-year payout, the amount of spendable extra money you gain from the loan every month averages around $555; on a seven-year payout, it's $365, on a 10-year payout, $211.

Broadview's brochures call these monthly checks "tax free income," which is misleading. "Technically, it's not income," Smith agrees. It's important to realize that you're getting those checks by taking a 30-year loan, which has to be repaid.

If you borrow $48,000 over five years, you'll owe the S&L a monthly payment of $470 starting in the sixth year. After a 10-year payout, the monthly payment would be $498. Depending on how much your home has gone up in value, the savings and loan might renew the loan for a little longer, but it's not guaranteed.

Here's the question you have to ask yourself: When you retire, do you really want to assume a large mortgage debt, in order to pay expenses or finance travel? Especially if the only way you can pay the debt off is to sell your house? The proceeds from the loan will keep you in your home for a few years more. But when you finally sell, repay the mortgage and pay a capital gains tax, you may well net less cash than you would if you sold today — possibly quite a bit less. Will it be enough to pay for substitute housing?

You're gambling on the future trend in house prices. If values continue to rise rapidly, your cash position might be adequate after the sale. You'd be older, so a smaller lump sum could see you through. But if the value of your house doesn't increase enough, there could be trouble.

If you can't afford your home after retirement, you might do better by scaling down immediately, rather than overspending your income and taking a loan to make up the deficit. But if staying in that house is more important than anything, and you're willing to take the financial risks, a reverse mortgage is something to look at.

City still hub of economic activity

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Larger cities once knew their size alone would attract new business and industry, but recent promotional campaigns for suburban areas have forced the cities to think about selling themselves.

Pittsburgh City Development Director Ed De Luca has been charged with convincing company heads that cities remain the best location for development, despite their well-publicized problems.

"Years ago, because a business located in New York City it could attract anyone. Today that is seen as detrimental," De Luca explained.

"But the city is still the place where the action is, the hub of economic activity."

HE SEES THE TENDENCY of businesses to move to suburban locations as understandable in some cases, but fears too many are overlooking the other side of the question.

He cites the obvious disadvantages stemming from out-of-the-way locations, but also offers a convincing theory: "In the suburbs, executives lose touch with other executives, they become inbred."

De Luca was recruited to Pittsburgh a little over six months ago from a similar job in Baltimore and is filling a position he said has been "needed for a long time."

In attracting business and industry, which means attracting more jobs and tax revenue, De Luca fights the image cities have developed as centers of crime, contestion and pollution.

IN ADDITION, he also battles "executive whimsy" — the tendency of some industry heads to locate in a certain suburb because it's close to their homes, or their country clubs.

To sell urban expansion, he reminds executives of features like large labor pools, good routeways (highways and railroads), and in the case of Pittsburgh, a friendly city administration.

As "enticements," over and above normal urban advantages, he and others in his field offer financial incentives in the form of tax breaks, training program subsidies or land discounts.

HIS JOB INCLUDES keeping an eye on the state and city lawmakers, promoting incentives for industry and business and lobbying against laws that will scare them away.

"The big qquestion is whether locating heer in Pittsburgh will help to increase bottom line profits," he said. "Pennsylvania has a bad name for squeezing the businessman."

He is convinced that for many firms, cities remain the most profitable location; but not only industry comes out ahead.

"People have to remember that if the cities die, the suburbs die, too," he said. "So the cities have to remain strong."

Rah-rah lives—ask Honey Bears

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

When the Monday Night Football film crews aren't zooming in on Joe Namath of Walter Payton during tonight's Chicago Bears-Los Angeles Rams match, there's a good chance they'll be switching over to Kelly. Or Tina. Or Patty.

They'll be ready, too. Smiles and hairdos in place. Polyester jumpsuits hugging curves like Johnny Rutherford at the Indy 500. White go-go boots polished and set to launch into a routine to the "Starwars" theme.

Kelly, Tina and Patty are all Honey Bears, young Chicago-area beauties who spend their Sunday afternoons entertaining the fans and cheering the Bears to touchdowns and glory. They wouldn't be caught dead in pleated skirts or bobby socks, and they don't dream about landing the homecoming crown. But like their high school and college counterparts, they know there's something special about a cheerleader — and they're out to make the most of it.

BUT WAIT A minute. When you're shelling out $9.50 for a Bears ticket, isn't the game itself your major concern? Aren't scantily-clad girls mouthing "Let's go Bears" nothing more than useless — and sexist — decoration?

The Honey Bears' general manager Corinne Nierman doesn't think so: "Let's face it, not everyone comes to a game just to watch football," she says. "The Honey Bears appeal to everyone, not just the diehard fans."

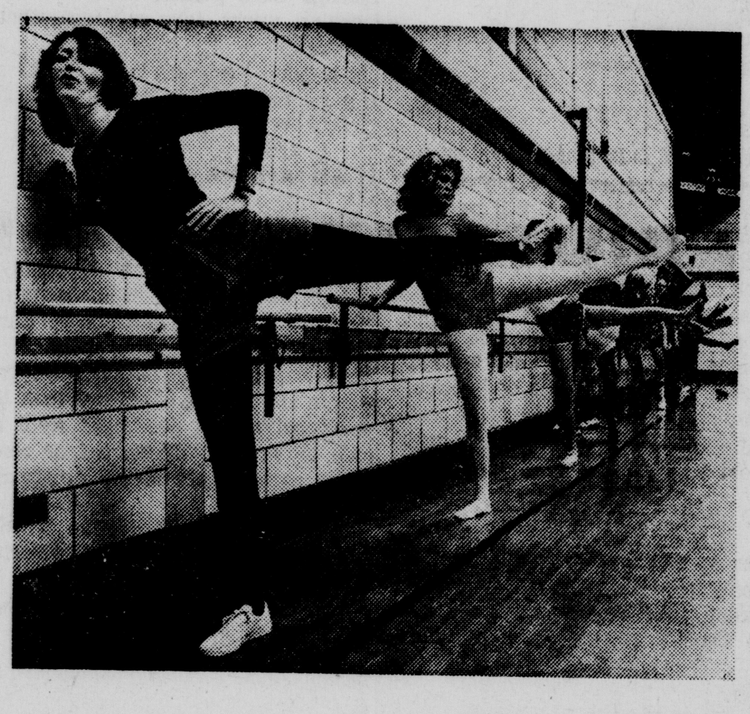
"Sure, we've had some people say it's sexist, but we're not exploiting anyone — the girls want to do it."

Apparently, she's right: more than 200 would-be Honey Bears applied for the job back in March, after the Bears' general manager decided the field needed color and morale needed boosting. Twenty-eight made the final cut, and now they're all too happy to keep their weight down, practice three hours a week and abide by the rules: no drinking or smoking on the field, no personal appearances without Bears' clearance, and no fraternizing with the players (though Ms. Nierman admits the last edict is tough to enforce).

THEIR MONETARY reward is negligible — $10 a game and $25 for personal appearances — but the Honey Bears aren't complaining.

The models, professional dancers and Playboy bunnies on the squad are hoping the exposure both on and off the field will help their careers; the mere mention of "national TV" brought a chorus of oohs and ahhs at a recent practice.

Some of the Honey Bears see their sideline routines as a way to participate in professional sports and show their loyalty to the Bears. As Tina Guide, a 21-year-old model from La Grange, puts it, "I wasn't brought up to be a professional athlete, but by cheering, I can still be a part of it all... I've always loved football, and there's nothing wrong with standing behind your team."



While only 5 per cent of the Honey Bears are professional dancers, warm-up exercises at the bar help the girls limber up for the dance routines they'll do on the sidelines.

Even Playboy bunnies can benefit from the exposure a Honey Bear gets. Now if they can just keep their labels straight...

INDEED, KNOWING who's got the ball is considered essential, and Ms. Nierman says most of the girls are "pretty knowledgable" about the game.

Yet, a coach did sit in on an early practice to give a few pointers, and when one Honey Bear was asked about the difference between a draw play and a pass, she giggled and admitted, "Well, we don't get that technical."

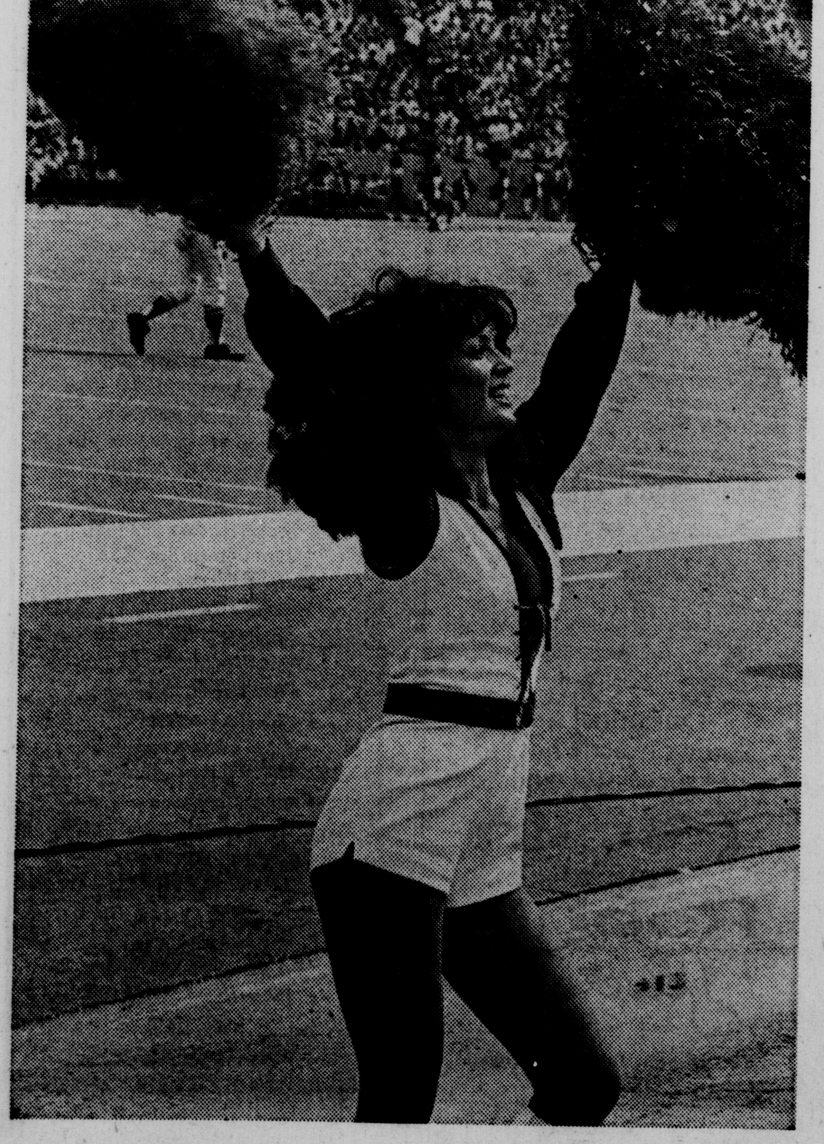
But as any cheerleader knows, nothing can beat the ego trip. The Honey Bears, mind you, aren't Dallas Cowgirls: "We aren't out for that sleazy, sexy image," says 18-year-old Kelly Warren of Lombard. "Those girls shimmy around on the field, and we cheer."

Still, "It's nice to know that people think you're good-looking," Ms. Warren says. "The feminists have got to hate us, but if they'd admit it, they'd be flattered at all the attention we get."

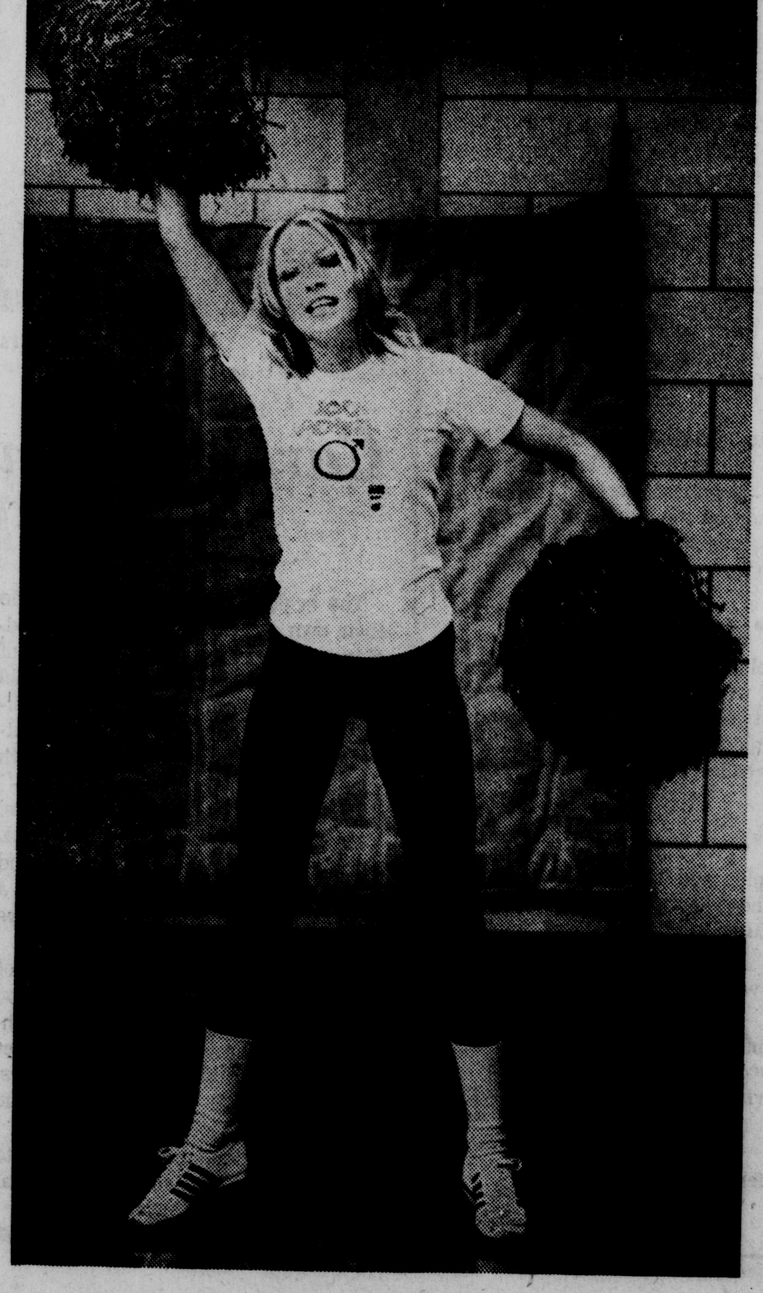
THAT ATTENTION isn't always positive. One 18-year-old Honey Bear dropped out because she couldn't take the abuse from the notoriously fickle Bear fans. But Ms. Warren says, "You have to ignore it... sure, sometimes I feel most of it's good-natured — when they say, 'Hey I like your ass,' I just say, 'thanks.' "

Tina Guide shakes her blonde curls in agreement. "The Chicago fans are pretty extreme, but when they're good they're great. You can't imagine how great it is to have all these people screaming for you... wanting you. Wow!"

Wow. And a u-rah-rah, sex-boom-bah!



Fans in the upper reaches of Soldier Field may not not hear her battle cry, but the cleavage speaks for itself.



For some Honey Bears, "jock power" is on sidelines as well as in the huddle. They see cheerleading as a way to get involved in professional sports without the hassle of contracts and training camps.

The doctor says

Body fat depends on diet and exercise

I have been unable to find a proper value of triglycerides anywhere. What is the normal amount?

It depends upon the method and the state of the patient when studied. In general if the patient is in the fasting state — not having eaten for at least 12 hours — the level should be below 150 milligrams in 100 milliliters of blood.

Remember that triglycerides are simply fats. The amount of fat in the blood varies greatly with what you have eaten recently. Fat is slowly absorbed and slowly cleared from the blood stream compared to sugar. It is much more affected by a recent meal than your cholesterol level. One reason you are having trouble finding normal values is because of its variability.

The triglyceride level will also fall if you exercise vigorously. The amount of exercise in the preceding 48 hours may affect your triglyceride level.

The triglyceride level alone has not been found to be as useful as the cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks. When the size of the particles formed by the triglyceride-cholesterol combination is considered, the risk calculation for people more than 50 can be improved. In that age group the amounts of particles of different sizes become more important than the cholesterol level alone.

As a young child I acquired a habit of putting my forefinger in my navel and digging as a way of going to sleep at night. When I was about 10 and in the hospital with pneumonia a young nurse told me if I didn't stop doing that I would get cancer. This has plagued me day and night. I might add that I didn't stop doing this. I am now a mature woman of 57 and the mother of 10 healthy children.

I am so worried because I have strange feelings and shooting sensations around my navel and the lower part of my body. My doctor says you can't get cancer of the navel. Could you give me your views on this? I'm so frightened of the disease but I don't understand cancer at all.

Your letter is a good example of why people should never try to change a child's habits by frightening them of some dire consequence, other than a good paddling if warranted. That young nurse unwittingly planted the seed for you to use in responding to your anxiety reactions.

No, no, no, fingering your navel will not cause cancer. Cancer is simply cell growth that has gone berserk allowing uncontrolled abnormal growth. For example, liver cancer is a rapid disorganized growth of liver cells. Many factors can stimulate the wild growth.

Why don't you ask your doctor to have you see a psychiatrist for some professional counseling. If you can get at the root of your real anxiety then its manifestation, excessive fear of cancer, may be controlled.

Avoid Christmas rush; finish shopping early

Now is the time to do your shopping for Christmas presents. That's not a mistake: I do mean "for Christmas"! Leave last-minute shopping for those who have a yen for crowds of elbowing shoppers, and who possess unusual patience while waiting for the assistance of store personnel. This December, skip that un-Christmas cheery scene of shoppers frazzled by long lines and frustrated by the discover that what they want has been sold out. Why not plan on having your shopping done by November? Then, when the store part is behind you, how nice it'll be to spend more time with your family, preparing for whatever makes the holidays special at your house.

Dear Roberta: We were introduced to bratwurst sausages at a company picnic. I'm wondering how to prepare them at home. —Lynn Mackey

We boil them first for about 10 minutes, pricking each sausage in a few places so the excess fat will be released. Then brown them in a frying pan or over a grill. Our friends of German descent might look askance at this method, because the usual way is just to brown bratwurst. We prefer even precooked pork slightly overdone.

Dear Roberta: When dark items of clothing come out of a washing with lint, dark terry towels placed with them in the dryer are quicker at removing the lint than extra rinsings in vinegar and then in water. Some other time you can run the towels through a fluff dry to remove the lint they've collected from the clothes. —Carolyn Yost

Adjust band to fit

Elastic waistband is a snap to sew

Dear Eunice Farmer: How can I put an elastic waistband in a skirt? The only patterns with elastic waistbands I can find are for pants. — Evelyn S.

Dear Evelyn: It is very simple to apply elastic to a skirt instead of a conventional waistband providing the fabric is suitable. Your fabric should be lightweight and soft to avoid excess bulk. Also, be sure you really want elastic. Most knit pants are constructed with elastic waistbands because women usually wear overblouses or sweaters with them, and if you wear a tuck-in blouse with a skirt, you might not like the gathers and excess bulkiness.

To make an elastic waistband on your skirt, eliminate the darts at the waist, add at least an inch in length for the turnover of your casing and insert non-roll elastic in the casing.

Try your skirt on after you have arranged the ease evenly and see if it fits the way you want. (You may want to adjust your ease to flatter your body.)

After the ease is adjusted, sew vertically through the elastic and the casing, in four equal spots to keep the ease where you want it and to keep the elastic from rolling over.

Dear Eunice Farmer: I recently completed a blazer jacket out of fairly heavyweight double knit. The pattern called for a pleat in the center back of the jacket but when the garment was finished, the pleat would not lie flat. What did I do wrong? The jacket was pears at the back of most blazer-type jackets.

Dear Janet: Since you didn't give me a pattern number, I can only assume that the pleat should have been constructed like a "vent" that apars at the bac of most bazer-te acets.

A vent is left open and is quite different than the construction of a pleat. The top section of the vent is turned back and lies flat over its unturned under section. The hems of each side are finished separately.

The only reason I can see that this type of vent would stick out would be in the fitting.

Dear Eunice Farmer: Could you please explain what Qiana is? I'm confused about the type of fabric this is and what kind of needle to use on it in my sewing machine. — Sharon B.

Dear Sharon: Qiana is a trade name for a DuPont nylon that is woven into many types of fabric. It has a very silky hand and is often confused with silk. It doesn't wrinkle, usually, doesn't need dry cleaning, is always washable and doesn't require extra techniques in stitching if you understand that it is a synthetic.

Qiana won't press sharp and flat like natural fibers, so don't overpress. Qiana often requires a little extra care in stitching, so it might be a good idea to experiment on scraps of your fabric before you begin your garment. Never use too small a stitch or tension that is too tight.

As to the machine needle, you would follow the same rules as with any fabric — for knits, use a ballpoint needle; for wovens, use your regular-type needle.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Mrs. Harry Poslosky, 34 Ridgemoor, St. Louis, Mo., 63105. Her tip:

"Keep a trigger-type plastic bottle (the type that contains household cleaning liquid), wash thoroughly and keep filled with water. When you need water for pressing cloth, simply spray the water on a sponge and you'll have instant moisture without spilled dishes or glasses of water."

You, too, could win a set of engraved blazer buttons. Send your sewing tips to Eunice Farmer, Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa, 50306 and if she publishes your idea, Mrs. Farmer will send you a set.

For your copy of the sew simple booklet "Flip Cape," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer, at the above address.

The doctor says

Body fat depends on diet and exercise

I have been unable to find a proper value of triglycerides anywhere. What is the normal amount?

It depends upon the method and the state of the patient when studied. In general if the patient is in the fasting state — not having eaten for at least 12 hours — the level should be below 150 milligrams in 100 milliliters of blood.

Remember that triglycerides are simply fats. The amount of fat in the blood varies greatly with what you have eaten recently. Fat is slowly absorbed and slowly cleared from the blood stream compared to sugar. It is much more affected by a recent meal than your cholesterol level. One reason you are having trouble finding normal values is because of its variability.

The triglyceride level will also fall if you exercise vigorously. The amount of exercise in the preceding 48 hours may affect your triglyceride level.

The triglyceride level alone has not been found to be as useful as the cholesterol level in predicting the risk of heart attacks. When the size of the particles formed by the triglyceride-cholesterol combination is considered, the risk calculation for people more than 50 can be improved. In that age group the amounts of particles of different sizes become more important than the cholesterol level alone.

As a young child I acquired a habit of putting my forefinger in my navel and digging as a way of going to sleep at night. When I was about 10 and in the hospital with pneumonia a young nurse told me if I didn't stop doing that I would get cancer. This has plagued me day and night. I might add that I didn't stop doing this. I am now a mature woman of 57 and the mother of 10 healthy children.

I am so worried because I have strange feelings and shooting sensations around my navel and the lower part of my body. My doctor says you can't get cancer of the navel. Could you give me your views on this? I'm so frightened of the disease but I don't understand cancer at all.

Your letter is a good example of why people should never try to change a child's habits by frightening them of some dire consequence, other than a good paddling if warranted. That young nurse unwittingly planted the seed for you to use in responding to your anxiety reactions.

No, no, no, fingering your navel will not cause cancer. Cancer is simply cell growth that has gone berserk allowing uncontrolled abnormal growth. For example, liver cancer is a rapid disorganized growth of liver cells. Many factors can stimulate the wild growth.

Why don't you ask your doctor to have you see a psychiatrist for some professional counseling. If you can get at the root of your real anxiety then its manifestation, excessive fear of cancer, may be controlled.

Avoid Christmas rush; finish shopping early

Now is the time to do your shopping for Christmas presents. That's not a mistake: I do mean "for Christmas"! Leave last-minute shopping for those who have a yen for crowds of elbowing shoppers, and who possess unusual patience while waiting for the assistance of store personnel. This December, skip that un-Christmas cheery scene of shoppers frazzled by long lines and frustrated by the discover that what they want has been sold out. Why not plan on having your shopping done by November? Then, when the store part is behind you, how nice it'll be to spend more time with your family, preparing for whatever makes the holidays special at your house.

Dear Roberta: We were introduced to bratwurst sausages at a company picnic. I'm wondering how to prepare them at home. —Lynn Mackey

We boil them first for about 10 minutes, pricking each sausage in a few places so the excess fat will be released. Then brown them in a frying pan or over a grill. Our friends of German descent might look askance at this method, because the usual way is just to brown bratwurst. We prefer even precooked pork slightly overdone.

Dear Roberta: When dark items of clothing come out of a washing with lint, dark terry towels placed with them in the dryer are quicker at removing the lint than extra rinsings in vinegar and then in water. Some other time you can run the towels through a fluff dry to remove the lint they've collected from the clothes. —Carolyn Yost

Dear Roberta: What could be simpler and healthier than this dressing for fruit salad? Mix a little honey into plain yogurt, and add orange juice to taste. —Frances Elliott

Adjust band to fit

Elastic waistband is a snap to sew

Dear Eunice Farmer: How can I put an elastic waistband in a skirt? The only patterns with elastic waistbands I can find are for pants. — Evelyn S.

Dear Evelyn: It is very simple to apply elastic to a skirt instead of a conventional waistband providing the fabric is suitable. Your fabric should be lightweight and soft to avoid excess bulk. Also, be sure you really want elastic. Most knit pants are constructed with elastic waistbands because women usually wear overblouses or sweaters with them, and if you wear a tuck-in blouse with a skirt, you might not like the gathers and excess bulkiness.

To make an elastic waistband on your skirt, eliminate the darts at the waist, add at least an inch in length for the turnover of your casing and insert non-roll elastic in the casing.

Try your skirt on after you have arranged the ease evenly and see if it fits the way you want. (You may want to adjust your ease to flatter your body.)

After the ease is adjusted, sew vertically through the elastic and the casing, in four equal spots to keep the ease where you want it and to keep the elastic from rolling over.

Dear Eunice Farmer: I recently completed a blazer jacket out of fairly heavyweight double knit. The pattern called for a pleat in the center back of the jacket but when the garment was finished, the pleat would not lie flat. What did I do wrong? The jacket was pears at the back of most blazer-type jackets.

Dear Janet: Since you didn't give me a pattern number, I can only assume that the pleat should have been constructed like a "vent" that apars at the bac of most bazer-te acets.

A vent is left open and is quite different than the construction of a pleat. The top section of the vent is turned back and lies flat over its unturned under section. The hems of each side are finished separately.

The only reason I can see that this type of vent would stick out would be in the fitting.

Dear Eunice Farmer: Could you please explain what Qiana is? I'm confused about the type of fabric this is and what kind of needle to use on it in my sewing machine. — Sharon B.

Dear Sharon: Qiana is a trade name for a DuPont nylon that is woven into many types of fabric. It has a very silky hand and is often confused with silk. It doesn't wrinkle, usually, doesn't need dry cleaning, is always washable and doesn't require extra techniques in stitching if you understand that it is a synthetic.

Qiana won't press sharp and flat like natural fibers, so don't overpress. Qiana often requires a little extra care in stitching, so it might be a good idea to experiment on scraps of your fabric before you begin your garment. Never use too small a stitch or tension that is too tight.

As to the machine needle, you would follow the same rules as with any fabric — for knits, use a ballpoint needle; for wovens, use your regular-type needle.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Mrs. Harry Poslosky, 34 Ridgemoor, St. Louis, Mo., 63105. Her tip:

"Keep a trigger-type plastic bottle (the type that contains household cleaning liquid), wash thoroughly and keep filled with water. When you need water for pressing cloth, simply spray the water on a sponge and you'll have instant moisture without spilled dishes or glasses of water."

You, too, could win a set of engraved blazer buttons. Send your sewing tips to Eunice Farmer, Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa, 50306 and if she publishes your idea, Mrs. Farmer will send you a set.

For your copy of the sew simple booklet "Flip Cape," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer, at the above address.

YOU NAME IT! Mrs. Linda Mazanek, Buffalo Grove's 1977 Homemaking Queen, excels in all divisions of homemaking — canning, baking, sewing, needlecrafts, horticulture. Her expertise in these skills earned her the title during the recent Buffalo Grove Days. As a member of Buffalo Grove Garden Club she'll be at Tuesday's workshop meeting to learn more about creating holiday wreaths. Proud fellow gardeners presented Mrs. Masanek with a $25 savings bond.

Club teaches sports skills for outdoors

Fishing, canoeing, archery, rafting, hunting, trap and skeet shooting and horseback riding all are activities that a new group called Outdoor Women has been learning since its start last spring in the Chicago area.

Already, the Chicago chapter has sponsored clinics for women on fly fishing, casting, bicycle repair, archery, canoeing and target shooting.

They will take to the fields Sunday for a trap and pheasant hunt on a private game reserve. But not before the group holds a hunter safety course, starting this Tuesday, on the proper handling of guns plus first aid and survival in the woods. Archery safety is included in the two-part course which concludes Oct. 18.

The group meets the second Wednesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at Windsor Inn, corner of Mannheim and Higgins roads, Rosemont. Interested area women need not be outdoor experts, just enthusiastic. Members range in age from 18 to 75.

Information may be obtained from chapter director Hester Newcomb of Elk Grove, 894-2494, or Sandy Locke, national director, in Chicago at 787-4152.

YOU NAME IT! Mrs. Linda Mazanek, Buffalo Grove's 1977 Homemaking Queen, excels in all divisions of homemaking — canning, baking, sewing, needlecrafts, horticulture. Her expertise in these skills earned her the title during the recent Buffalo Grove Days. As a member of Buffalo Grove Garden Club she'll be at Tuesday's workshop meeting to learn more about creating holiday wreaths. Proud fellow gardeners presented Mrs. Masanek with a $25 savings bond.

Club teaches sports skills for outdoors

Fishing, canoeing, archery, rafting, hunting, trap and skeet shooting and horseback riding all are activities that a new group called Outdoor Women has been learning since its start last spring in the Chicago area.

Already, the Chicago chapter has sponsored clinics for women on fly fishing, casting, bicycle repair, archery, canoeing and target shooting.

They will take to the fields Sunday for a trap and pheasant hunt on a private game reserve. But not before the group holds a hunter safety course, starting this Tuesday, on the proper handling of guns plus first aid and survival in the woods. Archery safety is included in the two-part course which concludes Oct. 18.

The group meets the second Wednesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at Windsor Inn, corner of Mannheim and Higgins roads, Rosemont. Interested area women need not be outdoor experts, just enthusiastic. Members range in age from 18 to 75.

Information may be obtained from chapter director Hester Newcomb of Elk Grove, 894-2494, or Sandy Locke, national director, in Chicago at 787-4152.

Zamora trial: unanswered questions

Putting television on trial isn't easy, it isn't popular and it may not ever be possible, but it certainly does make headlines.

Last week's murder trial of 15-year-old Ronald Zamora in Miami, which ended in a guilty verdict, is a case in point. Zamora was convicted of fatally shooting Elinor Haggart, 82, his widowed neighbor, when she caught him and his friend ransacking her home.

The two allegedly made off with $415 in cash in the victim's 1972 Buick, only to turn themselves in to police four days later. Zamora's friend will stand trial separately.

Zamora's defense attorney tried to prove his client was innocent because "he suffered and acted under the influence of prolonged, intense, involuntary, subliminal telvision intoxication."

Zamora was unable to remove himself from the fantasy world of "Kojak," "Starsky and Hutch" and "Baretta," his favorite television shows, and so "pulling the trigger became as common to him as killing a fly," Rubin said.

Although he has lost the first round, the attorney intends to pursue his argument in the Florida Supreme Court and even in the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary on the grounds that the presiding judge refused testimony from a key defense psychologist because it would deal only with general speculation on the effects of television and not as it pertained specifically to Zamora.

Although Rubin has been unsuccessful in putting "television on trial," as he originally had intended, the Miami proceedings have been noteworthy.

In an ironic twist, Miami's public broadcating station has been televising the proceedings as part of a first-time Florida Supreme Court experiment in broadcasting criminal trials. The consequences of the exercise may have some interesting influence on the future of allowing camera and television equipment to record courtroom action.

But, more importantly, the Zamora trial has induced those on both sides of the age-old argument to reflect on the possible deadly and negative influences television can have.

The question of television's impact on human thought and action need not be reserved for those who move in medical circles since we are all a part of the television experience, whether we produce it, star in it or watch it.

The premise that a filmed news event that is part of a newscast or a television drama can prompt a viewer of weak mind and will to commit a criminal act is frightening.

But, as recently as last month in Hartford City, Ind., an accused murderer testified that he and a friend were involved in the killing of four brothers shortly after seeing a television dramatization of the Charles Manson murders.

There have been countless such incidents cited in the news — a gunman holds a family hostage or a youth goes on a shooting spree, both after being stimulated by something they saw on television.

It's a safe bet without the benefit of psychological expertise, to say television influences our thoughts and action as much as films, books and other people. In fact, television is the most popular, widely used stimulus of them all.

Yet the questions remain:

Can television programmers afford to concern themselves with how every viewer possibly might react to what they see?

Can parents possibly screen everything on television before they decide what to allow their children to watch?

Can viewers be expected to distinguish the fantasy of television from the reality of life and react to what they see on television in a responsible manner?

Those questions aren't likely to be answered in a court of law if ever. But, there isn't a television programmer or viewer in this country who can afford not to strive to find the answers.

TV Highlights:

• Channel 7 will premiere its new news set today on the 5, 6 and 10 p.m. news shows. It was to have been unveiled last week, but the settlement of the ABC strike forced a postponement.

• One of television's most provocative and witty interviewers, Dick Cavett, returns to the air tonight

with the premiere of his new half-hour, public broadcasting show to air Monday through Friday on Channel 11 at 10 p.m. opposite the late news and "Forever Fernwood."

Originating out of New York, the series this week includes guests such as actress Sophia Loren, dancer Rudolph Nureyev and married singers Carly Simon and James Taylor. Cavett is bound to be the cultural bright spot of the evening from now on and an asset to television talk.

• Another "Laugh-in" special airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 5, featuring Bea Arthur of "Maude" and cameos by Roger Moore and Henry Fonda.

• Johnny Cash hosts the "Country Music Assn. Awards" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 2, a salute to the hootin' and hollerin' best at the Grand Ole Opry in Hashville.

• The Los Angeles Rams meet the Chicago Bears here at home in "NFL Football" at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

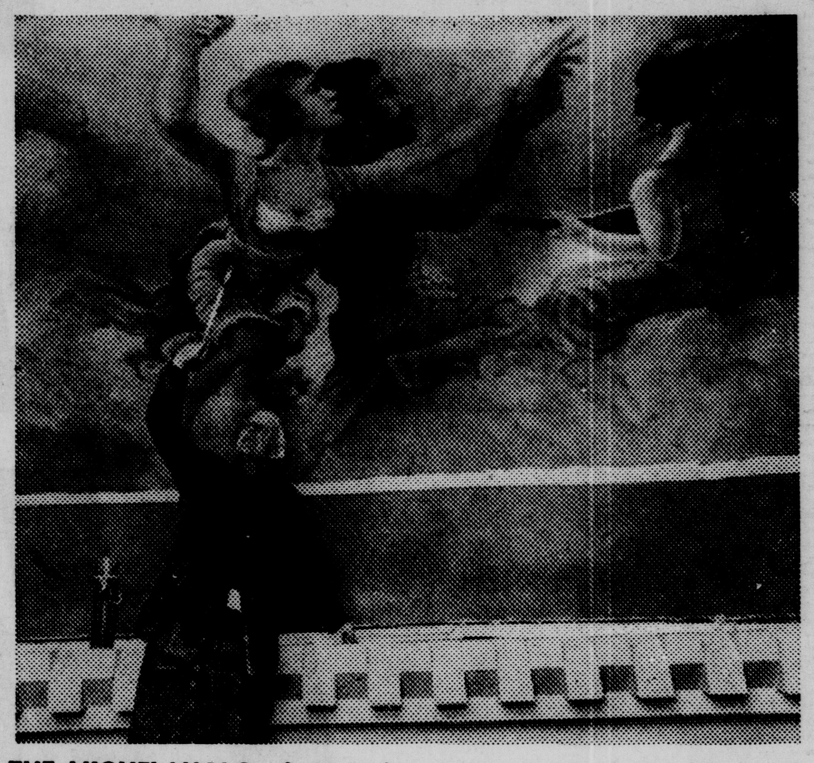
Accomplished muralist returns to a past triumph

by NORMAN NADEL

With the tip of his brush, Tony Heinsbergen heightened the ecstatic flush on the cheek of an allegorical maiden representing joy, then drew back to get the effect.

He couldn't draw back very far, because the scaffolding was narrow and the theater floor was 70 feet below. That didn't bother Tony, who had spent most of his career up in the air. But people watching from the balcony and orchestra were mighty nervous about the 82-year-old artist working so nonchalantly on the 60-foot-wide dome mural, and he didn't want to worry them any more than necessary.

"Seven hundred and fifty-one," he mumbled to himself, then wondered, "or is it seven fifty two?" Anthony B. Heinsbergen shrugged; it really didn't matter that much. But he had painted the murals for this same theater, the Orpheum in Vancouver, British Columbia, when it was constructed in 1927, and now he was doing the job again in 1977, as the Orpheum was being restored from a derelict old movie palace to a new concert hall, home of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra.



THE MICHELANGLO of movie houses is romantical about his work. He depicts life as it should have been rather than as it is.

HE SETTLED FOR the smaller figure. Since he began painting movie palace murals about 1914, which coincidentally was the beginning of that era in the history of American films, he had done a total of 751 such ornate structures. In fact, Tony Heinsbergen has outlived that era. He and his assistants did six or seven theater murals between 1960 and 1964, and that was about the end of it.

Of course, the Orpheum job, which brought him to Vancouver for two months last winter was special, for sentimental reasons, among others.

Born in Holland, Tony had decided early that he wanted to be an artist, and was apprenticed to a painter in Haarlem at the age of 11. Two years later, on his 13th birthday, he arrived with his mother, sister and brother in Los Angeles where his father, who had come some time earlier, had already secured the lad a job, again as a painter's apprentice.

At 18, Tony decided to leave home. "Los Angeles was in the dumps at that time," he recalls, "but Seattle was booming. After working in Seattle for about a year for a firm of decorators, I called on a man named Bell, who specialized in theater decoration. I unrolled my samples on the floor of his office and when he had seen about half of them he said: 'that's enough. You go to Portland tonight and start the Orpheum theater there.'

"FOUR YEARS LATER I went into business for myself and was working in Spokane when I met this wonderful, tiny little girl, Nedith, and 16 days later we were married there on the night the theater I had been working on opened.

"We drove to Vancouver — it took three days then — and had a 10-week honeymoon while I was working on the orginal Orpheum theatre there. That was in 1918. So I have a warm feeling for Vancouver, also for all of Canada, because Nedith — still as wonderful as ever if not more so — was born in Nova Scotia.

"When the 'new' Orpheum was being built in Vancouver in 1927, they asked me to do the murals for it, so back we came. Meanwhile we had established our home in Los Angeles. And when they asked me to re-do the Orpheum murals again this year — well, even though I retired from this sort of work in 1970 — although I still do a lot of easel painting and it sells very well — I couldn't refuse."

It's hardly surprising that an artist who has been lyrically in love with the same "little girl" for 59 wedded years should be romantically inclined in his work. Like the Hollywood movies that were shown in the ornate auditoriums he painted, Tony's imagery depicted life not so much as it was but as it should have been — and should be.

IN A HEINSBERGER mural, the girls are lissome and lovely, airily unselfconsious in their partial nudity. Even if the scene or allegory requires one or two of them to show the darker emotions — indignation, pain or woe — they manage to do it gracefully. However, the emotions usually are the ones apt to stir a happy or hopeful response in the viewer's breast.

The men, too, gladden the eye. A hero might be dying, or at least suffering his wounds, but his posture still reflects the elegance of his station, the splendor of his moral spirit.

None of this can be taken as incontrovertible evidence that the artist himself is unrealistic. But the lens of his own nature is bright enthusiasm and contentment generate his talent, just as anguish and anger sometimes seemed to trigger Goya's.

Tony Heinsbergen is a sweet guy who always has wanted people to feel good when they walk into any building he has decorated. They did, and despite the more austere tastes which prevail today, they still do.

THE CANVASES for the Orpheum restoration in Vancouver were painted in Heinsbergen's Los Angeles studio, brought to the Canadian provincial capital and applied to the interior of the dome with a mixture that the artist will not reveal, but which he admits does contain molasses and flour. After applying the canvases, he and his two assistants spent over two months on the scaffold, filling in and finishing the mural.

Heinsbergen regrets the austerity of most contemporary archietctural decoration.

"I don't mean that all buildings should look like the old movie palaces," he concedes. "But architecture has taken a very cold approach and now hardly anything is left of the aesthetics. In fact, with most of today's buildings, why get an architect? You just need an engineer to build a square box with so many openings for windows. But my son, who designs banks, manages to give them — modern design, yes, but with a little bit of flair, the classical background, and a little bit of the romance of the earlier days. Just a touch of nostalgia."

'Nuclear Family' begins series

"The Nuclear Family," a look at the "average American family" through the eyes of a television film crew begins today at the St. Nicholas Theater, 2851 N. Halsted. But the plot thickens, as the family is anything but average and the film documentary becomes a question of sanity.

This play begins the theater's Showcase Series, an opportunity for new writers, directors, actors and designers to work together on and revise the scripts throughout the production. "The Nuclear Family" will play on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. through October 26. The series is free to St. Nicholas season subscribers. General admission is $3.00.

Zamora trial: unanswered questions

Putting television on trial isn't easy, it isn't popular and it may not ever be possible, but it certainly does make headlines.

Last week's murder trial of 15-year-old Ronald Zamora in Miami, which ended in a guilty verdict, is a case in point. Zamora was convicted of fatally shooting Elinor Haggart, 82, his widowed neighbor, when she caught him and his friend ransacking her home.

The two allegedly made off with $415 in cash in the victim's 1972 Buick, only to turn themselves in to police four days later. Zamora's friend will stand trial separately.

Zamora's defense attorney tried to prove his client was innocent because "he suffered and acted under the influence of prolonged, intense, involuntary, subliminal telvision intoxication."

Zamora was unable to remove himself from the fantasy world of "Kojak," "Starsky and Hutch" and "Baretta," his favorite television shows, and so "pulling the trigger became as common to him as killing a fly," Rubin said.

Although he has lost the first round, the attorney intends to pursue his argument in the Florida Supreme Court and even in the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary on the grounds that the presiding judge refused testimony from a key defense psychologist because it would deal only with general speculation on the effects of television and not as it pertained specifically to Zamora.

Although Rubin has been unsuccessful in putting "television on trial," as he originally had intended, the Miami proceedings have been noteworthy.

In an ironic twist, Miami's public broadcating station has been televising the proceedings as part of a first-time Florida Supreme Court experiment in broadcasting criminal trials. The consequences of the exercise may have some interesting influence on the future of allowing camera and television equipment to record courtroom action.

But, more importantly, the Zamora trial has induced those on both sides of the age-old argument to reflect on the possible deadly and negative influences television can have.

The question of television's impact on human thought and action need not be reserved for those who move in medical circles since we are all a part of the television experience, whether we produce it, star in it or watch it.

The premise that a filmed news event that is part of a newscast or a television drama can prompt a viewer of weak mind and will to commit a criminal act is frightening.

But, as recently as last month in Hartford City, Ind., an accused murderer testified that he and a friend were involved in the killing of four brothers shortly after seeing a television dramatization of the Charles Manson murders.

There have been countless such incidents cited in the news — a gunman holds a family hostage or a youth goes on a shooting spree, both after being stimulated by something they saw on television.

It's a safe bet without the benefit of psychological expertise, to say television influences our thoughts and action as much as films, books and other people. In fact, television is the most popular, widely used stimulus of them all.

Yet the questions remain:

Can television programmers afford to concern themselves with how every viewer possibly might react to what they see?

Can parents possibly screen everything on television before they decide what to allow their children to watch?

Can viewers be expected to distinguish the fantasy of television from the reality of life and react to what they see on television in a responsible manner?

Those questions aren't likely to be answered in a court of law if ever. But, there isn't a television programmer or viewer in this country who can afford not to strive to find the answers.

TV Highlights:

• Channel 7 will premiere its new news set today on the 5, 6 and 10 p.m. news shows. It was to have been unveiled last week, but the settlement of the ABC strike forced a postponement.

• One of television's most provocative and witty interviewers, Dick Cavett, returns to the air tonight

with the premiere of his new half-hour, public broadcasting show to air Monday through Friday on Channel 11 at 10 p.m. opposite the late news and "Forever Fernwood."

Originating out of New York, the series this week includes guests such as actress Sophia Loren, dancer Rudolph Nureyev and married singers Carly Simon and James Taylor. Cavett is bound to be the cultural bright spot of the evening from now on and an asset to television talk.

• Another "Laugh-in" special airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 5, featuring Bea Arthur of "Maude" and cameos by Roger Moore and Henry Fonda.

• Johnny Cash hosts the "Country Music Assn. Awards" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 2, a salute to the hootin' and hollerin' best at the Grand Ole Opry in Hashville.

• The Los Angeles Rams meet the Chicago Bears here at home in "NFL Football" at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

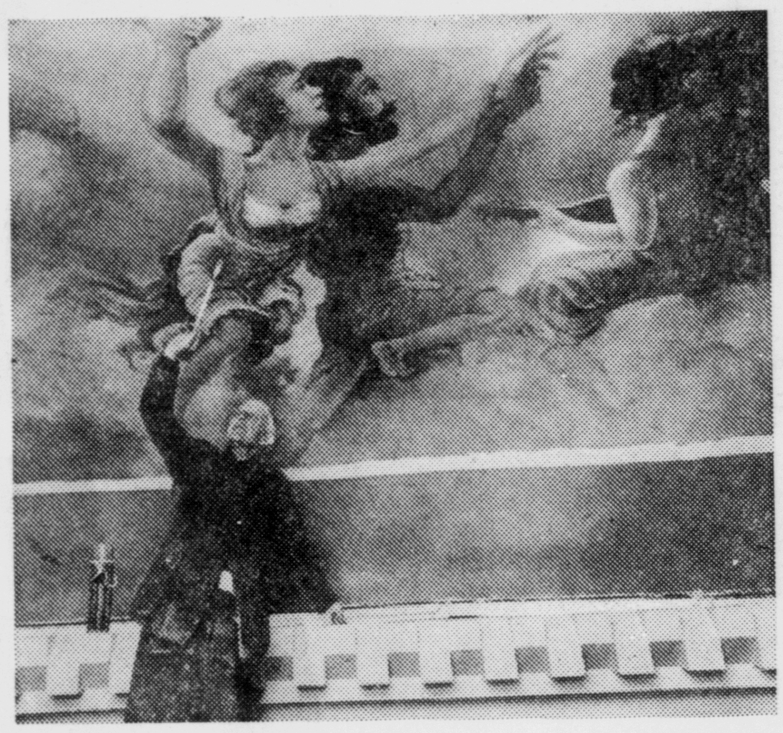
by NORMAN NADEL

With the tip of his brush, Tony Heinsbergen heightened the ecstatic flush on the cheek of an allegorical maiden representing joy, then drew back to get the effect.

He couldn't draw back very far, because the scaffolding was narrow and the theater floor was 70 feet below. That didn't bother Tony, who had spent most of his career up in the air. But people watching from the balcony and orchestra were mighty nervous about the 82-year-old artist working so nonchalantly on the 60-foot-wide dome mural, and he didn't want to worry them any more than necessary.

"Seven hundred and fifty-one," he mumbled to himself, then wondered, "or is it seven fifty two?" Anthony B. Heinsbergen shrugged; it really didn't matter that much. But he had painted the murals for this same theater, the Orpheum in Vancouver, British Columbia, when it was constructed in 1927, and now he was doing the job again in 1977, as the Orpheum was being restored from a derelict old movie palace to a new concert hall, home of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra.



THE MICHELANGLO of movie houses is romantical about his work. He depicts life as it should have been rather than as it is.

HE SETTLED FOR the smaller figure. Since he began painting movie palace murals about 1914, which coincidentally was the beginning of that era in the history of American films, he had done a total of 751 such ornate structures. In fact, Tony Heinsbergen has outlived that era. He and his assistants did six or seven theater murals between 1960 and 1964, and that was about the end of it.

Of course, the Orpheum job, which brought him to Vancouver for two months last winter was special, for sentimental reasons, among others.

Born in Holland, Tony had decided early that he wanted to be an artist, and was apprenticed to a painter in Haarlem at the age of 11. Two years later, on his 13th birthday, he arrived with his mother, sister and brother in Los Angeles where his father, who had come some time earlier, had already secured the lad a job, again as a painter's apprentice.

At 18, Tony decided to leave home. "Los Angeles was in the dumps at that time," he recalls, "but Seattle was booming. After working in Seattle for about a year for a firm of decorators, I called on a man named Bell, who specialized in theater decoration. I unrolled my samples on the floor of his office and when he had seen about half of them he said: 'that's enough. You go to Portland tonight and start the Orpheum theater there.'

"FOUR YEARS LATER I went into business for myself and was working in Spokane when I met this wonderful, tiny little girl, Nedith, and 16 days later we were married there on the night the theater I had been working on opened.

"We drove to Vancouver — it took three days then — and had a 10-week honeymoon while I was working on the orginal Orpheum theatre there. That was in 1918. So I have a warm feeling for Vancouver, also for all of Canada, because Nedith — still as wonderful as ever if not more so — was born in Nova Scotia.

"When the 'new' Orpheum was being built in Vancouver in 1927, they asked me to do the murals for it, so back we came. Meanwhile we had established our home in Los Angeles. And when they asked me to re-do the Orpheum murals again this year — well, even though I retired from this sort of work in 1970 — although I still do a lot of easel painting and it sells very well — I couldn't refuse."

It's hardly surprising that an artist who has been lyrically in love with the same "little girl" for 59 wedded years should be romantically inclined in his work. Like the Hollywood movies that were shown in the ornate auditoriums he painted, Tony's imagery depicted life not so much as it was but as it should have been — and should be.

IN A HEINSBERGER mural, the girls are lissome and lovely, airily unselfconsious in their partial nudity. Even if the scene or allegory requires one or two of them to show the darker emotions — indignation, pain or woe — they manage to do it gracefully. However, the emotions usually are the ones apt to stir a happy or hopeful response in the viewer's breast.

The men, too, gladden the eye. A hero might be dying, or at least suffering his wounds, but his posture still reflects the elegance of his station, the splendor of his moral spirit.

None of this can be taken as incontrovertible evidence that the artist himself is unrealistic. But the lens of his own nature is bright enthusiasm and contentment generate his talent, just as anguish and anger sometimes seemed to trigger Goya's.

Tony Heinsbergen is a sweet guy who always has wanted people to feel good when they walk into any building he has decorated. They did, and despite the more austere tastes which prevail today, they still do.

THE CANVASES for the Orpheum restoration in Vancouver were painted in Heinsbergen's Los Angeles studio, brought to the Canadian provincial capital and applied to the interior of the dome with a mixture that the artist will not reveal, but which he admits does contain molasses and flour. After applying the canvases, he and his two assistants spent over two months on the scaffold, filling in and finishing the mural.

Heinsbergen regrets the austerity of most contemporary archietctural decoration.

"I don't mean that all buildings should look like the old movie palaces," he concedes. "But architecture has taken a very cold approach and now hardly anything is left of the aesthetics. In fact, with most of today's buildings, why get an architect? You just need an engineer to build a square box with so many openings for windows. But my son, who designs banks, manages to give them — modern design, yes, but with a little bit of flair, the classical background, and a little bit of the romance of the earlier days. Just a touch of nostalgia."

Notice of Hearing

BEFORE THE MOUNT PROSPECT ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on the 27th day of October, 1977 at the hour of 8:00 P.M. there will be a public hearing at the PUBLIC SAFETY BOARD-ROOM, 112 East Northwest Highway, concerning a petition for change to the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as follows:

CASE NO. ZBA-49-V-77 commonly known as 109 S. Busse Rd., Mt. Prospect, Illinois 60056.

A request is made for a variation from Article 1 Section 14.101-G, which makes it unlawful; "To construct one building on more than one lot, or to occupy more than one lot by more than one main use."

The controversy seems to be about lot J. A close look however, will reveal that lot J is completely landlocked and is absolutely uesless, except for accessory buildings for myself. I believe, this is a special case for which the above article is superfluous and I respectfully request that you over-rule the Zoning Administrator.

Legal description of the property commonly known as: 109 S. Busse Road, Mt. Prospect, Illinois 60056.

That part of Lots F and J in Kirchhoff's Subdivision of the Northwest quarter of the Northwest quarter and the North 10 chains of the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section 11, Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian described as follows: Commencing at a point in the West line of said Lot F 320 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence East on a line 320 feet North of and parallel to the South line of Lots F and J as measured on the West line of said Lot F 733.95 feet to the Center of Weller Creek;

thence Northerly along the Center of Weller Creek 120 feet to a line 440 feet North of and parallel with the South line of Lots F and J, as measured on the West line of said Lot F; thence West on said parallel line 729.55 feet to the West line of Lot F; thence South on the West line of Lot F 120 feet to the place of beginning; containing 2.0155 Acres more or less in Cook County, Illinois, except the West 24.75 feet thereof.

All persons interested in the above petition will be heard.

Notice of Hearing

BEFORE THE MOUNT PROSPECT ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on the 27th day of October, 1977 at the hour of 8:00 P.M. there will be a public hearing at the PUBLIC SAFETY BOARD-ROOM, 112 East Northwest Highway, concerning a petition for change to the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as follows:

CASE NO. ZBA-49-V-77 commonly known as 109 S. Busse Rd., Mt. Prospect, Illinois 60056.

A request is made for a variation from Article 1 Section 14.101-G, which makes it unlawful; "To construct one building on more than one lot, or to occupy more than one lot by more than one main use."

The controversy seems to be about lot J. A close look however, will reveal that lot J is completely landlocked and is absolutely uesless, except for accessory buildings for myself. I believe, this is a special case for which the above article is superfluous and I respectfully request that you over-rule the Zoning Administrator.

Legal description of the property commonly known as: 109 S. Busse Road, Mt. Prospect, Illinois 60056.

That part of Lots F and J in Kirchhoff's Subdivision of the Northwest quarter of the Northwest quarter and the North 10 chains of the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section 11, Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian described as follows: Commencing at a point in the West line of said Lot F 320 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence East on a line 320 feet North of and parallel to the South line of Lots F and J as measured on the West line of said Lot F 733.95 feet to the Center of Weller Creek;

thence Northerly along the Center of Weller Creek 120 feet to a line 440 feet North of and parallel with the South line of Lots F and J, as measured on the West line of said Lot F; thence West on said parallel line 729.55 feet to the West line of Lot F; thence South on the West line of Lot F 120 feet to the place of beginning; containing 2.0155 Acres more or less in Cook County, Illinois, except the West 24.75 feet thereof.

All persons interested in the above petition will be heard.

DONALD W. GOODMAN
Village Clerk

Yankees deliver knockout, win pennant

The New York Yankees, down but never out through eight tension-packed innings, bounced off the floor in the ninth Sunday night and stunned the Kansas City Royals, 5-3, to win their second straight American League pennant.

It marked the second year in a row the Yankees rallied in the ninth to deliver the knockout blow to the Royals in the decisive fifth game. Chris Chambliss homered in the ninth inning last year to win it for New York.

The Royals, seeking their first AL pennant, seeminly had the game wrapped up when they took a 3-2 lead into the ninth and brought in their best pitcher, Dennis Leonard, to pitch the final inning. But Paul Blair led off the ninth with a single and Leonard then walked pinch-hitter Roy White on a 3-2 pitch.

Royals manager Whitey Herzog then made a move that will be second-guessed through the long winter months to come when he replaced Leonard with left-hander Larry Gura. Gura had been roughed up by the Yankees in their 7-2 triumph Saturday which had tied the series, and Mickey Rivers promptly greeted him with a sharp single to center which tied the score.

Mark Littell, who gave up Chambliss' home run a year ago, then replaced Gura and Willie Randolph put the Yankees ahead with a long sacrifice fly to center. After Thurman Munson grounded out, the Yankees scored a key insurance run when George Brett picked up Lou Piniella's grounder and threw it over the head of first baseman Pete LaCock as the fifth run scored.

Arlington High School product Paul Splittorff pitched seven strong innings before yielding to Doug Bird after a leadoff single by Randolph in the eighth. The 31-year-old lefthander departed with a yield of only six hits and received a standing ovation from the Kansas City fans.

WITH TENSION exploding into a first-inning, benches-clearing fight, the Royals took a 3-1 lead after six innings.

Splittorff, who beat the Yankees in the first game of the series and holds a 12-5 lifetime record against them, allowed the leadoff batter to reach base in three of the first six innings, but each time pitched out of trouble.

The game began controversially, with Yankee Manager Billy Martin benching his $2 million slugger Reggie Jackson, and turned violent in the first inning when Kansas City's George Brett and New York's Craig Nettles got into a fight at third base.

THE INCIDENT was touched off when Brett tripled over the head of center fielder Mickey Rivers to score Hal McRae, beating the relay throw to third with a hard slide. While applying the tag, Nettles kicked Brett and the Royals' third baseman jumped up and hit Nettles in the face with a punch. Both benches rushed onto the field, but order was quickly restored.

Following the fracas, Brett returned to third base and scored a moment later when Al Cowens bounced out to Nettles, putting the Royals ahead 2-0.

The Yankees got a run back off Splittorff after two were out in the third.

Dodgers anxious to begin next page of 'storybook'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Manager Tom Lasorda and fourth-game heroes Dusty Baker and Tommy John led the National League champions in thanks for a "storybook season" Sunday while waiting to learn who their opponent will be in the World Series.

"This is the greatest thrill of my life," said Lasorda, who became the 19th manager in baseball history to win the pennant in his first season after replacing Walter Alston, the Dodger manager for the previous 23 years. "They went to spring training believing they could beat any club in baseball and they were just wonderful all season.

"It is very satisfying to clinch it in Philadelphia," Lasorda added. "I saw a newspaper clipping that quoted Greg Luzinski as saying the Dodgers didn't even belong on the same field with the Phillies and another one with Danny Ozark saying the Phillies would win the thing in three.

"WE WILL GO with Sutton in the first game of the World Series, no matter what city we go into," he added.

The Dodgers, 4-1 victors over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night, will meet either the Kansas City Royals or the New York Yankees in the first game of the World Series, Tuesday night, in the American League team's park. They remained in Philadelphia Sunday to watch the outcome of the American League championship series on TV.

"It doesn't matter whether we play the Royals or Yankees," said Baker. "They're both good clubs.

"This is the greatest thing in my career," added Baker, the NL playoff's most valuable player. "Although John is a very good pitcher, we were trying to get more runs because the Phillies are an explosive club."

"IT HAS BEEN a storybook year," said John, who pitched a seven-hitter and struck out eight in the cincher. "This has been the greatest year I've ever had.

"I owe a lot to the Dodgers, my wife and the doctor who operated on me," added the 34-year-old southpaw, whose career was saved by an unusual operation following the 1974 season. "But most of all I thank God. I thank God when I pitch — win or lose. When I speak at churches during the off-season I tell people that when things are bad you have to have faith.

"It's super that Dusty got the MVP award," John noted. "He deserved it. He had been pressing to get his 30th homer. He got it on the last day of the season and has been hot ever since."

The Dodgers shrugged off the wretched conditions under which the fourth game was played — Baker said they once played "under worse conditions in New York" — but the slick, rain-drenched artificial surface helped them score two of their four runs in the fourth game.

The Dodgers carried only a 2-1 lead, thanks to Baker's two-run homer in the second inning, into the fifth. It had been raining steadily since 7 p.m., increasing in intensity in the third and fourth innings, and the playing surface was slick.

Losing pitcher Steve Carlton, the direct victim of both runs, allowed the first on a wild pitch with runners on first and second base and one out. The pitch bounced in front of the plate and skidded all the way to the backstop as Baker scored and Steve Yeager went to third, while catcher Tim McCarver frantically tried to pick up the elusive ball. Yeager dashed in with the second run when Carlton slipped trying to come off the mound to field Bill Russell's bunt which went for a single.

FIGHT NIGHT. Players from Kansas City and New York mix it up at third base after the Royals' George Brett and Yankees' Graig Nettles kicked and slugged it out following Brett's triple Sunday night. Joining in the fracas in American League playoff drama are coach Bobby Cox (33), Thurman Munson (15) and Chris Chambliss (10).

Phillies blame 4-1 loss on rain and bad offense

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies said the drenching rain Saturday night didn't help matters, but they admit what really eliminated them from the National League playoffs was an offensive dry spell.

"From the standpoint of the fans seeing the best possible baseball, I don't think the game should have been played," said Manager Danny Ozark after the Los Angeles Dodgers' 4-1 victory eliminated his team.

"But we just didn't hit very well through the entire series," he added.

OZARK ALSO said he came to the ballpark "really thinking that our guys would bounce back. But it wasn't that they were tight. That guy (Dodger pitcher Tommy John) pitched a helluva game."

"We didn't hit the ball the whole series," Phillies' slugger Greg Luzinski said. "And their pitching came through. (Don) Sutton gave them a complete game. Tommy John gave them a complete game. Give them credit.

Ozark said if he had had his way, the game would not have been played at all. And Luzinski said the move to play the game was "a hard decision. It wasn't our decision. It was the league's decision. Personally, I think the fans didn't see very good baseball, but it was not my decision."

"BASEBALL IS a game that's supposed to be rained out," Phillies' third baseman Mike Schmidt said. "It's not football.

"There would have been no problem at all playing tomorrow," Schmidt added. "I'm not saying that because of what happened, because the Dodgers were out there too. It's not fair to play 165 games and have your whole season come down to one game and then play that game in the rain.

"We had no business being out there. The league president and the commissioner never played a game in their life. They have no idea what it's like, especially on artificial turf," he said.

Bears out to show fans, coaches, players their best

by BOB GALLAS

Bears coach Jack Pardee won't have to worry about his team being psyched up for tonight's game with the Los Angeles Rams, despite the fact that his club has lost its last two games and looked bad in the process.

The inspiration will come from along the sidelines and even from high atop Soldier Field as ABC television cameras and announcers will be beaming the game to millions of football fans across the country.

Though the Baars won't be able to impress Howard Cosell, who will be absent from the broadcast booth for today's 8 p.m. telecast on Channel 7, they will have a chance to impress fans across the country and fellow members of the National Football League too.

"It's the only game where other players and coaches are watching," said kicker Bob Thomas.

"I CAN SEE MYSELF getting into the backfield and getting (Joe) Namath," said defensive end Billy Newsome, who was a teammate of the Rams' quarterback two years ago when they were with the New York Jets.

"I want to show everyone in the country I can play and stop all this negative talk," said defensive tackle Wally Chambers, who hasn't played in a regular season game this year but should be back tonight.

The Bears are no strangers to Monday Night Football only in that they have watched it. Most of the young Chicago squad have played in only one Monay night game, two years ago when the Vikings won 13-9. The Rams are more familiar with the national exposure, however, and they're a team that has shown steady improvement after an opening upset loss to Atlanta.

The Rams have won their last two outings as an offensive line torn apart during training camp by injuries and holdouts has come together to give Namath time to pass. Coupled with a defensive team ranked second in the NFL, the Rams promise to give the Bears all they can possibly handle.

LEFT TACKLE Doug France, left guard Tom Mack and center Rich Saul all missed a substantial part of the preseason, France because of knee surgery while Mack and Saul were holdouts. Their absence, along with that of split end Harold Jackson, made it a long summer for Namath as Los Angeles limped to a 1-5 preseason record.

But Mack, Saul and Jackson resolved their contract problems, and France returned three weeks earlier than expected from surgery to start L.A.'s second regular season game.

The L.A. offense was jolted last week when their leading receiver, Ron Jessie, was knocked out of action for the rest of the year with a knee injury. But it isn't Namath's passing that worries Pardee; it's Namath handing off to running backs Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappeletti.

In the Rams' last two wins, Namath has handed off 83 times while passing only 37 times. Pardee compared the present day Rams with the Namath-led Jets that won the 1969 Super Bowl.

"THE REALLY great year they (Jets) had as a team, they had a great running game," said Pardee. "They had (Emerson) Boozer and (Matt) Snell and each one had close to 1,000 yards."

"The Rams throw when they want to, not when they have to," he added.

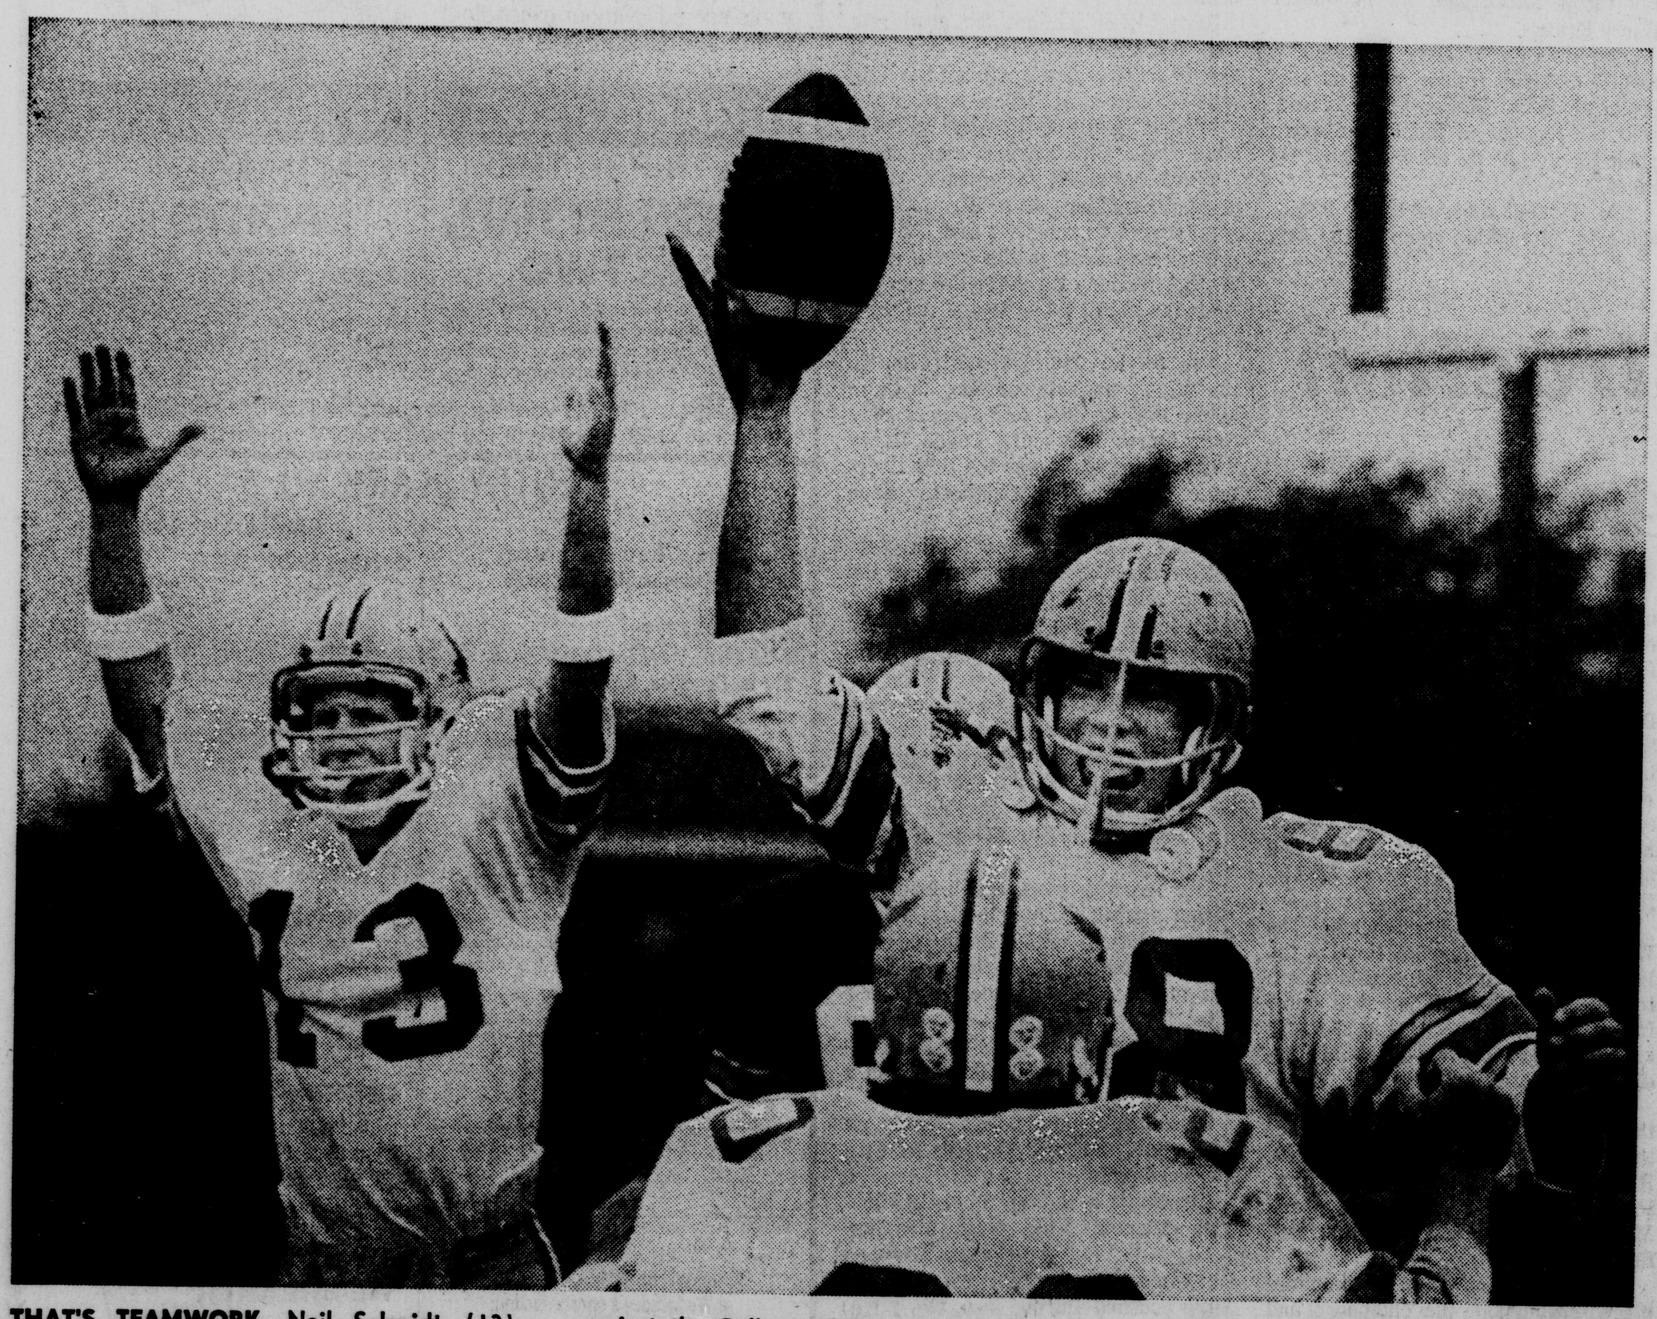
While McCutcheon is a threat to run he is also Namath's second favorite target. He's caught eight passes for 59 yards, second only to Jessie's nine catches.

Rookie Bill Waddy, out of the University of Colorado, will take over for Jessie this week armed with only his collegiate press clippings. Waddy has returned punts for the Rams but hasn't played on offense yet. He played both wide receiver and running back in college.

THE RETURN of Chambers to the defensive line, though it will only be for half of the game at most, may give the Chicago defense a lift. Chambers almost always draws a double-team block which should take some of the pressure off other Bear linemen and linebackers as well. But across the line from Chambers will be the All-Pro Mack.

Doug Plank may also return to the Chicago lineup at least on special teams. The volatile free safety went out with a knee injury sustained in the final preseason game but looked good in practice all week and should start on defense tonight. That will bolster the Bears' pass defense, which has been the bottom of the league statistically so far.

Even Pardee admits tonight is a "must" game for Chicago to win. A loss would put the Bears record at 1-3 going to Minnesota next week to face the Vikings, a gloomy prospect. "But every game is a must game if you're going anywhere," Pardee said.



THAT'S TEAMWORK. Neil Schmidt (13) has the signal and Rick Wrzala has the football after scoring Harper's first touchdown against the College of Dupage Saturday. It came on a 45-yeard pass in the first quarter and stood up as the only six-point play of the afternoon. The Hawks came up with their second straight shutout, 9-0, to give them a 3-2 record. Big play day in NFL

Sunday was the day of the big play in the National Football League.

There were 13 scoring plays of 50 yards or longer, the longest being a 90-yard kickoff return for a touchdown by Miami's Fred Solomon in a loss to Baltimore.

Joe Pisarcik of the New York Giants had the longest scoring pass, an 80-yarder to Jimmy Robinson, Dallas rookie Tony Dorsett had a 77-yard touchdown run from scrimmage and Mike Fuller of San Diego had an 88-yard punt return for a score.

There were four 50 yards or longer TD plays in the Miami-Baltimore game, won by the Colts 45-28.

"BASEBALL IS a game that's supposed to be rained out," Phillies' third baseman Mike Schmidt said. "It's not football.

"There would have been no problem at all playing tomorrow," Schmidt added. "I'm not saying that because of what happened, because the Dodgers were out there too. It's not fair to play 165 games and have your whole season come down to one game and then play that game in the rain.

"We had no business being out there. The league president and the commissioner never played a game in their life. They have no idea what it's like, especially on artificial turf," he said.

Bears out to show fans, coaches, players their best

by BOB GALLAS

Bears coach Jack Pardee won't have to worry about his team being psyched up for tonight's game with the Los Angeles Rams, despite the fact that his club has lost its last two games and looked bad in the process.

The inspiration will come from along the sidelines and even from high atop Soldier Field as ABC television cameras and announcers will be beaming the game to millions of football fans across the country.

Though the Baars won't be able to impress Howard Cosell, who will be absent from the broadcast booth for today's 8 p.m. telecast on Channel 7, they will have a chance to impress fans across the country and fellow members of the National Football League too.

"It's the only game where other players and coaches are watching," said kicker Bob Thomas.

"I CAN SEE MYSELF getting into the backfield and getting (Joe) Namath," said defensive end Billy Newsome, who was a teammate of the Rams' quarterback two years ago when they were with the New York Jets.

"I want to show everyone in the country I can play and stop all this negative talk," said defensive tackle Wally Chambers, who hasn't played in a regular season game this year but should be back tonight.

The Bears are no strangers to Monday Night Football only in that they have watched it. Most of the young Chicago squad have played in only one Monay night game, two years ago when the Vikings won 13-9. The Rams are more familiar with the national exposure, however, and they're a team that has shown steady improvement after an opening upset loss to Atlanta.

The Rams have won their last two outings as an offensive line torn apart during training camp by injuries and holdouts has come together to give Namath time to pass. Coupled with a defensive team ranked second in the NFL, the Rams promise to give the Bears all they can possibly handle.

LEFT TACKLE Doug France, left guard Tom Mack and center Rich Saul all missed a substantial part of the preseason, France because of knee surgery while Mack and Saul were holdouts. Their absence, along with that of split end Harold Jackson, made it a long summer for Namath as Los Angeles limped to a 1-5 preseason record.

But Mack, Saul and Jackson resolved their contract problems, and France returned three weeks earlier than expected from surgery to start L.A.'s second regular season game.

The L.A. offense was jolted last week when their leading receiver, Ron Jessie, was knocked out of action for the rest of the year with a knee injury. But it isn't Namath's passing that worries Pardee; it's Namath handing off to running backs Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappeletti.

In the Rams' last two wins, Namath has handed off 83 times while passing only 37 times. Pardee compared the present day Rams with the Namath-led Jets that won the 1969 Super Bowl.

"THE REALLY great year they (Jets) had as a team, they had a great running game," said Pardee. "They had (Emerson) Boozer and (Matt) Snell and each one had close to 1,000 yards."

"The Rams throw when they want to, not when they have to," he added.

While McCutcheon is a threat to run he is also Namath's second favorite target. He's caught eight passes for 59 yards, second only to Jessie's nine catches.

Rookie Bill Waddy, out of the University of Colorado, will take over for Jessie this week armed with only his collegiate press clippings. Waddy has returned punts for the Rams but hasn't played on offense yet. He played both wide receiver and running back in college.

THE RETURN of Chambers to the defensive line, though it will only be for half of the game at most, may give the Chicago defense a lift. Chambers almost always draws a double-team block which should take some of the pressure off other Bear linemen and linebackers as well. But across the line from Chambers will be the All-Pro Mack.

Doug Plank may also return to the Chicago lineup at least on special teams. The volatile free safety went out with a knee injury sustained in the final preseason game but looked good in practice all week and should start on defense tonight. That will bolster the Bears' pass defense, which has been the bottom of the league statistically so far.

Even Pardee admits tonight is a "must" game for Chicago to win. A loss would put the Bears record at 1-3 going to Minnesota next week to face the Vikings, a gloomy prospect. "But every game is a must game if you're going anywhere," Pardee said.

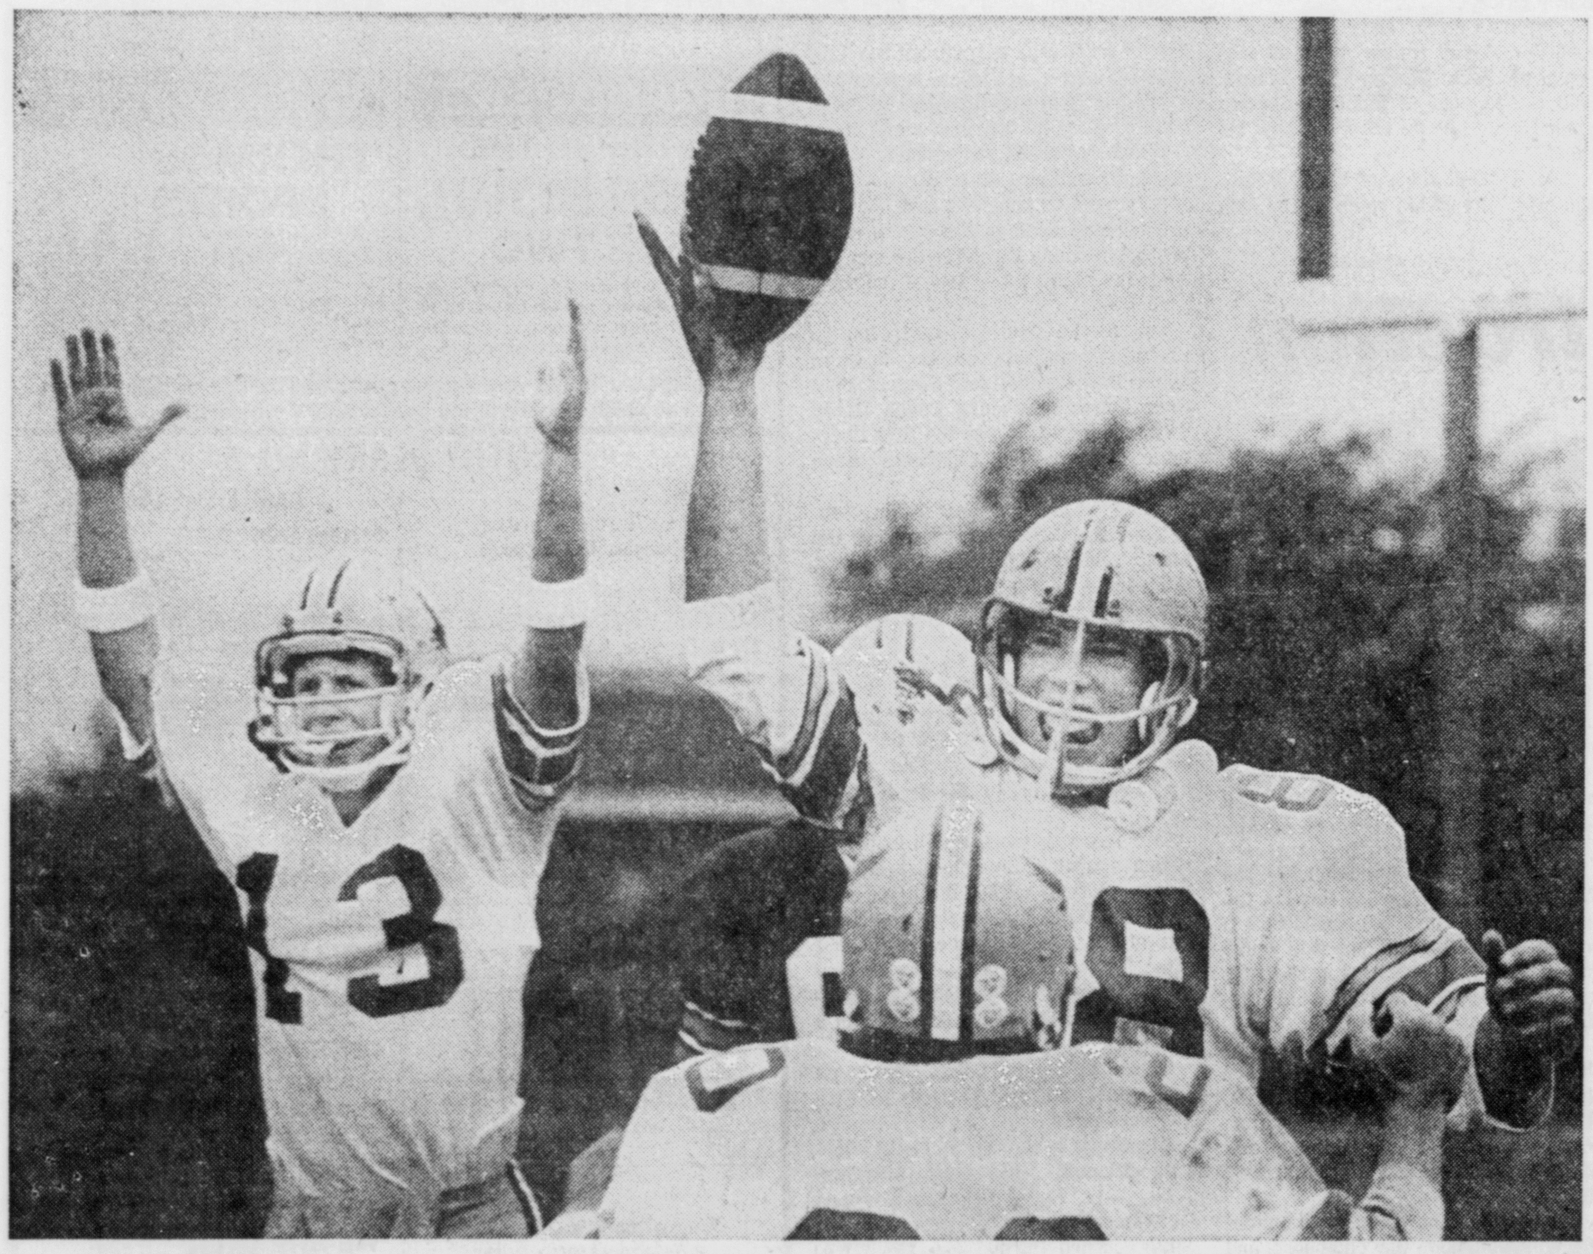

THAT'S TEAMWORK. Neil Schmidt (13) has the signal and Rick Wrzala has the football after scoring Harper's first touchdown against the College of Dupage Saturday. It came on a 45-yeard pass in the first quarter and stood up as the only six-point play of the afternoon. The Hawks came up with their second straight shutout, 9-0, to give them a 3-2 record. See Story on Page 3. (Photo by Dave Tonge)

Big play day in NFL

Sunday was the day of the big play in the National Football League.

There were 13 scoring plays of 50 yards or longer, the longest being a 90-yard kickoff return for a touchdown by Miami's Fred Solomon in a loss to Baltimore.

Joe Pisarcik of the New York Giants had the longest scoring pass, an 80-yarder to Jimmy Robinson, Dallas rookie Tony Dorsett had a 77-yard touchdown run from scrimmage and Mike Fuller of San Diego had an 88-yard punt return for a score.

There were four 50 yards or longer TD plays in the Miami-Baltimore game, won by the Colts 45-28.

Houston bumps Pittsburg

Colts slice up Miami

by IRA KAUFMAN

The Miami Dolphins pitted their unbeaten record and new "no-name" defense against the strong right arm of Baltimore's Bert Jones: it was no contest.

Don Shula's surprising Dolphins, featuring a revised defense which had allowed only 22 points, ran up a 28-10 lead in the second quarter before Jones passed them dizzy en route to a 45-28 Colt victory.

NFL report

First, Jones led the Colts on a 79-yard drive and passed three yards to Glenn Doughty to make it 28-17. After a Dolphin fumble, Jones hit Raymond Chesterton a 19-yard TD and Maimi's lead was cut to four at the half.

DON McCAULEY caught a 34-yarder from Jones to put the Colts ahead and a 5-yard flip to Doughty made it 37-28 after three periods. McCauley's 1-yard plunge ended the 35-point Colts blitz and left them all alone atop the AFC East.

"When you're down like that, everyone has to play well," said Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda, who called the game "a great victory for the Colts."

Elsewhere in the NFL, Houston took sole possession of first in the AFC Central with a 27-10 win over injury-riddled Pittsburgh, Minnesota beat Detroit 14-7, San Diego blanked New Orleans 14-0 and Ron Jaworski fired two TD passes in guiding Philadelphia over the New York Giants 28-10.

Also, Cincinnati downed Green Bay 17-7, the New York Jets beat Buffalo 24-19, Steve Grogan passed for three touchdowns as New England rolled over Seattle 31-0, Oakland won its 17th straight game, defeating Cleveland 26-10, Atlanta blanked San Francisco 7-0, Washington handed Tampa Bay its 18th straight loss, 18-10, Dallas allied to beat St. Louis 30-24 and Denver remained unbeaten with a 23-7 romp over winless Kansas City.

DAN PASTORINI snapped a 10-10 tie with a 51-yard TD pass to Billy Johnson and the Steelers were forced to use rookie safety Tony Dungy at quarterback after injuries sidelined both Terry Bradshaw and Mike Kruczek. The Oilers forced six fumbles in the last quarter and Dungy's fumbled snap on his third play was scooped up by Greg Stemrick, who ran it in for a 5-yard insurance TD.

Frank Tarkenton hit Sammy White with a 12-yard TD pass and a Tarkenton-to-Ahmad Rashad pass and lateral to White covered 59 yards for another score as the Vikings took over sole possession of first in the NFC Central. Detroit's Greg Landry, the league's leading quarterback, hit 25-of-45 passes for 250 yards and a touchdown.

Mike Fuller went 88 yards with a punt for a TD and Rickey Young added a 5-yard TD run as the Chargers improved their record to 3-1. Saints quarterback Archie Manning was sacked eight times and netted only 43 passing yards.

Sam Cunningham ran for 81 yards in the first half to complement Grogan's passing and New England's defense totally smothered the Seahawks, who gained only 50 yards passing.

OAKLAND'S MARK van Eeghen ran for 114 yards and two TDs. Cleveland's only score came on a 20-yard pass from Brian Sipe to Reggie Rucker.

Alfred Jenkins grabbed a 39-yard deflected pass from Scott Hunter late in the third quarter for the game's only score as the Falcons won for the third time in four games. Atlanta's defense has allowed only 19 points all season — the best mark in the NFL — while the 49ers remain winless.

Mike Thomas scored on a 6-yard run and Mark Moseley kicked a 44-yard field goal in the first period as Washington improved its record to 3-1. The Bucs punted 11 times — tying an NFL record.

A pair of pass interference calls on St. Louis cornerback Lee Nelson set up two Dallas touchdowns in the fourth quarter and the Cowboys remained the NFC's only unbeaten team. Dallas took the lead for the first time when Roger Staubach hit Golden Richards with a 17-yard TD pass with seven minutes left and the Cowboys intercepted Jim Hart twice in the final moments to preserve the win.

DENVER'S DEFENSE picked off four passes and the Broncos used three Jim Turner field goals and two short rushing touchdowns for their fifth straight victory over a 2-year span. Denver took a 16-0 halftime lead on a 7-yard bootleg by Craig Morton and Turner's three field goals, and Otis Armstrong later added a 1-yard scoring run.

Jaworski hit tight end Keith Krepfle with a 55-yard TD pass and Charles Smith with a 28-yarder and Herb Lusk ran for TDs of one and 70 yards in a steady rain as the Eagles evened their record at 2-2. Joe Pisarcik threw an 80-yard pass to Jimmy Robinson for New York's only TD.

After Green Bay jumped off to a 7-0, the heavily favored Bengals scored 17 straight points on Issac Curtis' 8-yard TD catch, Tony Davis' 2-yard run and Chris Bahr's 32-yard field goal.

The Jets' Clark Gaines ran 14 yards for the winning score two plays after Richard Neal recovered a fumble late in the fourth quarter. Richard Todd ran for one Jet TD and passed for a career-high 194 yards, including a 5-yard TD pass to Jerome Barkum. The Bills lost their 13th straight game despite getting 122 rushing yards from O. J. Simpson.

ROCKY BLEIER of the Pittsburgh Steelers flies over the goal line for a touchdown past Houston's linebacker Steve Kiner Sunday. Bleier's touchdown gave the Steelers a short-lived 10-7 lead. Houston came back to win, 27-10.

Alabama snaps win record in 21-20 victory over USC

College football

Alabama snapped the nation's longest major college winning streak at 15 games Saturday when the eighth-ranked Crimson Tide thwarted No. 1 Southern California's two-point conversion attempt with 35 seconds to play for a 21-20 victory in Los Angeles.

The two-point conversion try came after a furious Trojan comeback that brought USC from a 21-6 deficit with seven minutes left to within reach of winning the game.

After Lynn Cain ran one yard for a touchdown with 35 seconds to go, Southern Cal tried to pass for two points but quarterback Rob Hertel, caught behind the line of scrimmage by end Wayne Hamilton, had a wobbly throw intercepted by linebacker Barry Krauss.

LOSING COACH John Robinson, a former Oakland Raider assistant who replaced John McKay last season, said the thought of kicking an extra point for a 21-21 tie never crossed his mind.

"No, I didn't think of that," Robinson said. "I couldn't come in and look my team in the face after going for a tie.

"You play to win a game. That's the only way. The kids play too hard out there and they don't play to tie."

ALABAMA'S LEGENDARY coach, Paul (Bear) Bryant, said, "I agree with Coach Robinson. I sure would have gone for two. And the position USC was in, they had no choice. I've never seen a team that came back like they did.

"It was a great win and I'm very proud of my team," Bryant added. "I think everyone played as well as they could."

Bryant was jubilant for good reason. The Crimson Tide has now won four of its five games against the Trojans in a series that began in 1938.

"We've finally established a great rivalry with USC," Bryant exulted.

TONY NATHAN, a talented junior wishbone halfback from Birmingham, Ala., scored on runs of 1 and 15 yards in 58-second span in the fourth quarter after Johnny Davis' 2-yard run put Alabama ahead 7-3 at 5:08 of the third period.

Not to be overshadowed, fourth-ranked Texas subdued No. 3 Oklahoma 13-6 to deal the Sooners only their fourth loss since Coach Barry Switzer arrived. It was the first Longhorn victory over Oklahoma since 1970.

Senior fulldack Earl Campbell, battling the Oklahoma defense for the fourth and final time in his career, gained 124 yards in 23 carries and scored the winning touchdown on a 25-yard draw.

Russell McEachren, a senior who never had played a down of varsity football before this season, came in after the Longhorns' first two QBs were injured in the opening period and directed the lone TD drive of the day.

The Texas defense, which leads the nation against rushing and in fewest points allowed, settled the game with 3:50 remaining by stopping the Sooners on 4th-and-1 from the Longhorn 5 after Russell Erxleben — who kicked 64 and 58-yard field goals for Texas — punted 69 yards to put Oklahoma in a hole.

Oklahoma's only points came on field goals of 47 and 32 yards by Uwe von Schamann.

Elsewhere in the top 10, No. 2 Michigan defeated state rival Michigan State 24-14, No. 5 Colorado whipped Oklahoma State 29-13, No. 6 Ohio State crushed Purdue 46-0, No. 7 Nebraska beat Kansas State 26-9 and Washington State upset No. 10 California 17-10. Ninth-ranked Arkansas was idle.

Goose Filter the attraction as Arlington trotters open

Goose Filter heads a field of one dozen 2-year-old pacers slated to go postward tonight in the $35,718 Illinois Breeders Stake at Arlington Park, which will host harness racing for the first time in its 50-year history.

This conditioned pace will go as the sixth event on a 10-race card which gets underway at 8:15. The 71-night sulky meet will run through Dec. 31 with racing Monday through Saturday.

Racing Secretary Bob Larry has put together an opening night program consisting of eight mile and one-eighth races and a pair of seven furlong paces. These were the two distances most agreeable to horsemen who were on hand for last week's qualifiers over Arlington's new all-weather racing strip.

FROM WIRE-TO-WIRE, Arlington's oval is a mile and one-eighth, and its one mile chute provides Larry with the opportunity to card events at seven-eighths.

As for the racing strip itself, the horsemen seem very pleased. "The track is super good," remarked driver-trainer Stanley Banks who then added, "In fact, it's a lot better than we expected."

Track Superintendent Cesare Gennari was responsible for converting Arlington's thoroughbred course to the harness strip. It was a job he accomplished in just three days.

"It is very important to keep the track smooth and level," Gennari explained. "What you look for is consistency."

WHEN SPEAKING of consistency, no other word better describes the efforts of Goose Filter and the company he engages tonight.

With driver-trainer Jerry Graham at the controls, Goose Filter travelled the traditional harness mile in 1:54-1 this past August at Springfield. This was an effort that earned him the distinction of becoming the fastest Illinois bred three-year-old pacer in history.

Thirty-four appearances behind the starting gate have led to 22 lifetime victories for the chestnut colt who has amassed earnings of $143,942. The "Goose" drew the seven hole here, with Cookie Snatcher, a main rival, alongside in the eight slot.

Cookie Snatcher and driver-trainer Eric Thorgren recently captured the $112,500 "Pete Langley Memorial" at Sportsman's, cutting the mile in 2:03 over a sloppy surface. It was win number eight in 15 tries this season for the Nevele Dancer colt.

THERE IS a two-horse entry in the Breeders Stake from the Pletcher Stable. Steve Pletcher will be in the bike behind Sluf while Dwayne Pletcher will guide Pepe Dancer. The latter appears the stronger of the two as he defeated both Goose Filter and Cookie Snatcher in 1:54-2 at Springfield.

However, Sluf is no slouch. The Winter Time filly finished third in the Langley and must be considered a threat in this spot as she will leave from the rail. Her 15 wins in 28 starts and earnings of $70,000-plus are indicative of her talents.

Shawn Dancer, the hero of the Hawthorne and Maywood meets earlier this year, Parker Pearson Clyde B, Hi Land Berna, Win N Fortune, Prairie Rock, Breeze Ranger and Miss Egyptian complete the Stakes' field.

There will be 50 color TV monitors placed throughout the clubhouse and grandstand, providing close-up and replay race action. Also, Wolrd Series baseball and Monday Night Football games will be shown on the system.

Houston bumps Pittsburg

Colts slice up Miami

by IRA KAUFMAN

The Miami Dolphins pitted their unbeaten record and new "no-name" defense against the strong right arm of Baltimore's Bert Jones: it was no contest.

Don Shula's surprising Dolphins, featuring a revised defense which had allowed only 22 points, ran up a 28-10 lead in the second quarter before Jones passed them dizzy en route to a 45-28 Colt victory.

NFL report

First, Jones led the Colts on a 79-yard drive and passed three yards to Glenn Doughty to make it 28-17. After a Dolphin fumble, Jones hit Raymond Chesterton a 19-yard TD and Maimi's lead was cut to four at the half.

DON McCAULEY caught a 34-yarder from Jones to put the Colts ahead and a 5-yard flip to Doughty made it 37-28 after three periods. McCauley's 1-yard plunge ended the 35-point Colts blitz and left them all alone atop the AFC East.

"When you're down like that, everyone has to play well," said Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda, who called the game "a great victory for the Colts."

Elsewhere in the NFL, Houston took sole possession of first in the AFC Central with a 27-10 win over injury-riddled Pittsburgh, Minnesota beat Detroit 14-7, San Diego blanked New Orleans 14-0 and Ron Jaworski fired two TD passes in guiding Philadelphia over the New York Giants 28-10.

Also, Cincinnati downed Green Bay 17-7, the New York Jets beat Buffalo 24-19, Steve Grogan passed for three touchdowns as New England rolled over Seattle 31-0, Oakland won its 17th straight game, defeating Cleveland 26-10, Atlanta blanked San Francisco 7-0, Washington handed Tampa Bay its 18th straight loss, 18-10, Dallas allied to beat St. Louis 30-24 and Denver remained unbeaten with a 23-7 romp over winless Kansas City.

DAN PASTORINI snapped a 10-10 tie with a 51-yard TD pass to Billy Johnson and the Steelers were forced to use rookie safety Tony Dungy at quarterback after injuries sidelined both Terry Bradshaw and Mike Kruczek. The Oilers forced six fumbles in the last quarter and Dungy's fumbled snap on his third play was scooped up by Greg Stemrick, who ran it in for a 5-yard insurance TD.

Frank Tarkenton hit Sammy White with a 12-yard TD pass and a Tarkenton-to-Ahmad Rashad pass and lateral to White covered 59 yards for another score as the Vikings took over sole possession of first in the NFC Central. Detroit's Greg Landry, the league's leading quarterback, hit 25-of-45 passes for 250 yards and a touchdown.

Mike Fuller went 88 yards with a punt for a TD and Rickey Young added a 5-yard TD run as the Chargers improved their record to 3-1. Saints quarterback Archie Manning was sacked eight times and netted only 43 passing yards.

Sam Cunningham ran for 81 yards in the first half to complement Grogan's passing and New England's defense totally smothered the Seahawks, who gained only 50 yards passing.

OAKLAND's MARK van Eeghen ran for 114 yards and two TDs. Cleveland's only score came on a 20-yard pass from Brian Sipe to Reggie Rucker.

Alfred Jenkins grabbed a 39-yard deflected pass from Scott Hunter late in the third quarter for the game's only score as the Falcons won for the third time in four games. Atlanta's defense has allowed only 19 points all season — the best mark in the NFL — while the 49ers remain winless.

Mike Thomas scored on a 6-yard run and Mark Moseley kicked a 44-yard field goal in the first period as Washington improved its record to 3-1. The Bucs punted 11 times — tying an NFL record.

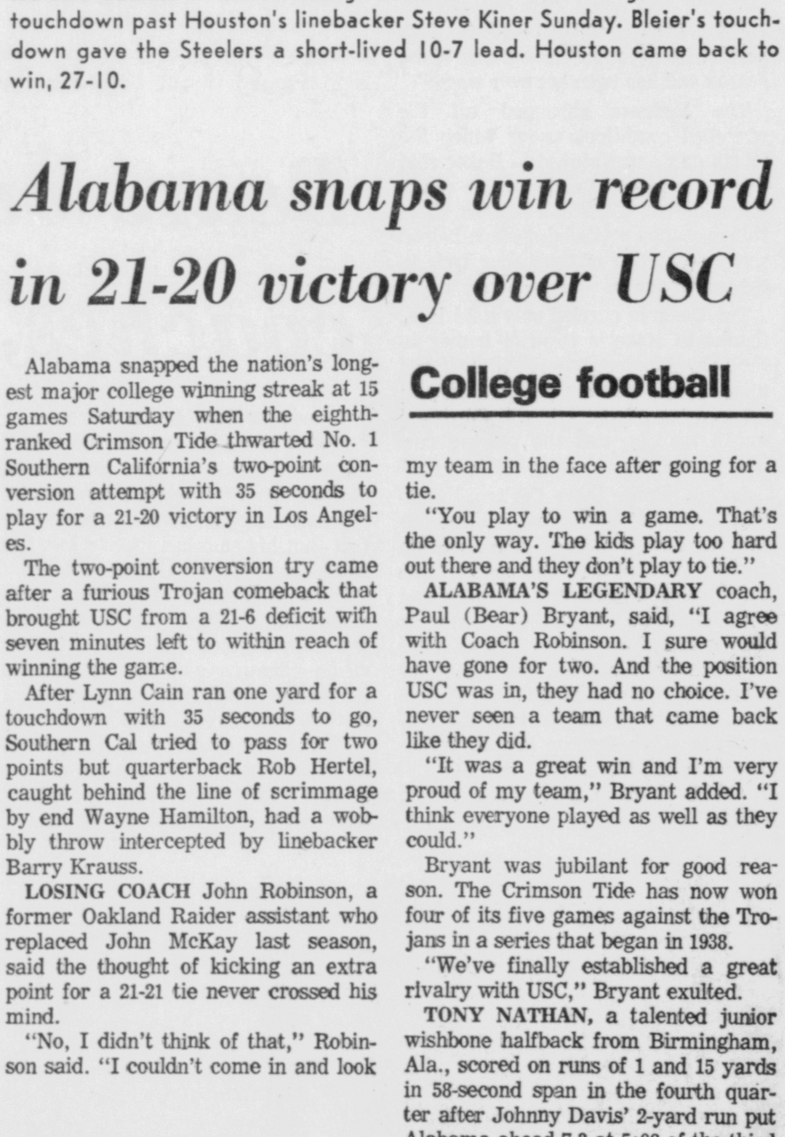
A pair of pass interference calls on St. Louis cornerback Lee Nelson set up two Dallas touchdowns in the fourth quarter and the Cowboys remained the NFC's only unbeaten team. Dallas took the lead for the first time when Roger Staubach hit Golden Richards with a 17-yard TD pass with seven minutes left and the Cowboys intercepted Jim Hart twice in the final moments to preserve the win.

DENVER'S DEFENSE picked off four passes and the Broncos used three Jim Turner field goals and two short rushing touchdowns for their fifth straight victory over a 2-year span. Denver took a 16-0 halftime lead on a 7-yard bootleg by Craig Morton and Turner's three field goals, and Otis Armstrong later added a 1-yard scoring run.

Jaworski hit tight end Keith Krepfle with a 55-yard TD pass and Charles Smith with a 28-yarder and Herb Lusk ran for TDs of one and 70 yards in a steady rain as the Eagles evened their record at 2-2. Joe Pisarcik threw an 80-yard pass to Jimmy Robinson for New York's only TD.

After Green Bay jumped off to a 7-0, the heavily favored Bengals scored 17 straight points on Issac Curtis' 8-yard TD catch, Tony Davis' 2-yard run and Chris Bahr's 32-yard field goal.

The Jets' Clark Gaines ran 14 yards for the winning score two plays after Richard Neal recovered a fumble late in the fourth quarter. Richard Todd ran for one Jet TD and passed for a career-high 194 yards, including a 5-yard TD pass to Jerome Barkum. The Bills lost their 13th straight game despite getting 122 rushing yards from O. J. Simpson.



ROCKY BLEIER of the Pittsburgh Steelers flies over the goal line for a touchdown past Houston's linebacker Steve Kiner Sunday. Bleier's touchdown gave the Steelers a short-lived 10-7 lead. Houston came back to win, 27-10.

Alabama snaps win record in 21-20 victory over USC

College football

Alabama snapped the nation's longest major college winning streak at 15 games Saturday when the eighth-ranked Crimson Tide thwarted No. 1 Southern California's two-point conversion attempt with 35 seconds to play for a 21-20 victory in Los Angeles.

The two-point conversion try came after a furious Trojan comeback that brought USC from a 21-6 deficit with seven minutes left to within reach of winning the game.

After Lynn Cain ran one yard for a touchdown with 35 seconds to go, Southern Cal tried to pass for two points but quarterback Rob Hertel, caught behind the line of scrimmage by end Wayne Hamilton, had a wobbly throw intercepted by linebacker Barry Krauss.

LOSING COACH John Robinson, a former Oakland Raider assistant who replaced John McKay last season, said the thought of kicking an extra point for a 21-21 tie never crossed his mind.

"No, I didn't think of that," Robinson said. "I couldn't come in and look my team in the face after going for a tie.

"You play to win a game. That's the only way. The kids play too hard out there and they don't play to tie."

ALABAMA'S LEGENDARY coach, Paul (Bear) Bryant, said, "I agree with Coach Robinson. I sure would have gone for two. And the position USC was in, they had no choice. I've never seen a team that came back like they did.

"It was a great win and I'm very proud of my team," Bryant added. "I think everyone played as well as they could."

Bryant was jubilant for good reason. The Crimson Tide has now won four of its five games against the Trojans in a series that began in 1938.

"We've finally established a great rivalry with USC," Bryant exulted.

TONY NATHAN, a talented junior wishbone halfback from Birmingham, Ala., scored on runs of 1 and 15 yards in 58-second span in the fourth quarter after Johnny Davis' 2-yard run put Alabama ahead 7-3 at 5:08 of the third period.

Not to be overshadowed, fourth-ranked Texas subdued No. 3 Oklahoma 13-6 to deal the Sooners only their fourth loss since Coach Barry Switzer arrived. It was the first Longhorn victory over Oklahoma since 1970.

Senior fulldack Earl Campbell, battling the Oklahoma defense for the fourth and final time in his career, gained 124 yards in 23 carries and scored the winning touchdown on a 25-yard draw.

Russell McEachren, a senior who never had played a down of varsity football before this season, came in after the Longhorns' first two QBs were injured in the opening period and directed the lone TD drive of the day.

The Texas defense, which leads the nation against rushing and in fewest points allowed, settled the game with 3:50 remaining by stopping the Sooners on 4th-and-1 from the Longhorn 5 after Russell Erxleben — who kicked 64 and 58-yard field goals for Texas — punted 69 yards to put Oklahoma in a hole.

Oklahoma's only points came on field goals of 47 and 32 yards by Uwe von Schamann.

Elsewhere in the top 10, No. 2 Michigan defeated state rival Michigan State 24-14, No. 5 Colorado whipped Oklahoma State 29-13, No. 6 Ohio State crushed Purdue 46-0, No. 7 Nebraska beat Kansas State 26-9 and Washington State upset No. 10 California 17-10. Ninth-ranked Arkansas was idle.

Goose Filter the attraction as Arlington trotters open

Goose Filter heads a field of one dozen 2-year-old pacers slated to go postward tonight in the $35,718 Illinois Breeders Stake at Arlington Park, which will host harness racing for the first time in its 50-year history.

This conditioned pace will go as the sixth event on a 10-race card which gets underway at 8:15. The 71-night sulky meet will run through Dec. 31 with racing Monday through Saturday.

Racing Secretary Bob Larry has put together an opening night program consisting of eight mile and one-eighth races and a pair of seven furlong paces. These were the two distances most agreeable to horsemen who were on hand for last week's qualifiers over Arlington's new all-weather racing strip.

FROM WIRE-TO-WIRE, Arlington's oval is a mile and one-eighth, and its one mile chute provides Larry with the opportunity to card events at seven-eighths.

As for the racing strip itself, the horsemen seem very pleased. "The track is super good," remarked driver-trainer Stanley Banks who then added, "In fact, it's a lot better than we expected."

Track Superintendent Cesare Gennari was responsible for converting Arlington's thoroughbred course to the harness strip. It was a job he accomplished in just three days.

"It is very important to keep the track smooth and level," Gennari explained. "What you look for is consistency."

WHEN SPEAKING of consistency, no other word better describes the efforts of Goose Filter and the company he engages tonight.

With driver-trainer Jerry Graham at the controls, Goose Filter travelled the traditional harness mile in 1:54-1 this past August at Springfield. This was an effort that earned him the distinction of becoming the fastest Illinois bred three-year-old pacer in history.

Thirty-four appearances behind the starting gate have led to 22 lifetime victories for the chestnut colt who has amassed earnings of $143,942. The "Goose" drew the seven hole here, with Cookie Snatcher, a main rival, alongside in the eight slot.

Cookie Snatcher and driver-trainer Eric Thorgren recently captured the $112,500 "Pete Langley Memorial" at Sportsman's, cutting the mile in 2:03 over a sloppy surface. It was win number eight in 15 tries this season for the Nevele Dancer colt.

THERE IS a two-horse entry in the Breeders Stake from the Pletcher Stable. Steve Pletcher will be in the bike behind Sluf while Dwayne Pletcher will guide Pepe Dancer. The latter appears the stronger of the two as he defeated both Goose Filter and Cookie Snatcher in 1:54-2 at Springfield.

However, Sluf is no slouch. The Winter Time filly finished third in the Langley and must be considered a threat in this spot as she will leave from the rail. Her 15 wins in 28 starts and earnings of $70,000-plus are indicative of her talents.

Shawn Dancer, the hero of the Hawthorne and Maywood meets earlier this year, Parker Pearson Clyde B, Hi Land Berna, Win N Fortune, Prairie Rock, Breeze Ranger and Miss Egyptian complete the Stakes' field.

There will be 50 color TV monitors placed throughout the clubhouse and grandstand, providing close-up and replay race action. Also, Wolrd Series baseball and Monday Night Football games will be shown on the system.

Fremd keeps mark clean with win over Palatine

by ART MUGALIAN

Fremd's defense bent a little, it broke a little, it pounced and it scooped. The Vikings could have filled a ball-bag with the Palatine fumbles they recovered in the first quarter alone Saturday.

Dave Yelovich's 26-yard run with a Pirate fumble less than four minutes into the game was all the Vikings needed in a 27-6 victory over crosstown rival Palatine. It was enough to keep Fremd unbeaten at 5-0 and safely stop the MSL North, tied with Barrington.

BUT FREMD'S big Homecoming crowd was treated to much more on a cold, blustery day that would have suited Scandinavian Vikings. Kevin Weaver rushed 31 times for 203 yards and a pair of touchdowns. John Cane added a score near the end on a snazzy six-yard reverse. Mike Freeman was good on three of four extra-point kicks in a wind that rivaled Dorothy's twister.

And there was the defense. In addition to Yelovich's fumble return for a quick 7-0 lead, Fremd's Chris Rubak, John Mayer, Sam Turzitti, and Dino LaBello all fell on Palatine fumbles in the first period. Linebacker LaBello also picked a fumble out of mid-air on the last play of the first half and returned it 40 yards to the Pirate one before he was tackled by Tim Rees.

Greg Silvestri added a second-half interception of a Craig Long pass and Fremd finished with seven turnovers. But the Viking defense still gave up more total yards and more yards rushing than in any other game this season.

"I thought that, over-all, our defense did a good job," said Fremd coach Joe Samojedny. "I don't know if our kids were making them cough up the ball or what, but I do know that we were hitting really well in the first quarter."

PALATINE FUMBLED on the second play from scrimmage and Rubak recovered it for Fremd. But the Pirate defense forced a punt after three Viking offensive plays got nowhere.

Pirate junior Rich Gonzalez had just ripped off a 15-yard gain when he fumbled for the second time and Yelovich, scooping it up and evading Long's desperate tackle, went in for the day's first score.

Mayer's fumble recovery came moments later at the end of a long Palatine march that had moved inside the Viking 35. Weaver, the league's leading rusher, took off on a 37-yard run to the Pirate 26, then on fourth down he scored from the 18 with hardly anyone touching him.

"We had a few scoring opportunities in the first half that we didn't take advantage of," said Samojedny. "We told the kids that they were their own worst enemies."

QUARTERBACK MIKE Gavigan tossed an interception into the end zone after a Fremd fumble recovery on the Pirate 24, and later in the half the Vikings were taken out of scoring range by a major penalty.

Palatine forced another Fremd punt at the start of the second half and the Pirates set out on their only scoring march of the game, a 53-yard drive led by the power running of Jim Luzinski and Tom Fioretti. Luzinski took it over from the one-yard-line.

"Palatine really ground it out against us in the third quarter," said Samojedny. "But that was our only letdown. Over-all we did a good job on them."

SAMOJEDNY'S OFFENSIVE game-plan consisted mainly of giving the ball to Weaver, who now has 701 yards rushing in five games. The 5-10, 180-pound senior had running jaunts of 18 and 30 yards to go along with his 37-yarder in the first quarter. He scored the Vikings' third TD early in the fourth quarter on a one-yard burst.

Cane, Fremd's senior swingback, got the final TD after Silvestri's interception gave the Vikings the ball on Palatine's 19.

Weaver's total yardage was virtually all of Fremd's offense. The Vikings gained 240 yards, 232 of it on the ground.

Harper enjoying the sweet smell of zeros

by DON FRISKE

His Harper Hawks defeated the College of DuPage Saturday, 9-0, allowing Eliasik the pleasure of walking off the field with a happy bounce in his gait. The week before Harper had blanked Thornton, 18-0.

Just a few weeks back, his walk off the field was more like a mini-stampede as his Hawks were losing two games by a combined score of 49-10. He was not a happy man as he tried to figure out why his team couldn't generate an offensive attack.

HE STILL ISN'T totally pleased with his offense, but Saturday was a time to bask in the glory that his defensive players had brought him.

"There is constant improvement with our defense," Eliasik said. "The defense is really starting to play some good football, and that's what we need."

Against DuPage, the Hawks allowed only 159 total yards. Fifty-two of those came on one pass play which set up the toughest challenges.

The long strike from Chaparral quarterback Leo Oury to Jeff Nottingham put DuPage and the Harper eight-yard line near the close of the first half. The Hawk defense came through and kept DuPage from scoring on four plays, the last being a missed field goal.

IT KEPT HARPER'S shutout alive, but it also meant they could begin the second half with a 6-0 lead and not have to worry about playing comeback football.

So far this season, the Hawks haven't done too well in the second half. They have been outscored 42-19 after the intermissions.

But the Hawk offense was able to put enough points on their side against DuPage and the defensive players took it from there.

They forced the Chaparrals to punt nine times. They dumped the DuPage quarterback six times for total losses of 31 yards. They recovered two fumbles and intercepted two passes. Eliasik had many reasons to be happy.

OF COURSE, there was also that 45-yard touchdown pass from Hawk quarterback Jim Atkinson to tight end Rick Wrzala in the first quarter. It came with 7:48 on the clock and proved to be all the scoring that was necessary.

The pass was just a short toss over the line, but when Wrzala turned around and saw an open field, he sprinted for the goal line.

On the Hawks' first possession of the second half, they made it impossible for DuPage to win with one touchdown. Pete Passaglia came in with the wind to his back and kicked a 37-yard field goal to make it 9-0.

After that, the Hawks were able to hold the ball long enough to take some precious time away from DuPage. And when they didn't have the ball, the defense kept a close watch on the Chaps' offensive drives.

ELIASIK IS pleased with the way his offense has been handling the ball lately, compared to a few weeks ago, but he is still disappointed in the Hawks' inability to score a lot of points.

"We controlled things at the right times, but we still had trouble scoring. That's a problem," Eliasik said.

The best example of his well-taken point occurred when the Hawks had a first down at the DuPage two-yard line. Three plays later, Atkinson recovered his own fumble at the one to cancel the chance of a touchdown.

On the next possession, an interception stopped the Hawks at the DuPage 22. Two other drives during the second half in DuPage territory were halted by turnovers. The Chaps, however, were never able to use the Hawks' mistakes.

Elk Grove walks fine line to 33-0 win over Saxons

by fIC NOVAK

Football is a paradox. With its endless terminology, the gridiron sport often seems hopelessly complicated.

Yet, while the terminology is confusing the actual playing is simple. The team that blocks and tackles better almost always emerges the victor.

Saturday's Elk Grove-Schaumburg game was such an example. Elk Grove's visiting Grenadiers controlled the line of scrimmage offensively and defensively against the Saxons. The Grens were so successful that they scored 33 points while blanking Schaumburg in a Mid-Suburban League South Divison clash.

"We feel good. We were able to control the ball a little bit on the ground," said Elk Grove coach Don Schnake.

Elk Grove rushed for 289 yards. Gren running backs Jim Meyer and Gene Wright had a field day running through and around the Saxons. Meyer netted 113 yards in 20 carries while Wright produced 95 yards in 11 attempts.

The fearsome twosome also did nearly all of the Elk Grove scoring as Meyer rambled for three touchdowns and Wright two.

Meanwhile, Elk Grove's defense was equally tough. "Our defense was super again," Schnake concurred.

The Grens limited the Saxons to 96 yards rushing and 17 passing.

Thus far, Elk Grove has permitted only 20 points this year. The shutout is the Grenadiers' second straight.

"They (Elk Grove) were a tougher team, more physical," said Schaumburg coach Bob Ferguson. "They had excellent running backs, hard to bring down.

"Offensively we knew we would have a tough time," said Ferguson. "They're just stronger people."

The game did not start well for Schaumburg. The Saxons, celebrating their homecoming, were penalized twice while trying to kick off, once for delay of game and once for offsides.

Everything went downhill for Schaumburg after that.

Meyer scored in the second period on a seven-yard run and in the third on a five-yard tally. Wright's scoring consisted of a third period, four-yard run and a fourth period, 52-yard jaunt.

The win makes Elk Grove 4-1 overall and 3-0 in MSL South play. Schaumburg sports a 1-4 record for the year and a 1-2 mark for conference action.

Synthetic oil endorsed

SYNTHETIC MOTOR oils were given a big but little noted - endorsement in Detroit last week when a Ford Motor Co. vice president said tests of the lubricants proved they were everything the petroleum companies said they were.

But Ford stopped short of recommending that motorists use the oils in their cars during the 12-month-12,000 mile warranty period.

At last week's press preview of Ford's 1978 model cars, Robert B. Alexander, vice president-car development group, said the company tested the claim of Mobil Corp. that its Mobil One oil can go 30,000 miles without change "and verified it as right."

Alexander was answering a question about extended oil change intervals recommended by Detroit. Changes, recommended every 2,000 miles not too many years ago, are now recommended every 7,500 to 10,000 miles, so Alexander was asked whether it was possible to use a synthetic and not change at all the first year.

But Howard Freers, Ford's vice president in charge of engine and chassis development; quickly added that to keep a warranty valid, Ford still recommended changing oil at 10,000 miles on subcompacts and 7,500 miles on large cars.

Fremd keeps mark clean with win over Palatine

by ART MUGALIAN

Fremd's defense bent a little, it broke a little, it pounced and it scooped. The Vikings could have filled a ball-bag with the Palatine fumbles they recovered in the first quarter alone Saturday.

Dave Yelovich's 26-yard run with a Pirate fumble less than four minutes into the game was all the Vikings needed in a 27-6 victory over crosstown rival Palatine. It was enough to keep Fremd unbeaten at 5-0 and safely stop the MSL North, tied with Barrington.

BUT FREMD'S big Homecoming crowd was treated to much more on a cold, blustery day that would have suited Scandinavian Vikings. Kevin Weaver rushed 31 times for 203 yards and a pair of touchdowns. John Cane added a score near the end on a snazzy six-yard reverse. Mike Freeman was good on three of four extra-point kicks in a wind that rivaled Dorothy's twister.

And there was the defense. In addition to Yelovich's fumble return for a quick 7-0 lead, Fremd's Chris Rubak, John Mayer, Sam Turzitti, and Dino LaBello all fell on Palatine fumbles in the first period. Linebacker LaBello also picked a fumble out of mid-air on the last play of the first half and returned it 40 yards to the Pirate one before he was tackled by Tim Rees.

Greg Silvestri added a second-half interception of a Craig Long pass and Fremd finished with seven turnovers. But the Viking defense still gave up more total yards and more yards rushing than in any other game this season.

"I thought that, over-all, our defense did a good job," said Fremd coach Joe Samojedny. "I don't know if our kids were making them cough up the ball or what, but I do know that we were hitting really well in the first quarter."

PALATINE FUMBLED on the second play from scrimmage and Rubak recovered it for Fremd. But the Pirate defense forced a punt after three Viking offensive plays got nowhere.

Pirate junior Rich Gonzalez had just ripped off a 15-yard gain when he fumbled for the second time and Yelovich, scooping it up and evading Long's desperate tackle, went in for the day's first score.

Mayer's fumble recovery came moments later at the end of a long Palatine march that had moved inside the Viking 35. Weaver, the league's leading rusher, took off on a 37-yard run to the Pirate 26, then on fourth down he scored from the 18 with hardly anyone touching him.

"We had a few scoring opportunities in the first half that we didn't take advantage of," said Samojedny. "We told the kids that they were their own worst enemies."

QUARTERBACK MIKE Gavigan tossed an interception into the end zone after a Fremd fumble recovery on the Pirate 24, and later in the half the Vikings were taken out of scoring range by a major penalty.

Palatine forced another Fremd punt at the start of the second half and the Pirates set out on their only scoring march of the game, a 53-yard drive led by the power running of Jim Luzinski and Tom Fioretti. Luzinski took it over from the one-yard-line.

"Palatine really ground it out against us in the third quarter," said Samojedny. "But that was our only letdown. Over-all we did a good job on them."

SAMOJEDNY'S OFFENSIVE game-plan consisted mainly of giving the ball to Weaver, who now has 701 yards rushing in five games. The 5-10, 180-pound senior had running jaunts of 18 and 30 yards to go along with his 37-yarder in the first quarter. He scored the Vikings' third TD early in the fourth quarter on a one-yard burst.

Cane, Fremd's senior swingback, got the final TD after Silvestri's interception gave the Vikings the ball on Palatine's 19.

Weaver's total yardage was virtually all of Fremd's offense. The Vikings gained 240 yards, 232 of it on the ground.

The Vikings, by virtue of the victory, kept possession of the Village Trophy, a football emblematic of supremacy in the crosstown rivalry. Fremd leads the series, 6-4.

Palatine's record fell to 1-4, 1-1 in the North.

Harper enjoying the sweet smell of zeros

by DON FRISKE

Two consecutive shutout victories can have a remarkable effect on the disposition of a football coach, and John Eliasik is showing signs of the transition.

His Harper Hawks defeated the College of DuPage Saturday, 9-0, allowing Eliasik the pleasure of walking off the field with a happy bounce in his gait. The week before Harper had blanked Thornton, 18-0.

Just a few weeks back, his walk off the field was more like a mini-stampede as his Hawks were losing two games by a combined score of 49-10. He was not a happy man as he tried to figure out why his team couldn't generate an offensive attack.

HE STILL ISN'T totally pleased with his offense, but Saturday was a time to bask in the glory that his defensive players had brought him.

"There is constant improvement with our defense," Eliasik said. "The defense is really starting to play some good football, and that's what we need."

Against DuPage, the Hawks allowed only 159 total yards. Fifty-two of those came on one pass play which set up the toughest challenges.

The long strike from Chaparral quarterback Leo Oury to Jeff Nottingham put DuPage and the Harper eight-yard line near the close of the first half. The Hawk defense came through and kept DuPage from scoring on four plays, the last being a missed field goal.

IT KEPT HARPER'S shutout alive, but it also meant they could begin the second half with a 6-0 lead and not have to worry about playing comeback football.

So far this season, the Hawks haven't done too well in the second half. They have been outscored 42-19 after the intermissions.

But the Hawk offense was able to put enough points on their side against DuPage and the defensive players took it from there.

They forced the Chaparrals to punt nine times. They dumped the DuPage quarterback six times for total losses of 31 yards. They recovered two fumbles and intercepted two passes. Eliasik had many reasons to be happy.

OF COURSE, there was also that 45-yard touchdown pass from Hawk quarterback Jim Atkinson to tight end Rick Wrzala in the first quarter. It came with 7:48 on the clock and proved to be all the scoring that was necessary.

The pass was just a short toss over the line, but when Wrzala turned around and saw an open field, he sprinted for the goal line.

On the Hawks' first possession of the second half, they made it impossible for DuPage to win with one touchdown. Pete Passaglia came in with the wind to his back and kicked a 37-yard field goal to make it 9-0.

After that, the Hawks were able to hold the ball long enough to take some precious time away from DuPage. And when they didn't have the ball, the defense kept a close watch on the Chaps' offensive drives.

ELIASIK IS pleased with the way his offense has been handling the ball lately, compared to a few weeks ago, but he is still disappointed in the Hawks' inability to score a lot of points.

"We controlled things at the right times, but we still had trouble scoring. That's a problem," Eliasik said.

The best example of his well-taken point occurred when the Hawks had a first down at the DuPage two-yard line. Three plays later, Atkinson recovered his own fumble at the one to cancel the chance of a touchdown.

On the next possession, an interception stopped the Hawks at the DuPage 22. Two other drives during the second half in DuPage territory were halted by turnovers. The Chaps, however, were never able to use the Hawks' mistakes.

Now Harper must prepare for Triton. After that, the Hawks face Joliet, a team that was ranked No.1 in the nation last week among junior colleges.

LEAVING THE BLUES. Chuck Lefley, standout forward for the St. Louis Blues hockey team, has surprised his team by announcing his retirement and intention to return to the family's farm in Manitoba. The Blues have placed Lefley on their reserve list in case he changes his mind.

Blues' star Lefley quits, shocks team

ST. LOUIS — Chuck Lefley, a 27-year-old forward who set a St. Louis Blues record with 43 goals two seasons ago, has stunned the team by announcing his retirement.

"I can't see anyone doing anything for a living if he isn't happy about it," Lefley said.

"If a fella isn't happy he shouldn't be doing it. My mental attitude toward the game had changed. My heart no longer was in it."

Lefley, who announced his retirement an hour before the Blues' exhibition game Saturday night, had only 11 goals last season.

Lefley said he had no ill feelings toward the Blues management or any of his teammates. He also said he was satisfied with the three-year contract he signed only a month ago.

"It was the biggest and best contract I've ever had," Lefley said. 'But it has gotten to the point where I felt I no longer was pleased with my performance or myself with the way I was playing.

"Rather than take money I wasn't earning, I think it's in my best interest as well as the hockey club's best interest that I retire."

Scheckter wins Canadian Grand Prix

MOSPORT, Ontario — Jody Scheckter of South Africa grabbed the lead from Mario Andretti, who dropped out with two laps left, and raced home to win the Canadian Grand Prix Sunday.

Scheckter's Wolf was more than two miles behind Andretti when the American pulled his Lotus into the pits. Only James Hunt of Britain had challenged Andretti until Andretti dropped out.

Patrick Depailler of France was second in his Tyro and Jochen Mass of Germany driving a McLaren was third.

Parsons outruns field at National 500

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Benny Parsons lost a substantial lead when he ran out of gas with 50 miles to go but edged past Cale Yarborough a few laps later to win the National 500 stock car race Sunday.

Parsons put his Chevrolet in front of the pack in lap 151 of the 334-lap event at the Charlotte Motor Speedway and moved to a 24-second lead over Yarborough. He was within 12 seconds of lapping Yarborough's Chevrolet when he ran out of gas going into the first turn on lap 237 — the lap in which he planned to make a pit stop.

Yarborough, winner of nine races this season, finished second and was the only driver in the same lap as Parsons at the finish. David Pearson, who started on the pole, finished third with his Mercury just ahead of Buddy Baker's Ford.

Marsh tops Floyd in Matchplay finale

VIRGINIA WATER, England — Graham Marsh achieved a four-year ambition Saturday when he beat Ray Floyd 5 and 3 to win his first World Matchplay golf title.

In 1973, the Australian lost the final on the 40th green in sudden death to South African Gary Player and vowed that he would one day take the crown that eluded him.

He did it by shooting eight birdies and an eagle over the final 30-hole match to wind up a four-day display of consistent golf over the tree-lined, 6,969-yard, par-73 Burma Road course at Westworth.

Alcott breezes to LPGA Classic title

CROSBY, Tex. — Amy Alcott, who led since the first day, fired a final-round score of two-under-par 70 Sunday to win the $50,000 LPGA Classic golf tournament by five strokes, her first victory of the 1977 tour.

Alcott finished with a 54-hole total of 208, eight under par, in the final domestic ladies' tournament of the season. Only two tournaments in the Far East remain.

Alcott, from Santa Monica, Calif., earned $7,500 for the victory, moving her into 15th on the 1977 winnings list.

Youth leads Fremd, Hersey, Hoffman

Area teams win 3 harrier titles

When you build with an eye to the future, you can't help but focus the other eye on the present. And when you have cross country teams like Fremd, Hersey and Hoffman Estates, who all won invitational meets on Saturday, it's only natural to think more about today then tomorrow.

"The big meets are still left," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift after his Hawks won the Class B title at the Ridgewood Invite. "It's time to start improving our times to get ready for the big ones coming up."

SWIFT'S TEAM WILL lose just one senior next year, which bodes well for the future. But the coach, like everyone else, is looking ahead to this season's conference, district and sectional meets.

Hoffman's Doug Hirschberg, Neal Cleghorn and Dan Partelow finished in a pack in 22nd, 23rd, and 24th places. Cleghorn is the only senior. Juniors Pete Hamm and Joel Storm were 40th and 45th.

"Actually, we didn't run all that well," said Swift, whose team lost a crucial MSL South dual meet to Prospect last Thursday.

JUNIOR STEVE Johnson fought the wind and slop to finish first in 16:01, five seconds ahead of Libertyville's Tim Shannon as Hersey outdistanced Libertyville, 35-64, in the 17-team meet.

Meanwhile, Fremd, the state's second-ranked team, won the prestigious Peoria Invite with 51 points to York's 120 while also placing fourth at Antioch with a "junior-varsity" team. Fremd's No. 1 team, led by junior Tom Ross's fourth-place finish at Peoria, consists of a sophomore and three juniors in the top five.

"I think we work a little harder on the team approach," said Fremd coach Roy Hascup. "We have a leader in Tom Ross, but we know that we have other runners who can move up if the leader falters."

ROSS DIDN'T FALTER Saturday. He finished in 14:59 on a wet, soggy state-meet course, seven seconds behind winner Fred Brown of East Peoria. Fremd teammates Matt Filosa (10th), Ed Martinez (11th), Dan Inbody (12th) and Mike Warren (14th) followed. Inbody is the only senior and Warren is a soph.

"We wanted to test York," said Hascup. "And we wanted to find out what the middle of the state had to offer."

Arlington finished 15th as Jim Lear took 13th individually.

Prospect took second place at Waukegan East, trailing Fenton by just three points, 47-50. While Fenton's Jim Spivey and Roy Balinski ran 1-2, the Knights were led by Mark Smith and Ken Wetendorf in fifth and sixth places. Soph Ken Dell was 10th, followed by teammates Dave Hayes (13th) and Scott Satko (16th). Of those five, only Smith and Hayes will graduate this year.

WHEELING'S BEN Sanchez was third over-all at Waukegan, followed by teammate Kevin Lucas in seventh as the Wildcats finished fourth with 96 points. Forest View was fifth (111), led by Kevin Higgins (8th) and Jeff Kloster (12th).

Palatine's 10th place finish at Crete-Monee, where No. 1 Deerfield and Glenbard West ran 1-2, was highlighted by strong efforts from John Dahlgren (5th in Flight 3), Jim Lancaster (8th in Flight 4) and Kevin Nikolai (8th in Flight 2). Tom Johnson was 10th in Flight 1.

Hersey's girls team ran second at Antioch, trailing only Crystal Lake. Margaret LaPorte of Hersey was second individually in 12:59.

Harper took fifth at the Milwaukee Invite Saturday, led by Jeff Brydges' ninth-place finish and a 22nd for Tim Blechl. Golden Valley Lutheran of Minneapolis won the meet with 34 points and Lake County was fourth.

LEAVING THE BLUES. Chuck Lefley, standout forward for the St. Louis Blues hockey team, has surprised his team by announcing his retirement and intention to return to the family's farm in Manitoba. The Blues have placed Lefley on their reserve list in case he changes his mind.

Blues' star Lefley quits, shocks team

ST. LOUIS — Chuck Lefley, a 27-year-old forward who set a St. Louis Blues record with 43 goals two seasons ago, has stunned the team by announcing his retirement.

"I can't see anyone doing anything for a living if he isn't happy about it," Lefley said.

"If a fella isn't happy he shouldn't be doing it. My mental attitude toward the game had changed. My heart no longer was in it."

Lefley, who announced his retirement an hour before the Blues' exhibition game Saturday night, had only 11 goals last season.

Lefley said he had no ill feelings toward the Blues management or any of his teammates. He also said he was satisfied with the three-year contract he signed only a month ago.

"It was the biggest and best contract I've ever had," Lefley said. 'But it has gotten to the point where I felt I no longer was pleased with my performance or myself with the way I was playing.

"Rather than take money I wasn't earning, I think it's in my best interest as well as the hockey club's best interest that I retire."

Scheckter wins Canadian Grand Prix

MOSPORT, Ontario — Jody Scheckter of South Africa grabbed the lead from Mario Andretti, who dropped out with two laps left, and raced home to win the Canadian Grand Prix Sunday.

Scheckter's Wolf was more than two miles behind Andretti when the American pulled his Lotus into the pits. Only James Hunt of Britain had challenged Andretti until Andretti dropped out.

Patrick Depailler of France was second in his Tyro and Jochen Mass of Germany driving a McLaren was third.

Hunt's McLaren was eliminated on the 61st lap of the 80-lap race when he was knocked off the track by his teammate Mass.

Parsons outruns field at National 500

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Benny Parsons lost a substantial lead when he ran out of gas with 50 miles to go but edged past Cale Yarborough a few laps later to win the National 500 stock car race Sunday.

Parsons put his Chevrolet in front of the pack in lap 151 of the 334-lap event at the Charlotte Motor Speedway and moved to a 24-second lead over Yarborough. He was within 12 seconds of lapping Yarborough's Chevrolet when he ran out of gas going into the first turn on lap 237 — the lap in which he planned to make a pit stop.

Yarborough, winner of nine races this season, finished second and was the only driver in the same lap as Parsons at the finish. David Pearson, who started on the pole, finished third with his Mercury just ahead of Buddy Baker's Ford.

Marsh tops Floyd in Matchplay finale

VIRGINIA WATER, England — Graham Marsh achieved a four-year ambition Saturday when he beat Ray Floyd 5 and 3 to win his first World Matchplay golf title.

In 1973, the Australian lost the final on the 40th green in sudden death to South African Gary Player and vowed that he would one day take the crown that eluded him.

He did it by shooting eight birdies and an eagle over the final 30-hole match to wind up a four-day display of consistent golf over the tree-lined, 6,969-yard, par-73 Burma Road course at Westworth.

Alcott breezes to LPGA Classic title

CROSBY, Tex. — Amy Alcott, who led since the first day, fired a final-round score of two-under-par 70 Sunday to win the $50,000 LPGA Classic golf tournament by five strokes, her first victory of the 1977 tour.

Alcott finished with a 54-hole total of 208, eight under par, in the final domestic ladies' tournament of the season. Only two tournaments in the Far East remain.

Alcott, from Santa Monica, Calif., earned $7,500 for the victory, moving her into 15th on the 1977 winnings list.

Youth leads Fremd, Hersey, Hoffman

Area teams win 3 harrier titles

When you build with an eye to the future, you can't help but focus the other eye on the present. And when you have cross country teams like Fremd, Hersey and Hoffman Estates, who all won invitational meets on Saturday, it's only natural to think more about today then tomorrow.

"The big meets are still left," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift after his Hawks won the Class B title at the Ridgewood Invite. "It's time to start improving our times to get ready for the big ones coming up."

SWIFT'S TEAM WILL lose just one senior next year, which bodes well for the future. But the coach, like everyone else, is looking ahead to this season's conference, district and sectional meets.

Hoffman's Doug Hirschberg, Neal Cleghorn and Dan Partelow finished in a pack in 22nd, 23rd, and 24th places. Cleghorn is the only senior. Juniors Pete Hamm and Joel Storm were 40th and 45th.

"Actually, we didn't run all that well," said Swift, whose team lost a crucial MSL South dual meet to Prospect last Thursday.

JUNIOR STEVE Johnson fought the wind and slop to finish first in 16:01, five seconds ahead of Libertyville's Tim Shannon as Hersey outdistanced Libertyville, 35-64, in the 17-team meet.

Meanwhile, Fremd, the state's second-ranked team, won the prestigious Peoria Invite with 51 points to York's 120 while also placing fourth at Antioch with a "junior-varsity" team. Fremd's No. 1 team, led by junior Tom Ross's fourth-place finish at Peoria, consists of a sophomore and three juniors in the top five.

"I think we work a little harder on the team approach," said Fremd coach Roy Hascup. "We have a leader in Tom Ross, but we know that we have other runners who can move up if the leader falters."

ROSS DIDN'T FALTER Saturday. He finished in 14:59 on a wet, soggy state-meet course, seven seconds behind winner Fred Brown of East Peoria. Fremd teammates Matt Filosa (10th), Ed Martinez (11th), Dan Inbody (12th) and Mike Warren (14th) followed. Inbody is the only senior and Warren is a soph.

"We wanted to test York," said Hascup. "And we wanted to find out what the middle of the state had to offer."

Fremd won the Peoria meet for the third time in the past four years.

Arlington finished 15th as Jim Lear took 13th individually.

Prospect took second place at Waukegan East, trailing Fenton by just three points, 47-50. While Fenton's Jim Spivey and Roy Balinski ran 1-2, the Knights were led by Mark Smith and Ken Wetendorf in fifth and sixth places. Soph Ken Dell was 10th, followed by teammates Dave Hayes (13th) and Scott Satko (16th). Of those five, only Smith and Hayes will graduate this year.

WHEELING'S BEN Sanchez was third over-all at Waukegan, followed by teammate Kevin Lucas in seventh as the Wildcats finished fourth with 96 points. Forest View was fifth (111), led by Kevin Higgins (8th) and Jeff Kloster (12th).

Palatine's 10th place finish at Crete-Monee, where No. 1 Deerfield and Glenbard West ran 1-2, was highlighted by strong efforts from John Dahlgren (5th in Flight 3), Jim Lancaster (8th in Flight 4) and Kevin Nikolai (8th in Flight 2). Tom Johnson was 10th in Flight 1.

Hersey's girls team ran second at Antioch, trailing only Crystal Lake. Margaret LaPorte of Hersey was second individually in 12:59.

Harper took fifth at the Milwaukee Invite Saturday, led by Jeff Brydges' ninth-place finish and a 22nd for Tim Blechl. Golden Valley Lutheran of Minneapolis won the meet with 34 points and Lake County was fourth.

Meadows girls shoot to victory

by DOROTHY O'SULLIVAN

With his hands on the district trophy but his eyes on the state title, Rolling Meadows coach Ken Bates saw his girls archers pile up 2,378 points Saturday to take the Mid-Suburban crown.

Shooting on home grounds, Rolling Meadows' girls also walked off with four of the five individual medals. With Saturday's adverse wind conditions, a 605 total was good enough to give Cheri Bates the top prize in the tournament. Nancy Namovicz and Carol Nelson tied for second with identical scores of 594, while Georgia Oman finished fifth at 585.

Fourth-place winner Jenny Krock of Arlington Heights tallied 586 points to pace her team to a second place finish. The Cardinals chalked up 2,261 points for the day.

"The girls came through and did what they were supposed to do," Mustang coach Ken Bates said.

"I HAVEN'T HEARD how Freeburg is doing this year," Bates said, "but we are stronger than we were last year," he said.

Saturday's win gave the Mustangs the right to compete in the state tournament scheduled next weekend at Eastern Illinois University.

In addition to the five medalists, sixth-place finisher Laura Weber of Fremd will take part in the individual state competition. She shot a 578.

District-winner Cheri Bates almost was speechless after her top performance. "I never thought it would be me," she said.

"I had a bad practice," she said. "I had a feeling I might take second or third because of the wind."

ROUNDING OUT the top 10 in Saturday's competition were Fremd's Karen Truekenmiller and Arlington's Linda Mueller, each with 572 points; Joan Walters of Forest View with 563; and Barbara Zeinz of Arlington with 555.

Fremd took third place with 2,240 points, while Palatine was fourth with 2,029 and Forest View was fifth with 1,945.

In other district action, favored Prospect suffered an upset by host Glenbrook North. Neither the team, which scored 2,181 points, nor any individual qualified for state. Prospect's top scorer was Vicki Ward with 574. Karen Kurka shot 561. These totals placed them fifth and eighth in the individual standings.

"It was most disappointing. The girls were nowhere up to par and it was because of the weather," Prospect coach Shayne McNerney said.

McNERNEY SAID the shooting area was near a wall. As the strong winds bounced off the wall, they created a turbulence which caused the arrows to fly in all directions.

"The girls have been shooting qualifying scores all season. It's totally unfair that qualifying should be based on only one meet," she said.

As expected, Hersey's Michelle Frank shot 612 to lead the field in individual performances. Glenbrook's L. Hanson came in second with 609, and her teammate M. Banicky copped third at 587. Maureen Frank of Hersey scored 576 to take fourth place.

Glenbrook got 2,329 points, and Hersey tallied 2,168 to finish third. Buffalo Grove was fourth with 2,144 and Niles East fifth at 1,555.

The inclement weather forced postponement of another meet in which Ridgewood was to host Maine West, Elk Grove and Fenton.

They're off and running Saturday in invitational cross country headliner on the Prospect High School course.

Court House offer 10-week sessions

The Schaumburg and Arlington Court Houses have scheduled respective 10-week, 10-lesson racquetball instructional programs that start today.

The programs will be organized on four skill levels: beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates and advanced intermediates. There will be some 20 classes each week, including five on Saturday. To insure maximum effectiveness, no more than eight students will be enrolled in any single class, including the special classes for women and junior players.

Because the instruction will be on four skill levels, class content will vary. Rules of the game and forehand and backhand basics will be stressed during the first beginners' lesson, for example, whereas angle and kill shots will be covered in the opening session of the advanced intermediate lesson program.

SPECIAL DRILLS designed specifically for the program by the six Court House pros will be used to insure the correct development of solid playing techniques. As an added measure, video tape equipment will be used as a teaching tool throughout the series.

These lessons are taught by Schaumburg pro Bonnie Korytowski and Arlington pro Phil Klintworth.

The cost of the 10-lesson program, which is open to the public, is nominal, just $50 for lessons scheduled during the non-prime daytime hours; $60 during the prime evening and weekend hours. Classes are scheduled Monday through Saturday.

For mothers with pre-school children who opt to take their lessons during the day, each Court House's free, attended nursery will be open from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

For further information, contact Jeff Oslance or Korytowski at The Schaumburg Court House, 1450 Payne Rd., Schaumburg, telephone 882-4636. Also available to help you are Brian Bennett or Klintworth at the Arlington Heights Court House, 106 E. College Dr. Arlington Heights, telephone: 398-4656.

Barrington's air show downs Bison

by KEITH REINHARD

A look at the scoring column would have indicated a stampede but there was a deceptively Pegasus-like look about the Barrington Broncos Saturday as they charged to their fifth straight conquest of the season, 28-6, over visiting Buffalo Grove.

Steve Edwards cracked paydirt three times for the hosts, going overland on each occasion. But it was basically the deadly passing of Bruce Henricksen and the sensational receiving of Eric Shellenback that sent the Bison down to their fourth straight setback.

Shellenback pulled down nine of Henricksen's passes for over 100 yards, diving along the sidelines or coming down in a crowd in too many crucial situations to suit the Grove coach Grant Blaney.

"I REALLY FELT we did all we could to defense him . . . he's just a super athlete," said Blaney. "If anything, we might have put a better pass rush on Henricksen although I felt we grew defensively stronger as the game wore on."

By the time the guests had adjusted to the wide-open Barrington offense it was really too late. The Broncos drew first blood when the Bison countered early in the second quarter Barrington answered with a pair of TDs to own a 22-6 halftime edge.

There was still a lot of offense left in both teams after the intermission but most of it ended in futility. Buffalo Grove was not able to penetrate Barrington territory until the final few plays of the game.

Despite cold, blustery winds, neither side was very bashful about putting the ball in the air. There were a total of 50 passes thrown during the game with Buffalo Grove's Eric Gaddis and Craig Groot launching nearly half of them.

Shellenback's 24-yard reception keyed the opening Barrington score, on an 11-play driver initiating from the kickoff. The advance spanned 55 yards with Edwards going off right tackle from the two for the score.

THE EXTRA POINT kick by Ron Rozner was good and the hosts led the rest of the way.

Late in the first quarter Buffalo Grove's lone scoring match occurred after a one-yard punt put them in business near midfield. Gaddis flicked to Chuck Carkhuff for 16 and 10 yards to two plays and the remainder of the 13-play drive occurred on the ground, capped by Greg Bazany's one-yard plunge up the middle.

An extra point kick attempt went barely wide right.

The Broncos moved the subsequent kickoff 65 yards in eight plays, aided by a 15-yard penalty and two long passes to Shellenback. Again it was Edwards going over, from the four, and Rozner's PAT made it 14-6.

Barrington's next score came less than four minutes later, after taking over on the enemy 33. Another Henricksen to Shellenback aerial ate away 20 of the yards and Henricksen hit Kevin Noreen in the corner from five yards out for the tally.

On the extra point play, Henricksen flipped to Shellenback for two.

Edwards broke up the middle for a 33-yard scoring scamper in the fourth period. He now has put 32 points on board in four conference contests.

Shellenback, over that same span, has hauled in 23 passes for over 300 yards to lead the league.

Patriots' late charge tips Antioch, 20-7

After escaping a scary first half, the Stevenson Patriots fought back to earn a 20-7 victory over Antioch Saturday.

In the opening quarter, Randy Nauman scored from the Stevenson one-yard line to give Antioch a 7-0 lead. The Sequoits also had the ball on two other occasions inside the Stevenson 10, but the Patriots held on.

The second half was all Stevenson as the Pats used a quick touchdown and two turnovers to put the game in their favor.

THEY TOOK the opening kickoff of the third quarter and advanced to the Antioch 20-yard line before they missed a field goal. The Sequoits failed on three plans and were forced to punt.

Stevenson took over on the Antioch 46. After a 37-yard pass from Ken Kriske to Bill Schade, a six-yarder to Todd Schmitke put the Patriots on the board.

An Antioch fumble gave Stevenson the ball in good field position. Tony Baca recovered the loose ball, which set up Kriske's one-yard plunge for another touchdown.

Then Dave Keller intercepted an Antioch pass on the Stevenson 20. The Patriots were able to drive 80 yards in nine plays to complete the scoring. Schmitke's 15-yard run gave Stevenson the final 20-7 margin.

Schmitke was Stevenson's leading rusher with 85 yards on 13 carries. His brother Mark collected 60.

by DOROTHY O'SULLIVAN

With his hands on the district trophy but his eyes on the state title, Rolling Meadows coach Ken Bates saw his girls archers pile up 2,378 points Saturday to take the Mid-Suburban crown.

Shooting on home grounds, Rolling Meadows' girls also walked off with four of the five individual medals. With Saturday's adverse wind conditions, a 605 total was good enough to give Cheri Bates the top prize in the tournament. Nancy Namovicz and Carol Nelson tied for second with identical scores of 594, while Georgia Oman finished fifth at 585.

Fourth-place winner Jenny Krock of Arlington Heights tallied 586 points to pace her team to a second place finish. The Cardinals chalked up 2,261 points for the day.

"The girls came through and did what they were supposed to do," Mustang coach Ken Bates said.

"I HAVEN'T HEARD how Freeburg is doing this year," Bates said, "but we are stronger than we were last year," he said.

Saturday's win gave the Mustangs the right to compete in the state tournament scheduled next weekend at Eastern Illinois University.

In addition to the five medalists, sixth-place finisher Laura Weber of Fremd will take part in the individual state competition. She shot a 578.

District-winner Cheri Bates almost was speechless after her top performance. "I never thought it would be me," she said.

"I had a bad practice," she said. "I had a feeling I might take second or third because of the wind."

ROUNDING OUT the top 10 in Saturday's competition were Fremd's Karen Truekenmiller and Arlington's Linda Mueller, each with 572 points; Joan Walters of Forest View with 563; and Barbara Zeinz of Arlington with 555.

Fremd took third place with 2,240 points, while Palatine was fourth with 2,029 and Forest View was fifth with 1,945.

In other district action, favored Prospect suffered an upset by host Glenbrook North. Neither the team, which scored 2,181 points, nor any individual qualified for state. Glenbrook got 2,329 points, and Hersey tallied 2,168 to finish third. Buffalo Grove was fourth with 2,144 and Niles East fifth at 1,555.

BROTHER JUNIPER

FUNNY BUSINESS by Roger Bollen

Ask Andy

Calorie count adds up units of heat energy

HOW ARE CALORIES FIGURED?

Your body must have food, which is used for growth and energy and also for replacing bodily structures that are worn out as you lead your busy life of work and play. Nutrients is the name scientists give this food. The energy in nutrients is measured in units that the scientists call calories.

A calorie is actually a unit to measure heat energy in the metric system of measurement. One calorie is the amount of energy needed to raise the temperature of one gram of water by one degree Celsius.

The word calorie comes from the Latin word calor. It means heat.

The amount of energy needed by people varies, and therefore the need for a certain number of calories each day also will vary from person to person.

Children need more calories each day than adults because they are growing and are also generally much more active. Large people need more than small people and those doing heavy physical work or lots of exercise need more than those who are less active.

Your parents, doctor or school nutritionist can help you determine just how many calories you should be consuming each day. Basically, however, children between 7 and 10 who weigh about 66 pounds should have about 2,400 calories each day. Boys between 11 and 18, weighing between 97 and 134 pounds, should have between 2,800 and 3,000 calories, while girls in the same age group weighing between 97 and 119 pounds should have between 2,100 and 2,400 calories.

A well-balanced diet, with moderate servings of all the needed types of food each day, will generally provide just exactly the right number of calories a person should have.

It's not a bad idea, however, to learn to count calories. Know which food items are rated high and which are low on the scale. Then when it is time to take second helpings, or to select between two snack items, you'll know which choice is best.

One single tablespoon of butter, which is about the amount you may put on your morning toast, has 100 calories. Yet the same number can be obtained in one large apple. And one cup of raw shredded carrots has a calorie count of only 42 while a half-cup of raw cabbage has only 20 calories. One large raw tomato has about 40 calories while an orange has about 65. Rich cookies and cake, generally, are much higher in calorie count than fruits and vegetables.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Jeff Shull, 14, of Bessemer City, N.C., for his question:

WHAT IS A LIGHT-YEAR?

Get ready for some really big numbers.

First of all, light travels at the rate of 186,282 miles per second. The distance that light will travel in one year is called a light-year. And this adds up to a distance of 5 trillion, 88 million miles.

Because distances in space are too vast to be measured conveniently in miles, astronomers use both the astronomical unit and the light-year. The astronomical unit is the average distance between earth and the sun: 93 million miles. Pluto, the most distant planet, is said to be about 40 astronomical units from the sun.

Farther out into space the light-year is used. Some stars are 300 light-years away.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Oswald: "One of the real benefits derived from membership in the American Contract Bridge League is the monthly bulletin that includes a great deal of valuable bridge information."

Jim: "Undoubtedly, the ones of greatest value to the ordinary player are Easley Blackwood's series of hands showing basic play. Here is a very good one."

Oswald: "The slam bid is a perfect one, but many players would lose it because West holds both the ace and jack of clubs."

Jim: "The winning player sees an extra chance. Maybe dummy's fourth diamond can be established. So he starts proceedings by discarding two diamonds on dummy's ace and king of hearts. Then he cashes the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond, enters dummy with the king of trumps over his own queen and ruffs another diamond. Everyone follows and he has a parking place for his six of clubs. If diamonds failed to break he could still try the club play."

Oswald: "Note Easley's bidding. South did not use Blackwood because he had a void suit."

Ask Andy

Calorie count adds up units of heat energy

HOW ARE CALORIES FIGURED?

Your body must have food, which is used for growth and energy and also for replacing bodily structures that are worn out as you lead your busy life of work and play. Nutrients is the name scientists give this food. The energy in nutrients is measured in units that the scientists call calories.

A calorie is actually a unit to measure heat energy in the metric system of measurement. One calorie is the amount of energy needed to raise the temperature of one gram of water by one degree Celsius.

The word calorie comes from the Latin word calor. It means heat.

The amount of energy needed by people varies, and therefore the need for a certain number of calories each day also will vary from person to person.

Children need more calories each day than adults because they are growing and are also generally much more active. Large people need more than small people and those doing heavy physical work or lots of exercise need more than those who are less active.

Your parents, doctor or school nutritionist can help you determine just how many calories you should be consuming each day. Basically, however, children between 7 and 10 who weigh about 66 pounds should have about 2,400 calories each day. Boys between 11 and 18, weighing between 97 and 134 pounds, should have between 2,800 and 3,000 calories, while girls in the same age group weighing between 97 and 119 pounds should have between 2,100 and 2,400 calories.

A well-balanced diet, with moderate servings of all the needed types of food each day, will generally provide just exactly the right number of calories a person should have.

It's not a bad idea, however, to learn to count calories. Know which food items are rated high and which are low on the scale. Then when it is time to take second helpings, or to select between two snack items, you'll know which choice is best.

One single tablespoon of butter, which is about the amount you may put on your morning toast, has 100 calories. Yet the same number can be obtained in one large apple. And one cup of raw shredded carrots has a calorie count of only 42 while a half-cup of raw cabbage has only 20 calories. One large raw tomato has about 40 calories while an orange has about 65. Rich cookies and cake, generally, are much higher in calorie count than fruits and vegetables.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Jeff Shull, 14, of Bessemer City, N.C., for his question:

WHAT IS A LIGHT-YEAR?

Get ready for some really big numbers.

First of all, light travels at the rate of 186,282 miles per second. The distance that light will travel in one year is called a light-year. And this adds up to a distance of 5 trillion, 88 million miles.

Because distances in space are too vast to be measured conveniently in miles, astronomers use both the astronomical unit and the light-year. The astronomical unit is the average distance between earth and the sun: 93 million miles. Pluto, the most distant planet, is said to be about 40 astronomical units from the sun.

Farther out into space the light-year is used. Some stars are 300 light-years away.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.
